HIROTA PAINTS JAPAN AS WORLD PEACE LEADER

Foreign Chief Insists on 'Adequate Navy.'

TOKIO, Nov. 30 [Friday].—(AP)—Foreign Minister Koki Hirota today pictured Japan as the champion of the "principle of nonmenace and nonaggression" in the deadlocked naval conversations in London.

The diplomat told the house of peers, in extra session, that the empire is actuated by "the spirit of disarmament."

Called upon to tell his compatriots how the empire has fared with the rest of the world, Hirota side-stepped the most troublesome developments since his last formal report to parliament on Jan. 23. He did not include in his report Japan's preparations to abrogate the Washington naval treaty, but declared the Japanese were continuing efforts in London for a "new and reasonable treaty."

Ignores "Naval Race."

He did not touch upon the prospect of a breakdown in the parleys or the dangers of a naval race, which are the major anxiety of the moderate elements of Japan.

The foreign minister ignored the current heated diplomatic conflict with the United States and Great Britain over the Manchukuoan oil monopoly and Japan's alleged violation of the "open door."

Referring to the naval conversations in London between the United States, Great Britain, and Japan, Hirota said:

"In these negotiations the Japanese government, while aiming at Japan's possession of a naval force fully adequate for security of her national defense, is endeavoring to establish firmly the principle of nonmenace and nonaggression. It is according to this principle that Japan proposes abolition of the ratio principle hitherto in force and establishment of a common upper limit for the powers concerned.

Seek Means for Defense.

"In consonance with the spirit of disarmament we desire to bring about thorough and drastic naval reduction and to lighten thereby the tax burden of nations in the future. To that end we desire to bring down this common upper limit to the lowest level possible and at the same time, through drastic reduction and limitation of offensive arms and proper adjustment in defensive arms, to render it difficult for any power to attack another but easy to defend itself.

"Our delegates are continuing their efforts toward realization of our plan based on the foregoing policy and at the same time toward conclusion of a new and reasonable treaty. It is to be hoped that Great Britain, the United States, and other powers concerned will see the equity and justice of our claim and that a new naval pact will be brought into being to insure and promote world peace.

"I am very pleased to say that on the whole our relations with the various countries of Europe, America, and with China, have grown increasingly cordial because a better understanding now prevails among the powers regarding Japan's position in east Asia.

Rejoices Over Manchukuo's Rise.

"The healthy development of our ally, Manchukuo, is a matter in which we are vitally concerned, as may be readily perceived from the imperial rescript issued on the occasion of Japan's secession from the league of nations. We rejoice that the new state has made rapid strides in every branch of national administration and laid a lasting foundation for the country by establishment of the imperial régime in March last.

"As for relations between Japan and the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, there has been some improvement since January. The fact that our fishing industry in northern waters was able to proceed without any trouble this year is a matter for congratulation for the sake of soviet-Japanese friendship.

"Negotiations for the transfer of the North Manchukuo railway [Chinese Eastern railway], temporarily suspended early this year, were resumed in March. Although serious obstacles were encountered time and again, an agreement of views, thanks to the efforts of the Japanese government, has now been reached on a price of transfer and most of the other major points, leaving only a few technical questions to be solved. I expect an early conclusion of the transaction."

The foreign minister then referred

Funeral Call Gives Clew to Identity.

Federal agents and the police last night were searching for the young woman who drove away from Barrington Tuesday afternoon with George [Baby Face] Nelson after he had been fatally wounded in a machine gun battle with two department of justice operatives.

Evidence which reached the investigators yesterday convinced them that the woman they are seeking is Mrs. Helen W. Nelson, or Gillis, 21 years old, the slim, brown haired, blue eyed widow of Nelson, whose real name was Lester M. Gillis. She had been married for several years to the desperado who inherited the gang leadership of John Dillinger and she had borne him two children.

Believe She Saw Fatal Fight.

The federal agents believe that the faithful Helen was the blonde who looked on while Nelson and a male companion, as yet unidentified, shot it out with Inspector Samuel C. Cowley and Special Agent Herman E. Hollis on the outskirts of Barrington. This was the battle in which Hollis was shot to death and Cowley and Nelson were mortally wounded. Cowley died early Wednesday in an Elgin hospital and the body of Nelson, wrapped in a blanket, was discovered later that day in Niles Center.

Nelson, with a bullet hole in his abdomen, probably lived a few hours. An examination by a physician disclosed that amateur first aid had been attempted to save the dying outlaw's life. It was the theory of the investigators that the woman and the male companion of the gangster had stayed with him until he died and then had disposed of the body in the only manner that seemed practical to them.

Funeral Call Is Clew.

Philip Sadowski, 1845 North Hermitage avenue, an undertaker, gave the clew that pointed most directly to Mrs. Nelson as the woman in the case. He told authorities that he had been called on the telephone Wednesday and told that the body of Nelson would be found in Niles Center. Sadowski had conducted funeral services for the mother of Mrs. Nelson [née Wawrziniak] in 1924 and for one of her sisters in 1927. It was regarded as virtually certain Mrs. Nelson would call on the same undertaker to claim her husband's body and arrange the funeral and unlikely that any other known associate of Nelson would have done so.

The identity of the man who accompanied the blonde and Nelson is uncertain. John Hamilton, old Dillinger lieutenant; Alvin Karpis, another of the gang, and a man known only as Chase are suspects.

Man and Woman Seized.

A man and a woman, arrested by Sergt. Frank Johnson of the state's attorney's office yesterday as they were about to board a bus at Wabash avenue and Roosevelt road, were questioned about their possible affiliation with Nelson, but convinced the authorities they had none.

The man is a former prize fighter, Charles Gideon. The woman said she was Opal Caton of Loveland, Okla., with a Chicago residence at 1519 Adams street. Gideon, once a convict in a California prison, and Mrs. Caton were kept in custody until the police learn whether they are wanted for crimes committed elsewhere.

Nelson's body lay in the county morgue yesterday on the same slab where Dillinger's body was placed after he was slain by federal agents last July. A steady stream of sightseers passed through to view the body yesterday, but the tribute of morbid curiosity to Nelson's fame as a ranking criminal was far less marked than that paid to Dillinger. Where thousands looked upon the Indiana desperado, only about 800 went to view Nelson.

Watch for Her at Morgue.

A federal agent stood guard all day at the morgue in the hope that Mrs. Nelson would go there. He had her description and a photograph of her taken at the time Nelson shot and killed Federal Agent W. Carter Baum near Mercer, Wis., last April, when the Dillinger gang broke out of a trap. The men of the gang escaped then, but Mrs. Nelson and two other women were captured. Mrs. Nelson was placed on probation for eighteen months by a federal judge in Madison

FINDS LOST DIAMOND RING IN A CHICKEN WHILE DRESSING IT

Brillion, Wis., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Mrs. John Feiger was more than ordinarily thankful this Thanksgiving day.

Her sister, Mrs. Oscar Rappel of Sheboygan, in cleaning a chicken the Geigers had given her for Thanksgiving dinner found inside the bird a diamond ring Mrs. Geiger lost last January.

Mrs. Geiger said she believed the ring had fallen into food given the chickens on the farm.

IT AIN'T STICKUP, STANLEY AVERS, AND SO IT AIN'T

Stanley Szymanski was in his tavern at 4258 Cortez street with three patrons last night when a man entered and announced firmly that this was a stickup. To make it plain that he meant what he said he displayed a pistol.

"No, it ain't a stickup," replied Stanley firmly if ungrammatically. "I don't allow stickups in my place. You get the dickens out of here."

Somewhat disconcerted by this treatment, so different from what he had expected, the bandit fired three bullets into the floor and went out.

The story was told the police by Szymanski. He told of the three patrons who were present, but the police retorted that they would take his word for it and not look for the supporting witnesses.

J. Wanamaker Junior, Heir to Millions, Dies

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Capt. John Wanamaker Jr., 45, son of the late Rodman Wanamaker and grandson of John Wanamaker, died today at his residence here after an illness of ten days. The cause of death was cerebral hemorrhage.

Funeral services will be held privately at the home here Saturday and later in the day in Philadelphia. Interment will be in St. James the Less cemetery, Philadelphia.

Mr. Wanamaker's widow, the former Mrs. Elizabeth Peltz Warburton, was present when he died. Two children by his first marriage, John Rodman, 16, and Fernanda, 13, also were present. The first Mrs. Wanamaker was the former Miss Pauline Disston.

Speedboat Enthusiast.

Capt. Wanamaker was widely known in social, military, and sport circles in this country and in Europe. His chief interests in sport were fishing and speedboat racing. He owned several fast motorboats, and last year he won second prize in the 40 kilometer international 12½ liter class race on Lake Garda in Italy. Only a month ago he was appointed treasurer of the American Power Boat association.

During the world war he was a captain in the 78th division. He was graduated from the general staf college, American Expeditionary force, and later was on Gen. Pershing's staf under Gen. Nolan.

On Staf in France.

While President Wilson was in France, Capt. Wanamaker had charge of transportation for the President and of his telephone and telegraph operators and others of the President's entourage, returning home with the President on the liner George Washington. In 1921 he was chosen by Gen. Pershing's board as one of the captains eligible for general staf duty, but later retired from active service. He was decorated with the French Legion of Honor.

Capt. Wanamaker and his two sisters, Mrs. Wanamaker Munn and Mrs. Ector Munn, were the heirs to the 56 million dollar fortune left by their father, Rodman Wanamaker, who died on March 9, 1928.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Thanksgiving for Gov. Horner was the start of a double holiday to be celebrated at the executive mansion with a dozen of his relatives from Chicago. Turkey dinner was served today to the governor and his guests. Tomorrow will be the governor's fifty-sixth birthday and most of the mansion visitors will stay overnight.

NEW WITNESSES FOUND AGAINST HAUPTMANN, PROSECUTOR REVEALS

Flemington, N. J., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck Jr. of Hunterdon county said today that the state had found new witnesses in the Lindbergh kidnap slaying case within the last month and their testimony "makes the case against Bruno Richard Hauptmann stronger than ever."

The prosecutor indicated today the state will probably charge that Hauptmann slew the Lindbergh baby in the commission of a burglary, a felony, rather than assert the slaying was premeditated. This is one of the facts which the defense wishes to ascertain as quickly as possible. In its demand for a bill of particulars the defense has asked the state to set forth the exact nature of the charge to be made against Hauptmann.

TWO WOUNDED BY GUNMAN IN STREET CLASH

Two young men were shot and seriously wounded by an unidentified assailant last night at Irving Park boulevard and Clarendon avenue. They are Frank Denges, 21 years old, 4319 Wrightwood avenue, who was struck near the heart, and John Logan, 21 years old, 3611 Palmer street, who was shot in the body and the right leg. They were taken to the Bridewell hospital. The gunman escaped.

Denges and Logan, with Bruno Skworzec, 25 years old, 2414 North Tripp avenue, had been drinking wine in a tavern and had been on the street only a minute or two when the shooting occurred.

As Skworzec told the story, an irascible man about 50 years old was the assailant.

"We were going to see some girls," Skworzec said. "At the corner we saw this fellow and asked him where Sheridan road was. 'I know where it is,' he said, 'but don't ask me so rough.' He pulled out his pistol and started to shoot. Denges and Logan fell and I stayed with them until the police came."

The police held Skworzec at the detective bureau after they discovered that he once served a two year term in the Pontiac reformatory for burglary.

Girls, Couple Are Identified, Police Believe

Carlisle, Pa., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—The three little girls whose bodies were found in the woods near here, as well as the bodies of a man and a young woman found near Waynesboro, a hundred miles away, have been identified, police were convinced tonight, after word from Roseville, Cal.

Yet the identification, if it proves true, still leaves the greater mystery of why the group so suddenly left their California home, and what led to the mountainside deaths of the little girls.

The children are believed to be the daughters of Elmo J. Noakes, employé of a fruit shipping company at Roseville, whose names are Norma, 12; Dewilla, 10, and Cordelia, 8.

Police Almost Certain.

The bodies found shot to death near Waynesboro, police are almost certain, are those of Noakes, and Miss Winifred Pierce, 19 year old niece of Noakes, who was his housekeeper. This, police said, explained a family resemblance between Miss Pierce and the children—a point which had baffled them, since Miss Pierce obviously was not old enough to have been the mother of the children.

The story of the Noakes family came to light after Lieut. H. E. McElroy of the state police had traced the license number of a light sedan automobile found abandoned near the bodies of the two believed to be Noakes and Miss Pierce.

A telegraphic query was then sent to Roseville, and the description exchange seemed conclusive. The identification of the body of Miss Pierce was made more positive by the fact that she was known to have a slightly deformed foot. This conformed to the body found.

Car Purchased Nov. 10.

Word from California was that Noakes had purchased the automobile on Nov. 10. He is believed to have left Roseville about Nov. 11 or 12 so hurriedly that he neglected to collect two weeks' pay at his place of employment.

R. W. Noakes, brother of Elmo, declared he had seen his brother several days before he is believed to have left the California town, and said:

"He didn't say anything about going away, and didn't seem mentally depressed. As far as I know he had nothing to worry about."

A brother of Miss Pierce, according to California police, also volunteered the information that Noakes' wife had died some time ago in Salt Lake City.

"No Reason" for Flight.

For a time, he said, Mrs. Hugh Pierce, mother of Winifred, took care of the children, but last summer Winifred assumed that task. Like Noakes, Miss Pierce's brother was unable to give any reason for the sudden flight from the coast.

The bungalow where the five lived was found in neat order, it was said, but the presence of articles of food and clothing indicated that the occupants apparently had not been planning an extensive trip.

However, the time of Noakes' disappearance and the time that the bodies were found in Pennsylvania indicate that the five had had just enough time to make the trip by automobile.

"Excellent Reputation."

There was no indication from California that there had been any family trouble, and it was said that Elmo Noakes had "an excellent reputation" in his home city.

There is still doubt as to the actual cause of death of the children. Starvation has been advanced as one theory, yet Noakes apparently had enough money to buy a new automobile, and was independent enough to leave two weeks' pay uncollected.

So, while identification seems nearly positive, the mystery of the death of the "babes in the woods" remains as dark as when the bodies were found.

ROYAL COUPLE MARRIED; OFF ON HONEYMOON

LONDON, Nov. 29. — Almost any woman—English, American or Hottentot—would have given her weight in gold today for a seat in Westminster abbey to see the enactment of an old world fairy story, the wedding of a handsome prince and his lovely princess.

Weeks of preparation had roused all England to an almost unbelievable pitch of interest and excitement over the marriage of the duke of Kent, fourth son of King George and Queen Mary, and Princess Marina of Greece.

Carnival Spirit Reigns.

Tonight a merry-making mood gripped the city and the spirit of carnival reigned at all London's places of amusement.

The royal honeymooners meanwhile departed on a special train early this afternoon immediately after the wedding breakfast and went into seclusion at the earl of Dudley's country estate, Himley Hall, near Birmingham.

Outside the ancient abbey this morning, under the dripping autumn leaves, multitudes watched and waited as the glamorous royal spectacle proceeded within. Women fainted in the crush, others became hysterical. They symbolized the state of mind of all Britain.

Within the abbey were gathered royalty, nobility, statesmen, soldiers, diplomats of many lands, their richly adorned wives with them.

Colorful Array.

The women, wearing tiaras, bracelets and necklaces, and the men, wearing uniforms, court dress or evening dress with crosses and ribbons on the breast, jeweled swords by their sides and yards of gold braid brightening their costumes, moved through the dim shadows of the abbey, a colorful array.

The women were somberly dressed by the wishes of Queen Mary. Rich silk and velvets fell in heavy folds around their feet, while the shoulders of most of them were covered with Russian sables, mink and yellow ermine.

Tiny hats with long feathers of stiff, almost comic, plumes framed their pale faces.

Splendor of Uniforms.

More splendid than the women's gowns were the uniforms of the admirals and military men, with their plumes of rich red, their blue braided jackets with six inch high epaulets and their shining, high legged boots.

The assembled diplomatic corps included United States Ambassador and Mrs. Robert W. Bingham in court dress.

Mrs. Bingham was lovely in a Chinese red crêpe with brown and gold introduced in the scarf which fell from her shoulders. She also wore sables.

Behind them was David Lloyd George, wartime British prime minister, one of the most picturesque of all the guests with his snow-white hair shining against his deeply black theatrical cape.

MacDonald in Hurry.

Prime Minister MacDonald, decked out in the gold braid of his court uniform, hurried along with his daughter Ishbel, seemingly afraid he was late. After him came his dignified cabinet, all their ladies wearing velvet of colors varying from deep mulberry and black to lighter reds and emerald greens. They all wore toques. They all had feathers, and they all had furs of animals ranging from fox to mink around their shoulders.

The bride's mother, Princess Nicolas, stood out sharply against the somber colors in her white and gold brocade gown. Russian ermine of many years' tradition hung to her waist.

Queen Mary's Gown.

But more brilliant, more stately, and more heavily studded with gems than all the rest was England's Queen Mary. From the shoulders of her gown to her waist she was armored with diamonds.

The queen wore a beautiful blue pastel gown and the blue sash of the Order of the Garter, with a hat the same shade as the gown crowned with ostrich feathers. So brilliant were her diamonds that each time she turned she threw light into shadows.

The princess royal, the countess of Harewood, King George's only daughter, was there, wearing blue of a forget-me-not shade, while the eternally smiling duchess of York, much of whose time was spent watching her

Princess Elizabeth, one of the bridesmaids, was charmingly pensive, deeply interested in the great pageant in which she had part.

The prince of Wales was nervous and fidgety. So was the duke of Kent as he waited for his bride.

Then she came, the tall, slim Grecian princess, in a tudor gown, pale and nervous, with head bowed. The long, white and silver brocade clung to her figure and entangled in her feet as she walked. Tulle escaped down her shoulders. Her train was 15 feet long. At the end of it were her eight bridesmaids, dressed exactly like her except their gowns were of crêpe, with silver sashes at their waists.

The music and the ceremonial proceeded. Marina met her bridegroom, but they did not seem to look at each other as the choir's voices rose and fell.

Hands Bouquet to Duke.

After the ringing address of the archbishop of Canterbury, Marina handed her bouquet to the duke. Confused, he passed it on to the prince of Wales. Wales held it uncertainly for a few seconds and then laid it on the floor, the ceremony going on without interruption.

While kings and queens, dukes and duchesses, lords and ladies, diplomats, and other distinguished persons listened breathlessly the resonant voice of the white-haired archbishop echoed and reëchoed through the vaulted abbey as he led the couple through the wedding lines.

As the light of tapers in candelabra and menorahs glinted back from the elaborate uniforms and the handsome dresses, the jewels and decorations of the galaxy of great, he intoned slowly:

"George Edward Alexander Edmund, wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife, to live together after God's ordinance in the holy estate of matrimony? Wilt thou love her, comfort her, honor, and keep her in sickness and in health; and, forsaking all others, keep thee only unto her, so long as ye both shall live?"

"I Will."

Kent's voice carried to the last rows as, kneeling beside his princess, he firmly answered: "I will."

To Marina the archbishop said:

"Marina, wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband, to live together after God's ordinance in the holy estate of matrimony? Wilt thou obey him and serve him, love, honor, and keep him in sickness and health; and, forsaking all others, keep thee only unto him so long as ye both shall live?"

Marina's voice was small and soft as, lifting her face to the archbishop, she replied: "I will."

The two then plighted their troth, the duke repeating after the archbishop:

"I, George Edward Alexander Edmund, take thee, Marina, to be my wedded wife, to have and to hold from this day forward, for richer or poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish, till death do us part, according to God's holy ordinance; and thereto I plight thee my troth."

Marina's Vow.

Marina said the same words, substituting her name for that of the duke, and saying at the end, "I give thee my troth."

The words died away amid an eloquent hush. The bridegroom took the golden wedding ring from the hand of his eldest brother, the prince of Wales, and placed it upon Marina's finger, repeating after the archbishop:

"With this ring I thee wed, with my body I thee worship, and with all my worldly goods I thee endow: In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

Queen Mary of England pressed a handkerchief to her lips. Princess Nicolas of Greece pressed a handkerchief to her eyes. King George of England looked straight forward.

A little known Balkan princess had become the fourth lady of this ancient land. And outside the walls of the abbey England was hysterical.

Royal Bridal Sets City on Spending Spree.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Old London town gave itself over to high revelry tonight in celebration of the royal wedding.

Theaters, night clubs, restaurants, and hotels in the fashionable west end were crowded, and elsewhere throughout the city proprietors of amusement and eating places reported that the hundreds of thousands who thronged the streets apparently were on a spending spree.

Meanwhile a gigantic trafic jam spread over the city and all forms of transportation were forced to proceed with slowness and caution.

Bond Street Closed.

Bond street, regarded as the smartest center of all, was closed to vehicular trafic, and other streets were jammed from the almost unprecedented flow of vehicles and pedestrians.

The hold of the royal wedding on the popular imagination was demonstrated again tonight as up to a late hour thousands of people walked past the altar in Westminster abbey, where the marriage was solemnized today. Everything was left as it had been for the ceremony and the spectators took a keen interest in all the details.

The enthusiasm of the crowds, which extended back for a solid block from the route of the procession, evidenced genuine affection on the part of the public for every one concerned in the regal blowout, and it left an indelible impression on the minds of foreigners who were present.

A "Wonderful Day."

An elderly woman, who looked as though she might not have eaten a square meal in months, looked up at the dripping skies and remarked to a companion, "It's a wonderful day for the dears."

As Marina passed, those in the front ranks turned and informed others excitedly: "She's waving at us!"

The eagerness of every one to get even a glimpse of the gilded carriages was almost past belief. The spectators looked tired when their long vigil finally was ended, but there seemed to be a glow of happiness on every face, face.

There cannot be another royal wedding too soon to suit Great Britain's subjects.

JEALOUS, SO HE SLAYS WOMAN, SEAMAN, SELF

Chester, Pa., Nov. 29.—(AP)—A man described by police as a "small time" racketeer, crazed by jealousy, entered the apartment of a former woman friend, killed her and a man with a sawed-off shotgun, and then blasted out his own life with the same weapon.

The dead were:

Grover Evans, 38, the alleged assailant.

Mrs. Anna Biddle Jenkins, 22, the woman friend.

Harry Volinsky, 41, an unemployed seaman of Atlantic City, said by authorities to be known also as James Lang.

When police broke into Mrs. Jenkins' second floor apartment in a rooming house last night they also found Mrs. Hilda Gibson, 30, friend of Mrs. Jenkins, sprawled on the floor seriously wounded.

COMMUNIST PAPER STRIKES SOUR NOTE IN BRITISH CELEBRATION

LONDON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—A discordant note amid England's peans of praise and demonstrations of sentimental affection for the royal lovers today was the treatment of their wedding by the communist paper the Daily Worker.

Its banner line heading the wedding story was: "Out-of-work princess signs on for dole. You pay for her wedding bells."

The newspaper's account of the marriage began:

"Today Marina, daughter of an unemployed 'Greek' former prince, marries George, son of the head of the most prosperous branch of the firm of royalty unlimited—the Buckingham palace branch of the old German family concern which supplies Europe with unwanted monarchs.

"Marina qualifies for the handsome dole of £25,000 [about $125,000] a year. As a bachelor George drew £10,000 yearly. His marriage allowance will be £15,000, placing the couple on a scale of relief equivalent to £500 weekly."

ACTRESS' MOTHER ASKS A DIVORCE FROM DENTIST

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mattie Jones, mother of Veree Teasdale, actress, has applied to Justice Albert Conway in the Brooklyn Supreme court for a divorce from her husband, Dr. John Jones, a Brooklyn dentist. Justice Conway held several hearings and reserved decision.

Mrs. Jones charged that on Aug. 12, just a few days before Miss Teasdale was married to Adolphe Menjou, motion picture actor, she discovered that during her absence her husband had entertained in their home a young woman described as "Miss Leslie."

Mrs. Jones and Joshua M. Didriksen, who had lived in the Jones household, returned from a bridge game, she testified, and found the door doubly locked from the inside.

REALTY OWNERS PROTEST DELAY IN '33 TAX BILLS

A number of property owners in the country towns complained yesterday that they have been unable to pay their 1933 real estate tax bills, now being sent out in the city, because the township collectors refuse to give out the bills until they get the personal property bills to issue at the same time. Heretofore personal property bills have preceded the realty bills, and usually the country town officials mail both in one envelope.

County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer, who on Monday will take up his duties as county treasurer, expressed the belief that the local collectors, who are elected officials paid on a collection fee basis, wish to save some postage. They have 20 days to collect taxes. Then the books are turned over to the county treasurer for completion of the job.

"In those 20 days the responsibility rests on the shoulders of the township collectors," Mr. Sweitzer said. "If their procedure doesn't suit the citizens of their communities, then it is up to the citizens to complain to the tax gatherers."

CHACO GENERAL REVEALED AS NEW RULER IN BOLIVIA

President Gets Blame for Army's Rout; Arrested.

BY NORMAN INGREY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 29.—President Daniel Salamanca of Bolivia formally resigned today, 24 hours after Vice President José Luis Tejada Sorzano had taken over his powers by decree. Information smuggled across the frontier to THE TRIBUNE correspondent indicated Salamanca was the victim of military jealousies.

Gen. Enrique Penaranda, commander of the Bolivian troops opposing the Paraguayans on the Chaco battlefront, has emerged as the real man of the hour, but so far he is apparently undecided whether to impose a complete military dictatorship on Bolivia or to charge the new president with peace negotiations.

There are indications that Gen. Penaranda's mind will be quickly made up for him, because the Paraguayans are hammering at the chain of forts back of the surrendered Fort Ballivian and a disorderly Bolivian retreat is reported along the whole Chaco front.

Rout in Progress.

No news of Bolivia's internal situation has leaked through the tightened censorship to the battlefront, but messages from La Paz, the Bolivian capital, read in conjunction with bulletins from Asuncion, Paraguay's capital, justify the conclusion that the Bolivians are in rout from from the Pilcomayo river, the Argentine frontier, to Puesto, Bolivia, to the north of the Canada Strongest sector.

A military collapse is partially admitted in brief official bulletins from La Paz. There seems no doubt that the resignation of Salamanca was wrested by force at Villa Montes, Bolivian Chaco headquarters, where there was a dramatic meeting between the aged president and Gen. Pernaranda and the general staf.

The commander-in-chief accused Salamanca of ordering the defense and retention of Fort Ballivian at all costs to bolster up the civil front when military strategy demanded an early evacuation. He also charged undermining of the military situation by making staf changes, which included the deposition of Penaranda.

Salamanca Arrested.

After forcing his resignation, the military arrested Salamanca and, it is believed, conveyed him by plane to Santa Cruz to be judged by a military tribunal. When Salamanca went to the Chaco he was accompanied by his daughters, Leonor and Raquel, and the Minister of War Canelas, but no word has been received regarding them.

The acting president, Dr. Tejada Sorzano, meanwhile awaits orders from Gen. Penaranda before proclaiming a new policy. He appointed a new cabinet, however, which includes political opponents of the old administration. Among them are Ex-President Juan Bautista Saavedra, who was deported to Chile last April following an abortive rebellion, and Juan Maria Zalles, recently defeated candidate for president.

It is not known what will become of Franz Tomayo, who won the presidential election and was to have taken office next March. Other cabinet members are Tomas Manuel Elio, Carlos Victor Aramyo, tin magnate who is minister to London, and Jorge Saenz, prominent senator. Another ex-president, Hernando Siles, who also was deported recently, was appointed minister to Chile.

Paraguay Celebraies.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Nov. 29. —(AP)—Reports that Bolivian troops were retiring along all fronts in the Chaco boreal brought thousands of Paraguayans into the streets tonight celebrating what they believed was the beginning of the end of the long war. The reports were posted on bulletin boards to the accompaniment of shrieking whistles, screaming sirens and the explosion of giant firecrackers.

Unrest Flares in Uruguay.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 29.—Dispatches from Montevideo today said that considerable unrest has broken out in Uruguay following the arrest yesterday of five prominent opposition politicians.

The government is enforcing rigid telegraphic and telephonic censorship. Troops are watching the Brazilian frontier to intercept fleeing enemies of President Gabriel Terra.

BRITAIN CALLED ONLY NATION ABLE TO SAVE FRANCE FROM WAR

PARIS, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Great Britain was described today as the only nation able to save France from war by Deputy Adrian Dariac in his report on the foreign affairs budget. The deputy disagreed with the recent valuation of Russia's military aid in case of war with Germany, as expressed by Leon Archimbaud, reporter of the French budget.

Dariac said the soviet government's lack of adequate transportation facilities and its general economic condition precluded the possibility of any effective troop movement in an emergency.

"It would be superfluous to state again," Dariac wrote, "that the acts of the German government prove its firm resolve, despite threats, to rearm and prepare for war and revenge. The sole assured guarantee would be a Franco-British defensive alliance."

39 Year Old Warrior Becomes President of Mexico Today

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Gen. Lazaro Cardenas, whose knowledge of the aims of the Mexican revolution was gained at first hand during nearly 15 years of military campaigning, will take the oath of office as 45th president of Mexico tomorrow.

A veteran of the field, Cardenas also has had experience in government. He held office under the revolutionary government for five years before his election July 1 to succeed President Abelardo Rodriguez.

Virtually No Opposition.

Youngest of Mexico's presidents at 39, he comes into office at a time when the revolutionary movement, during five years of internal peace, has consolidated and strengthened its position to such an extent that it has virtually no articulate opposition. During his term, scheduled to end in 1940, he is expected to attempt to bring to fulfilment the economic and social program outlined in the six year plan of the national revolutionary [government] party.

The only serious controversial problems in sight are religious and educational questions.

Dressed in a plain black business suit in keeping with the country's "spirit of modesty and socialism," Cardenas will be sworn into office exactly at noon in the national stadium. After a brief speech, he will go directly to the national palace to receive the greetings and congratulations of the diplomatic corps.

Arrangements have been made to accommodate more than 75,000 persons in the stadium.

Two Day Program.

A two day program of athletic and social events to celebrate the inauguration began tonight with a student parade at 11 p. m.

The new president comes of Spanish and Tarascan Indian stock and was born in Jiquilpan, Michoacan. When still a boy he left to join the revolutionary movement then just starting, and he survived two serious bullet wounds and many years of fighting to rise to the governorship of Michoacan and various cabinet positions.

He resigned from the post of secretary of war more than a year ago to become the candidate of the National Revolutionary party and was elected president July 1 by the largest majority in history.

He is married and has one son, now 6 months old.

TRIESTE, Italy, Nov. 30.—[Friday] —(AP)—Sharp earth shocks, the epicenter of which was believed to be in the Balkans, were felt at 4 a. m. today in Adriatic coast cities of both Italy and Jugo-slavia. There was widespread alarm at some points, but no victims were reported at an early hour.

According to reports reaching Trieste, two particularly strong successive shocks were felt in the Italian city of Zara on the Dalmatian coast.

Many inhabitants here were awakened by the shock, which was accompanied by underground rumblings. At Ancona one of the shocks lasted 20 seconds, and the populace fled from their homes.

PHILIPPINES HIT BY NEW TYPHOON; FEAR MANY DEAD

125 Mile Storm Ravages Large Area.

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 30 [Friday].—(AP)—A Red Cross relief party left here today aboard the revenue cutter for Leyte province, center of devastation wrought by a typhoon which cut through the east central Philippines yesterday. Reports from Leyte described the storm as one of the most violent in that region in many years.

At 6 a. m. the vortex of the typhoon was reported on the Island of Mindoro, probably 100 miles south of Manila. The weather bureau said winds of 125 miles an hour were reported in Leyte.

$500,000 Loss Estimated.

The area reported enormous damage and probable loss of life. Gov. Vincente de La Cruz estimated the loss in Leyte would be $500,000.

Apparently the storm was the most violent of the five that have visited that general area in the last three months. The last typhoon, Nov. 15, killed about 140 persons and caused widespread destruction in provinces just north of Leyte. At that time the wind reached 80 miles an hour.

The storm center seemed to be passing to the south of Manila, but warning signals were displayed here as a precaution.

300 Houses Destroyed.

Initial reports of the toll included the death of one man and the destruction of 300 houses in Tacloban, capital of Leyte. Outlying areas were yet to be heard from.

The American freighter New York, with 40 men aboard, was caught off San Bernardino straits at the southeastern end of Luzon Island, but fought her way out safely after flashing distress signals. She proceeded on her way to San Francisco.

The typhoon of Oct. 16 registered a wind velocity of fifty-seven miles an hour, lashing the city of Manila. Succeeding storms spared the city.

Approximately 300 lives were lost, chiefly by drowning, in the five typhoons during the last three months. Damage to homes, crops, and public works was placed at many millions of dollars. Rehabilitation work is still going on. Emergency food and medicine is being furnished sufferers from the last three storms. Public works projects are being started to furnish employment, and the flimsy bamboo homes occupied by many residents are being rebuilt.

20 INDIANS SHOT DOWN IN FRONT OF PLACE OF WORSHIP

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 29. — (AP) —Twenty Indians in the village of Huixtla, Chiapas state, stood quietly in front of their church last Sunday and allowed themselves to be shot down by officials who sought to remove and burn images. Three men and a child were killed.

The story, as told in belated dispatches reaching the capital today, said the villagers adopted the method of passive resistance when officials tried to enter the church.

They surrounded the edifice, standing quietly and refusing to allow the men to go in. The latter finally opened fire with pistols, killing four and wounding sixteen of the defenders. The officers were forced to abandon their mission.

DIVORCED WIFE SUES FORMER STANDARD OIL EMPLOYE FOR $42,000

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Herbert Neal, who was married a year ago to Mrs. Marguerite Sawyer Hill, widow of James N. Hill, railroad executive and son of the late James J. Hill, has been sued here for $42,974 by his former wife, Mrs. Helene A. Schuyler, of Easton, Md., it was learned today. Because process servers were unable to serve him personally at his home, Supreme Court Justice McGoldrick signed an order permitting service by publication.

The former Mrs. Neal, who married the defendant on June 9, 1928, and divorced him in May, 1932, alleges that between 1928 and 1931 he borrowed $8,974 and has not repaid it. She also asks $20,000 for advances to her husband for her support and for necessaries, and for $14,000 alleged to have been paid for his board and lodging and necessaries. The defendant denies that anything is due.

The plaintif is the daughter of Mrs. Charles Leo Abry of Bruff's Island farm, Easton. Mr. Neal is a descendant of President John Adams and son of Mrs. Mary Alley Neal of New York and Westport, Conn., and the late William Robert Neal of Baltimore. He was associated with the Standard Oil company for years and has traveled extensively in China. He attended Yale university.

The present Mrs. Neal had been divorced from the late Dr. Clarence Fahnestock when she married Mr. Hill in London in 1912. Mr. Hill died at his Long Island home on July 3, 1932. Mrs. Hill's marriage to Mr. Neal took place at Elkton, Md., on Oct. 3, 1933.

THREE ARRESTED AS INTERSTATE TRUCK ROBBERS

Three men charged with having held up an interstate truck shipment of butter and kidnaping the two drivers last Tuesday in Lombard, were held at the detective bureau yesterday for the government.

They are Dominic Deciano, 32 years old, 1311 Taylor street; Patsy De Leo, 23 years old, 2912 Flournoy street, and Frank Savaglio, 30 years old, 2830 Lexington street. They were seized by a squad under Lieut. James B. Kerr early yesterday at Fillmore street and Kostner avenue. The loot, consisting of 17,000 pounds of butter, valued at $6,000, was found in a truck being driven by Savaglia and followed by the other two men in a car.

In the robbery Tuesday, Jack Craven and Thomas Kilmore, both of Springfield, Mo., drivers of a truck which was bound for Mason City, Ia., were held prisoners for several hours. The truck was found abandoned in the Fulton market district.

'BABY FACE' HUNT COWLEY'S CHOICE, ASSERTS WIDOW

Proud He Carried Out U. S. Mission.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Mrs. Lavon Chipman Cowley, pretty young widow of Samuel P. Cowley, department of justice inspector who was fatally wounded last Tuesday in the Barrington gun battle with Baby Face Nelson, declared yesterday that her husband undertook his fatal mission "purely from his own choice."

Mrs. Cowley talked of her husband and the plans for his funeral after she and her sons, John Foss, 3½ years old, and Samuel P. Jr., 8 months old, posed for photographers in her apartment at 20 East Delaware place. Serene and calm herself, she told her elder son, "J. F." or "Jeff," that he must smile for the photographers, as she did.

No Bitterness at Fate.

Asked if she felt any bitterness about the manner in which her husband met his death, she smiled and said: "No, I feel that he might have been struck by an automobile just as easily——"

"He died in the line of duty——" murmured Dr. E. B. Brossard of Washington, member of the United States tarif commission, who stood close by with Mrs. Brossard, a sister of the slain Cowley.

"He died for his country," Mrs. Brossard said.

"Do you feel any resentment that he was sent out there on——" a reporter began.

"Mr. Cowley was his own boss," the widow said with vigor. "He was not sent. He worked directly under J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the division of investigation, whom he respected highly."

Alluding to the death of Nelson, Mrs. Cowley said:

"I am thankful for that. It makes me very glad. I know that Mr. Cowley felt keenly that he would like to accomplish that job. Knowing that he is dead, I can feel sure that Mr. Cowley would not have felt that his death was so useless."

Last Hours in Hospital.

"Did he tell you when you saw him in the hospital at Elgin that he felt it was useless?" she was asked.

"No, he didn't say anything to me," she said gently. "He recognized me twice, though, that night, and smiled. That was all."

She said she had heard him speak of Nelson often.

"He's been especially anxious to—well, fill his assignment," she went on. "It's what he's been working at for the last six months here—Nelson and those other criminals.

"I had no premonition of danger. I don't think he ever felt any anxiety. I had no idea where he was the day he was killed—thought he might be down at the office. I was shopping, and when I came in the operator told me to call Elgin."

Plan Funeral in West.

Speaking of the funeral arrangements, Mrs. Cowley said hesitantly:

"I'm not sure just what they are—that is, they're not definite yet. The government is taking charge of the plans. They're having things on a larger scale than I would have had them, but I suppose it's all right. I should have had the body rest at the house of my father, John W. Chipman, in Salt Lake City. But they plan to have it in a larger place—I don't know just where."

A Salt Lake City dispatch said that Mr. Cowley would be given a civic funeral in the assembly hall on the Mormon Temple square Sunday noon, under the auspices of the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce and other civic agencies. Burial will be in City cemetery there.

Those who accompanied the body westward left last night on the Los Angeles Limited. Included, besides the widow and her children, were Dr. and Mrs. Brossard, Louis Cowley Burgner, Chicago, half brother of the dead man, and Mrs. Burgner; Joseph F. Cowley, brother, of Washington D. C., who arrived yesterday, and L. M. Chipman of the department of justice stationed at Little Rock, Ark. brother of the widow.

Funeral services for Herman E. Hollis, the other department of justice agent killed in the battle with Nelson, are to be held at 9:30 a. m. today in St. Ambrose cathedral in Des Moines. The widow, her son Laverne, 5 years old, and relatives departed with the body Wednesday night.

FIND CAR WITH BULLET HOLE.

A small sedan, with a bullet hole in the window, and stains on the floor of the rear seat, was found by police yesterday in an alley behind 2137 Walnut street. It had been reported stolen the night before by Robert Carey, Oak Park, and is believed to have been used in holdups.

on a charge of harboring fugitives wanted by the government. She disappeared, the probation was revoked, and her arrest was ordered.

A suggestion that Nelson's friends may have killed him to end his suffering from the nine wounds he received in the Barrington battle was discounted by H. H. Clegg, inspector of the department of justice sent here from Washington to carry on the hunt for Nelson's companions in the slaying of Cowley and Hollis. He was positive, he said, that the bullets of Cowley and Hollis caused the gangster's death.

Battle Not a Coincidence.

It was disclosed yesterday that there was nothing accidental, so far as Cowley and Hollis were concerned, about their meeting Tuesday with the Nelson party on the Northwest highway west of Barrington, which is 35 miles northwest of Chicago. The government men chased the gang car into Barrington and the battle took place on the highway inside the northwest limits of the suburb.

E. P. Guinane, chief of the federal bureau of investigation agents in California, revealed that he had been on Nelson's trail for months and had missed capturing him once or twice by narrow margins. The fugitive was known to have been in San Francisco, in Oakland, and in El Verano, fifty miles north of San Francisco, at various times.

Woman in Car Shields Pair.

Early Tuesday, it was reported, Guinane received information that Nelson had returned to the Chicago area and was in hiding near Barrington. Cowley and Hollis went to investigate and, if their information warranted, to organize a much larger party to capture Nelson. While on this assignment the agents saw Nelson and his companions in their automobile and immediately gave chase.

The federal men, according to witnesses, refrained from firing at once, probably because they did not wish to shoot the woman in Nelson's car. The first shots were fired by the Nelson group. At the end of the battle Nelson, the second gunman, and the woman abandoned their automobile and fled in that of the agents.

The inquest over Nelson's body will be held at 9 o'clock this morning in the morgue. Among the witnesses subpenaed are Mrs. Robert C. Fitzsimons, 5516 South Marshfield avenue, sister of the slain gangster.

DISCOUNT LETTER FOR NEW INQUIRY ON ACTOR'S DEATH

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 29.—(AP)—A mysterious letter asking the county grand jury to investigate the death of Jerry Jarnegin, husband of Irene Franklin, musical comedy actress, failed tonight to arouse much official curiosity. Unless new evidence is received, said Dr. John P. Buckley, jury foreman, an investigation will not be undertaken.

Dr. Buckley indicated the information in the letter purporting to cast doubt on the conclusion that the actor-song writer killed himself did not carry sufficient weight to warant delving into the case.

Previously a member of the jury's criminal complaints committee said the letter touched upon "peculiar angles" of Jarnegin's death, which broke up a gay dinner party being given by Miss Franklin in their home three months ago.

The story then was that Miss Franklin was entertaining dinner guests and became puzzled by Jarnegin's failure to join them. She said she entered an adjoining room and found his body slumped over a chair. The pistol later was found by the police on a chair six feet from where the body lay.

8 TO 10 BILLION TO BE ASKED OF NEXT CONGRESS

Over Half Scheduled for Emergency Use.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt will have to ask congress for 8 to 10 billion dollars to continue his recovery program, but he will not suggest any additional taxes.

These tentative facts about the administration's plans for the 1935-'36 fiscal year were disclosed here today, and at the same time it was definitly established that at least two sections out of the three which make up the budget have already been whipped into shape. They will not be disclosed officially until the President reads his budget message to congress early in January.

Two Sections Completed.

The two sections of the budget which are already completed are those dealing with estimated revenues and with the expenses for routine government functions. The third section, which will cover the important New Deal emergency expenditures, is not yet finally agreed upon.

The budget for ordinary government operations is understood to have been set already at approximately 3 billion dollars. Although they are still awaiting final determination, the President's emergency expenses are expected to amount to something between 4½ and 7 billions, making the grand total fall roughly between 7½ and 10 billions.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. approved the revenue section of the budget, showing estimated tax receipts of more than 3½ billion in 1935-'36, before leaving yesterday for a Thanksgiving holiday at his New York farm. The budget bureau has virtually completed compilation of the routine federal costs.

President Will Decide.

It remains for the President himself to decide finally on emergency outlays. He is expected to do so after a series of important conferences this week-end and early next week. During that period he is calling to Warm Springs the three key men in the emergency spending problem—Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes, and Secretary Morgenthau.

Although Mr. Roosevelt, according to present indications, will have to ask for appropriations of 8 or 10 billions, it is not possible to say how large a deficit he will forecast for the 1934-'35 fiscal year. Much of the money which he will seek from congress probably will be spent for relief before the present fiscal year closes on June 30 and, therefore, will go into this fiscal year's deficit instead of next fiscal year's.

Billions for Public Works.

Despite the fact that the President has not yet decided on emergency outlays, preliminary indications make it possible to forecast roughly the sum which he will seek. The administration is clinging to its plan for putting all able bodied persons now on relief to work on government projects if private employment is not available. To achieve this goal, Public Works Administrator Ickes has said, would take between 5 and 6 billion dollars.

On the revenue side of the budget, expected to be estimated at something over 3½ billions for the 1934-'35 year, the treasury not only is refraining from any new tax suggestions but is not predicting increased collections on the basis of improved business. The revenue estimates, in order to be conservative, are founded on existing business conditions even though officials hope for better pickings next year.

The "Indians" were two colored robbers who tried to take Burke's turkey. After a struggle Burke fled, still clutching the bird, leaving a handful of feathers to the baffled bandits.

550,000 MORE WORKLESS NOW THAN LAST YEAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—The monthly statement on unemployment, issued today by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, says the country is entering the winter with 550,000 more men out of work than it had this time last year.

The labor federation estimates the total number unemployed in industry during October at 10,671,000, as compared with 10,122,000 in October of 1933.

"Business activity in October this year was 2.6 per cent below last year, and this accounts partly for the increase in unemployment," says the statement. "Partly, however, it is due to the fact that the effort to increase employment in industry is not so general as it was at this time last year."

U. S. Gets Same Figures.

The figures of the American Federation of Labor, substantiated by estimates made by the bureau of labor statistics, department of labor, showing that while employment in the manufacturing industries increased 3.7 per cent from September to October, it was still 1.3 per cent below the level of October, 1933. The factory employment index, taking 1923-1925 as a base, was 78.6, as against 79.9 in October, 1933, and the pay roll index was 60.7 compared with 62.9 in October, 1933.

Mr. Green's statement said the relief problem this winter would be the most serious ever faced by the country. This conclusion was based on the increase in part time work, as well as the increase in unemployment, and the depletion of reserves among those who have been out of work for some time.

More Part Time Work.

Green's statement said the trade union unemployment figures for the first half of November showed a greater degree of part time work than at any time in the history of the federation's figures. This was true in building, water transportation, theaters and all the manufacturing groups, the statement said.

The number of jobs on federal emergency work was estimated by the labor federation at 508,000 on public works projects, 362,000 in the CCC, and an average of 1,392,000 on the work relief projects of the FERA.

The federation's estimates, like those of the labor department, showed a slight increase in employment from September to October. The total out of work in September was 10,950,000 and this had decreased to 10,671,000 in October.

Robbers Fracture Skull of Mail Order Official

John Kierzkowski, 45 years old, 2653 North Parkside avenue, manager of a mail order company, incurred a fracture of the skull last night when he was beaten by robbers. The attack occurred near Kierzkowski's home. He staggered inside and, after telling his wife what had happened, fell unconscious. Police took him to the county hospital.

CROW INDIANS GET BUFFALOES TO STOCK AREA

Crow Agency, Mont., Nov. 29.—(AP)—To the Crow Indians of southeastern Montana and northeastern Wyoming this Thanksgiving day bore promise that their hunting grounds, one populous with wild game, may furnish their future Thanksgiving dinners.

Out of neighboring Yellowstone Park there moved the first consignment of 50 buffalo cows and four bulls given the tribe by the government from the great bison herd of the National Park.

Unrestricted as in the park, the buffalo will roam at large on the Crow reservation, bringing hopes to Robert Yellowtail, agency superintendent, and wrinkled braves of his tribe that some day there will be a great herd providing food and hides for his people.

Yellowtail plans later to stock the reservation with moose and wild turkeys.

CHRISTMAS SEAL CAMPAIGN GIVEN HORNER SUPPORT

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Opening the sale of Christmas seals, the proceeds of which are used in the prevention of tuberculosis, Gov. Horner today said the control program for the disease in Illinois has reached a critical state.

"Reports given me within the last week indicate," he said, "that the prevalence of tuberculosis is on the increase after a consistent and steady decline for nearly a decade. The same reports show that the number of nurses employed in the downstate campaign against the disease is now only about one-half the number so employed three years ago. Other control procedures had to be reduced in like proportion.

"When efforts at control are withdrawn or weakened the disease begins to spread again. We have the choice of supporting preventive programs on the one hand or of suffering the losses from more tuberculosis on the other. There is no middle ground. There is no escape from the cost of this disease. We must provide in advance for prevention, which is cheaper and more humanitarian, or pay later at the destructive rate exacted by tuberculosis.

"It is estimated that preventive measures have saved from tuberculosis more than 50,000 lives since 1920 in Illinois alone. We must not lose ground."

LARGER STATES CARRY SOUTH'S RELIEF BURDENS

Chief Taxpayers Get Less in Proportion.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—The states which pay the smallest percentages of internal revenue into the national treasury have been relying on the federal government to bear the greatest percentages of their total relief burden, and vice versa. With a national average of 62.8 per cent, the share of total relief costs borne by the federal government has varied from a minimum of 28.9 per cent in Massachusetts, to 99.4 per cent in South Carolina and Mississippi.

These figures were obtained today from the Federal Emergency Relief administration, which also announced allocations of relief for December totaling $130,345,411. Of the December allotment, $11,543,855 goes to Illinois.

Southern States Pay Little.

Most of the southern states, which pay very little into the internal revenues, have been relying almost entirely upon the federal government for their relief costs. Outstanding examples, as shown by tabulations of the federal government's share of relief from Jan. 1, 1933, to July 1, 1934, are South Carolina, 99.4 per cent; Arkansas, 98.6; Georgia, 94.7; Alabama, 96.3; Louisiana, 98.5; Florida, 96.2; Mississippi, 99.4; North Carolina, 92.6; Tennessee, 96.2, and West Virginia, 94.1.

On Sept. 28, Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins announced that these states had not borne their share of the relief burden. He undertook studies to determine their ability to pay.

States Told to Do More.

At the same time, state authorities were warned that federal contributions would be curtailed unless state provision was made to bear a greater percentage of the cost. Since then Mr. Hopkins has reported favorable action in general on the part of the niggardly states, but has refused to single out individual states he still regards as slacking.

Officials admitted today that the percentage tabulations would show little change if the federal allotments since July 1 were included. Figures on the relief costs now being carried by the backward states, or their political subdivisions, are not available, but the allocations of federal funds showed no material decline over previous monthly grants.

As compared with the southern states, the low revenue producers whose relief burdens have been carried almost entirely by the federal government, the state of New York, first in the payment of internal revenue, has relied on the government for only 45.4 per cent of its relief costs. Other high revenue producers and their share of relief borne by the federal government are Illinois, 67.1 per cent; Pennsylvania, 58.8; Ohio, 63; Michigan, 74.4; New Jersey, 45.5, and Massachusetts, 25.5.

Taxes, Relief Compared.

A comparison of the tables showing total federal relief allocations from May 22, 1933, when the Federal Emergency Relief administration took over the distribution of cash from the RFC through Oct. 31, 1934, with total internal revenue paid for the 1934 fiscal year, discloses that relief grants, in many cases, have been several hundred per cent higher than the taxes paid into the federal treasury. Conversely, the relief grants to leading northern and eastern states have been proportionately lower than taxes collected.

The state of Alabama, for example, paid internal revenue of $3,829,578 in the 1934 fiscal year and received relief grants of $27,000,000 from May 22, 1933, to Nov. 1, 1934; Mississippi paid out $1,504,000 and received $19,473,000; South Carolina paid out $3,274,000 and received $20,000,000.

New York paid a total of 529 millions in internal revenue and received $161,163,000 in relief; Illinois paid out $162,086,000 and received $85,238,000; Pennsylvania paid out $183,687,000 and received $125,634,000; Massachusetts paid out $76,107,000 and received $49,019,000.

Comparison by States.

The following table shows the internal revenue payments [1934 fiscal year ending June 30, 1935] and federal relief grants [May 22, 1933, to Nov. 1, 1934] by states:

State—	Payments by states.	Relief received.
Alabama	$ 3,829,000	$ 27,003,000
Arizona	1,037,000	8,610,000
Arkansas	2,380,000	21,860,000

TWO STATES' POLICE RUSH PNEUMONIA SERUM TO PATIENT

Salisbury, Md., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Pennsylvania and Delaware state police today joined in a race with death. They helped to speed anti-pneumonia serum from Philadelphia to the Peninsula General hospital here for young Paul E. Watson Jr., who was dying. He is the son of a local banker.

The serum was ordered by telephone early this morning. The Pennsylvania motorcycle police guard, sirens screaming through the darkness, escorted the messenger from the Philadelphia laboratory to Tremont, Del. There the Delaware guard took over the race, bringing the messenger down through the eastern shore.

The serum arrived before dawn and soon was administered to the patient. The patient still was alive late today.

MUST CREATE CAPITAL FUNDS, EZEKIEL ASSERTS

New Dealer Talks on "Fuller Life."

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—(AP)—A moderately full life under American conditions would cost $2,500 per family a year.

That was the estimate presented today to the National Council of Teachers of English by Dr. Mordecai Ekekiel, economic adviser for the department of agriculture.

Dr. Ezekiel added that in 1929 only 71 per cent of American families received less than that amount and certain facts seemed to support the view that the problem of more abundant living would be solved if there was a more uniform distribution of income.

"For example, the lower 60 per cent of the families in 1929 received only one-fourth of the total income, while the upper 1.2 per cent received another fourth," he said.

"If it were possible to average these two groups directly, the income of millions of families would be greatly increased. The problem cannot be solved as simply as that, however.

"A large part of the income of the higher income groups is invested and so used for the creation of such capital.

"Even if some system were worked out for more equal incomes it would still be necessary to continue to divert a considerable part of our annual production to the creation of capital."

4 GERMAN REDS GET DEATH FOR STEALING GRAIN

NOVOSIBIRSK, U. S. S. R., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Four members of the German collective farm "Red front," which has completed only 40 per cent of its scheduled grain production quota, were sentenced to death today by the Western Siberian Circuit court.

The men were convicted of stealing grain belonging to the collective and abetting propaganda against the government's grain collections.

Many Discharged.

TASHKENT, U. S. S. R., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Wholesale discharge of members of district and regional committees of the communist party and members of political sections on state farms and in tractor stations was inaugurated today by the communist central committee of Uzbekistan in a war against kulak sabotage of the cotton crop.

Many officials were ordered to trial for criminal neglect of their duties and others were expelled from the communist party.

FEDERAL COUPONS GIVEN

PRIVATE FUNDS SOUGHT BY NEW HOUSING RULES

U. S. Ready to Back All Loans to Full Amount.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Private capital was invited by the Federal Housing administration today to step into the low cost urban housing picture with the inducement of federal insurance of mortgages up to the full cost of the buildings.

The invitation took the form of a new set of regulations for insurance on such projects, issued by James A. Moffett, housing administrator. The move generally was interpreted as further clarifying the housing situation over which Moffett and Secretary Ickes clashed last week.

Moffett's rules definitly defined the low cost housing field into which he hopes to bring private capital. President Roosevelt yesterday made clear that the government intended to help those whose pocketbooks were too slim to build their own homes.

The chief executive's announcement was interpreted to mean, however, that the federal funds would not be thrown into competition with private capital. Thus both the Ickes and Moffett plans would be kept from colliding.

The housing administration's announcement today held out the hope, in some instances, of full insurance of mortgages on the second of the two classes of property with which it deals—namely, "properties comprised in low cost housing projects occupied by a large number of family units, in either one building or a group of buildings."

Revises Former Ruling.

Previously the housing administration had issued regulations on "properties occupied by one to four family dwellings," provided insurance up to 80 per cent of the value of property on mortgages not exceeding $16,000.

"Long time mortgage loans on low cost housing projects," the housing administration statement said today, "up to the full value of the buildings, exclusive of the land, which must be unencumbered, may be insured under section 207. . . .

"Capitalization of low cost projects is limited to actual investment by the stockholders. On this they may receive regular annual dividends not to exceed 6 per cent and special disbursements not to exceed 2½ per cent a year, provided an amount equal to that paid in such special disbursements is returned to the tenants in the form of rebates or rent.

Provides for Later Funds.

"Earnings in excess of regular 6 per cent dividends and 2½ per cent special disbursements to stockholders and tenants must under the rules governing insured mortgages be allowed to accumulate for distribution to the tenants at such times and in such amounts as the administrator in his discretion shall determine."

It was further provided that no capital stock can be retired during the lifetime of the mortgage, which may run up to 20 years.

The low cost housing corporations may be financed either by private capital or by municipalities or states or the federal government. Rents, charges, capital structure, rate of return, and methods of operation may be regulated by the administrator.

No "Advisers" Need Apply.

"No applicant or proposed applicant need be represented by professional advisers or by any Washington representatives and any statements to the contrary should be ignored," the statement continued. "The payment by any applicant to any such adviser or representative of any fee or commission upon a contingent basis for services in connection with the submission of its application is disapproved."

Persons or groups contemplating development of low cost projects will deal directly with the Washington offices of the administration. Informal applications, it was stated, are invited as well as formal ones.

To obtain insurance in excess of 80 per cent of its value, it was stated, a property must be exceptionally well located, the corporation must have at least 3 per cent working capital and an equity in the completed property of at least the value of the land.

Basis for the Ratings.

The basic test for determining the insurability of a mortgage, it was added, will be the social and economic soundness of the project rated on the following basis:

Social and economic trends of the community as a whole and of the neighborhood in which the property is located.

Satisfactory corporate structure and other legal considerations.

Physical structure of the building or buildings.

Design and livability of structures.

Pattern of mortgage, value of project, capital structure, probable income and expense, credit of borrower, method of financing.

Management, supervision and accounting of project after completion.

Present and probable taxes and bonded debt of the community in which the project is located, probable trend of zoning legislation and legislation affecting the rights and remedies of debtors and creditors also will be considered.

SEIZE THIRTEEN IN LOS ANGELES TROLLEY STRIKE

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Authorities employed stern measures tonight to stamp out vandalism and avert the possibility of physical violence to passengers in the Los Angeles street car strike.

Thirteen persons were arrested charged with various offenses in connection with strike disorders. Five persons were treated for injuries received when cars were showered with rocks.

Thomas J. Kelly, 45, was booked on suspicion of kidnaping, robbery, and assault with a deadly weapon.

Kelly is accused of participating in the overturning of a street car last night. Police said strikers who tipped over the car made their escape in an automobile bearing Kelly's license plates.

ROOSEVELT HOST AT THANKSGIVING HOSPITAL FEAST

12 Children Given Places at His Table.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt poised a fork above the steaming brown breast of a 40 pound turkey this evening at the head table in Georgia hall, the administration building of the Warm Springs Foundation for infantile paralysis sufferers. Twelve round eyed children watched gravy spurt as a deft knife bit into the bird.

A drumstick big enough to crack down all NRA rebels was plumped onto the plate of Billy Tracey, 14 year old son of Assistant State's Attorney Philip Tracey of Cook county. Billy was the proudest of the twelve youthful patients, six boys and six girls, chosen by lot to sit at the presidential table.

The spacious dining hall was thronged. More than 600 patients, staf members and visitors eagerly followed the gay banter and childish laughter at the head table.

Many Recall Tiny Tim.

There were many among the onlookers who recalled with moist eyes Tiny Tim of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" and repeated his words, "God bless us one and all."

The dinner was the annual Founder's day feast in honor of the colony's most distinguished patient and greatest benefactor.

Here the President is honored not only because he is the chief executive but as a neighbor whose cheerful fight against a grim affliction has brightened gloomy hours of his dearest fellow.

The President devoted his entire day to the foundation. In the afternoon he dedicated two new units and a colonade behind Georgia hall. One of the units was christened Builders' hall in a sweeping memorial to all who have aided the foundation, and the other Kress hall, to mark the benefactions of a southern store magnate.

At the conclusion of the Thanksgiving day feast short speeches were made by the trustees of the foundation, including Henry Pope of Chicago. All paid tribute to the founder of the colony.

It's Tenth Anniversary.

President Roosevelt recalled the dinner as marking the tenth anniversary of his arrival at Warm Springs as almost the first patient of its waters. He came to rest after the campaign of 1924 which began with the grueling three week Democratic convention in New York.

In tracing the growth of the foundation step by step, he said:

"I hope the Warm Springs family will grow even larger year by year. We here under medical care are only a tiny fraction of the people throughout the land who have infantile paralysis.

"Let us dedicate ourselves to spread the knowledge of the treatments being so successfully carried out. We are pioneers setting an example for a great many to carry out through the land. The fight has but begun."

The gigantic turkey at the head table, which was a sorry looking fowl at the conclusion of the dinner, was the gift of Mrs. Eliza F. Manry, 97 years old, of Lamar county, Georgia. Mrs. Manry has provided a turkey for the foundation dinner for several years. Four other birds shipped to the President also were consumed among others by the guests.

Federal Housing Administrator James A. Moffett arrived during the day to confer with the President on his program for providing low cost housing through mortgage insurance. The President laughingly declared that the orders of the day were "no business." Mr. Moffett will stay over until tomorrow for a conference.

COLDS

Go Thru 3 Stages

—and They're Far Easier Relieved in the First than in the Second or Third!

A cold ordinarily goes through 3 stages; the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. The first stage is the time to "nail" a cold.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment for colds. It is expressly a cold remedy and not a preparation good for half a dozen other things as well. It is direct and internal, which is what a cold, an internal infection, requires. It is also complete—it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is inviting trouble. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and refuse a substitute.

BUSINESS HEADS TAKING LEAD ON JOB INSURANCE

Muster Forces to Confer with U. S. Officials.

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—A group of leading industrialists is mustering forces to align itself with administration officials during the coming session of congress in shaping an unemployment insurance program, it was learned tonight from authoritative sources.

Their primary purpose, one of the group disclosed, is to cooperate in developing a program based on sound principles, with employers taking the lead. Another vital consideration however, was reported to be that jockying in congressional committees and on the floor might produce a measure detrimental to business interests.

Make Intensive Study.

These business executives, contending that unemployment insurance could best be handled through an understanding between employer and employé, have been studying the question intensively for the last week, reviewing ground covered in previous analyses.

With this information and their own ideas on the subject, they were represented as ready to go to Washington and take the initiative in the program, working out their plan under principles of social relief laid down by President Roosevelt.

Consultation with social relief experts by these industrialists has developed a realization of the immensity of the task involved in instituting unemployment payments on a national scale, it was indicated.

Major Problems Arise.

Major questions with which they have come to grips, it was learned, included:

1. Whether insurance reserves should be set up on a state or industry basis?

2. If on a state basis, would a state with little unemployment pay out funds to states where idleness is great?

3. Similary, on an industry reserve basis, would there be payments from low unemployment lines into those where relatively more workers are not on the job?

One program advanced proposed allowing certain industries to establish their own plans, to administer them separately and to pay their own way but it was argued that industries with low unemployment ratios would prefer to set up their own reserves and force lines with high unemployment rates to rely on state funds when their own reserves run low.

Seek to Devise Check.

Experts also are seeking to devise a check against an industry or state with high seasonal unemployment from taking reserves built up by states or industries in which the working ratio is more stable.

A general lack of information on unemployment itself was termed a stumbling block for the analysts. Such questions as an accurate number of the jobless, the length of time they have been out of work, reasons for their being unable to work and the type of jobs for which they are suited cannot be satisfactorily answered.

Administration costs have presented another problem to the investigators. Figures on England's experience showed that from 8.4 to 23 per cent of the total paid in went for expenses. Experts have asserted there is no definite means for determining in advance what any plan adopted would cost to administer.

One authority declared that five years' experience would be required to solve the major questions involved in any program.

TWO SHOT AFTER QUARREL OVER HOLIDAY WINE

When Joseph and William Piar, brothers, of 1847 Clybourn avenue, returned home early yesterday after an evening out, they found that most of their supply of Thanksgiving wine had disappeared. They accused William O'Connell, their brother-in-law of having treated himself and a visitor at the house, Clyde Harrison, 2025 Osgood street, too liberally. Angered O'Connell drew a pistol and fired two shots at the Piar brothers. One bullet passed through William Piar's right arm and struck Harrison in the left wrist. O'Connell disappeared.

Democrats Assure Kaindl of County Recorder Post

BY PARKE BROWN.

Real Thanksgiving news added to the holiday cheer of two Democratic households yesterday. Edward J. Kaindl learned that he had been definitly slated to become Cook county recorder, and Louis Rixmann was assured that he will be appointed city collector.

The two decisions were cast at a conference of the leaders of the Democratic organization held in connection with plans for changes that are to follow the inauguration Monday of the winners in the election on Nov. 6.

Three Will Move Up.

Before he takes over the presidency of the county board, Clayton F. Smith will resign as county recorder. That vacancy is filled by the board, and he will join in the board's action carrying out the wish of the organization that Kaindl be chosen for the place. Kaindl now holds the office of city collector. He will resign from that post, and at the next council meeting, Dec. 12, Mayor Kelly will appoint Rixmann as collector.

Kaindl was nominated for city treasurer on the Cermak ticket in 1931, but, supposedly because the Cermak-Kaindl combination of names was not pleasing to some voters, was defeated. Following the April election, Mayor Cermak appointed him to the collector's office. He previously had served 14 years as alderman of the 34th ward. He is of German descent.

Rixmann Committee's Envoy.

Rixmann is the county central committee representative from the 50th ward, agreed upon by the downtown chiefs and the Democratic leaders in the ward to succeed Joseph H. Voss in 1932. Rixmann was elected that year and was reëlected last April.

The two decisions terminated the chief guessing contest that followed the election early this month. There were a number of aspirants who hoped for the recorder's job, which carries with it not only the completion of the two years remaining of Smith's term but considerable assurance of renomination in 1936.

Score Get New Offices.

Plans for the triumphant induction on Monday of an even score of Democrats into local offices new to them, although most of the individuals are not new to public office, are being completed rapidly. In addition there are fifteen other Democrats whose reëlection provides cause for flowers and celebration although to a somewhat less demonstrative extent.

So numerous will be the celebrations that difficulty has been found in avoiding conflicts between some of the most important ones in connection with which it is expected real ceremonies will be held. This group includes the following men entering new offices:

Robert M. Sweitzer, county treasurer.
Michael J. Flynn, county clerk.
John Toman, sherif.
Thomas J. Bowler, Criminal court clerk.
John S. Clark, county assessor.
Emmett Whealan, board of tax appeals.
Clayton F. Smith, president county board.

Install Seven Judges.

In addition the Democrats will install two new members of the sanitary district board, four new county commissioners, and seven new municipal judges.

The Republicans aren't left entirely out in the cold so far as new officials are concerned, but they will have to limit their jubilation to the installation of three new county commissioners from the country towns, William N. Erickson, Evanston; H. Wallace Caldwell, Oak Park, and Carl J. Carlson, Blue Island. The G. O. P. at least made a clean sweep of five of the places from the suburban section, two present commissioners, William Busse and George Miller, being reëlected.

POLICE "MUSS UP" KIN OF SLAIN THUG; HELD IN BOGUS BILL CASE

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Reputedly "mussed up" in line with Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine's ideas of how police characters should be taken into custody, Angelo Yale, brother of the late Frankie Yale, gangster, was held tonight on a federal charge of passing counterfeit money.

It was explained that Yale, arrested 23 times in the last dozen years but convicted only once, became abusive when three detectives accosted him and it was necessary to subdue him.

There was no official explanation of how he was subdued, but there was a report he might need some new teeth.

Yale and a companion, James Mabrino, were arrested following upon reports of the passing of $20 counterfeit bills in Wallabout market. They denied their guilt. Yale, 33, gave his occupation as "undertaker."

The two will be arraigned tomorrow before a United States commissioner.

ONE DIES; 3 HURT IN CRASH.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Kenneth Smoot, 23, of Mahomet, Ill., was killed and three companions seriously injured late last night when the car in which they were riding struck the side of a freight train here.

SLOW GAIN MADE BY SEYFERLICH IN INFECTION FIGHT

Fire Commissioner Arthur Seyferlich was reported slowly improving last night in the Henrotin hospital, where he is fighting a gangrenous condition of the foot. A bulletin to this effect was issued by Dr. Stephen K. Livingston, who declared that temporarily visitors would be barred from the patient's room.

When the fire commissioner was told that he had a "fighting chance" to live he said that was all he wanted and that he was thankful for it. Mrs. Seyferlich and a son, Arthur Jr., said they were happy to get the news on Thanksgiving day.

Physicians several days ago had said that Commissioner Seyferlich had not long to live because he would not consent to an amputation of his foot. School children and other persons have showered the fire official's room with letters and telegrams expressing hope for his recovery.

P

Men and women who work in offices, getting little exercise, or outdoor life, frequently have "slow stomach." Nothing really wrong, a stomach just as strong as the more active man or woman, just slow digestion accompanied by sourness, gas, even acute pains.

This is rarely a serious condition, because it is easily remedied. Years ago, a man named Pape discovered a simple way to relieve this acid indigestion. Diapepsin, in tablets that are eaten just like candy, has brought happiness to many who thought they had a "weak stomach." If you have distress after dinner, any acid discomfort at all, your stomach may be slow in emptying. If you will relieve this condition with Pape's Diapepsin, you can eat in greater comfort—that's sure. Mr. Pape's discovery has ended "food fear" for many who used to suffer severely.

Try it! Carry the pocket tin and take a tablet or two after meals until your digestion is improved and all that sourness is gone. Pape's Diapepsin; remember the name.

With the championship prep school football game tomorrow, and the stage and radio show Dec. 19 already apparent financial successes, it was estimated yesterday that some $200,000 will be raised in Chicago's own Christmas benefit, sponsored by Mayor Kelly for 50,000 needy children of the city.

The benefit show, to be held at the Chicago Stadium, has the support of every theatrical and amusement group in the city, Mayor Kelly declared, and practically every leading celebrity of stage, screen, and radio in Chicago has volunteered to add his talent to the occasion.

NAZIS MOVE TO REFORM NATION'S BANKING SYSTEM

Plan Body to Control All Credit Channels.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—The government's banking committee of industry today announced a program for a sweeping reform of Germany's banking system. The program was embodied in a report submitted to Chancellor Adolf Hitler by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the reichsbank and head of the committee.

Most drastic of the recommendations, which were based on the advice of 123 financial experts, is the proposed establishment of a control board headed by Dr. Schacht with full power to govern "all parts of the money and credit system."

Need Responsive Market.

The kernel of any banking reorganization, Dr. Schacht's report added, must be a money and capital market responsive to the requirements of the Nazi state. An unified government control is essential in the achievement of such a goal, the statement asserted.

Besides the setting up of a credit control office, the report made the following recommendations:

All credit institutes and their branches must obtain official recognition. Such terms as "bank," "banker," and "savings bank" must be legally protected.

Adequate Liquidity.

Adequate liquidity must be assured. A minimum quota must be fixed of liquid assets to be held. The money market and capital market must be separated. The savings business must be kept distinct from other banking business.

Nationalization of the credit system is rejected in favor of supervision. The control office, however, must be empowered to fix the highest limit of credits for individual institutes. All institutes must publish frequent reports and the bigger institutes must issue monthly returns.

NAZIS FINE YANK FOR SENDING $1 HOME FOR XMAS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—An American inclosed a dollar bill in a letter to his family at home. In the letter he requested members of his family to buy candy for Christmas. Today he was ordered to go to the police station in Berlin where he was charged with violating the currency regulations.

The American proved he brought the dollar bill from the United States and authorities agreed to waive their right to arrest him. They confiscated the dollar bill and fined him 3 marks, which amounts to more than a dollar. They warned him of serious consequences if he again violated the German laws.

The incident showed that authorities are opening letters before they leave the country.

PICK COMMITTEE FOR NEW SUBWAY PROJECT TODAY

Plan to Connect 22d St. and Chicago Ave.

A movement is on foot for a municipally owned subway under State street between Chicago avenue and 22d street. This was disclosed yesterday by Ald. James R. Quinn [50th], chairman of the city council local transportation committee, who said that today he would name a subcommittee to start immediately on the task of drafting a new traction ordinance.

According to Quinn, it is hoped to finance the subway with federal funds, probably from the Public Works administration, although fiscal details have not been completed.

Fight to End Congestion.

"This subway plan is the latest one proposed to solve Chicago's loop transportation problem," said Quinn. "It will be made the subject of extensive study by the new subcommittee. If the plan is successful congestion will be relieved and trafic in all forms will be speeded up considerably."

Another important factor in the program will be a self-supporting feature of the subway. The city would own the tube and the street car and elevated companies would pay rent.

Would Remove Elevated.

In addition the elevated structures in the loop would be removed, Quinn said. The alderman added that his subcommittee, charged with the responsibility of working out the subway plan, would consist of two aldermen each from the north, south, and west sides of the city.

CO-ED FOUND IN TUB WITH BLAZING TOWELS OVER HER BODY; DIES

Denton, Tex., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Helen Gardner, 18 year old co-ed, died tonight from burns seemingly self-inflicted.

Miss Gardner, junior student at North Texas State Teachers college, was today in the bathroom of the home of Mrs. M. C. Henry, where she boarded.

Mrs. Henry said the girl was lying in a bath tub with flaming towels over her nude body. The towels appeared to have been soaked in some inflammable fluid.

Hospital attendants found slight cuts on both of the co-ed's wrists.

Mrs. Henry heard the girl screaming and rushed to the bathroom, but found the door locked from the inside. It was necessary to force the door.

STOCK SHOW'S DIRECTORS HOLD PREVIEW TODAY

Gates Open to the Public Tomorrow Morning.

The thirty-fifth annual International Live Stock exposition will be unofficially opened today in the new $1,250,000 amphitheater at the Union stockyards. The two events of the day will be a noncollegiate students' judging contest and a preview of the 12,500 purebred exhibits by the exposition directors. Contestants in the judging will be high school and grammar school pupils from eighteen states.

At 8 o'clock tomorrow morning the gates of the exposition will be opened to the general public and at 8 o'clock tomorrow night Mayor Kelly will speak in ceremonies dedicating the new amphitheater, built to replace the exposition hall destroyed in the stockyards fire of last May.

Seats on Sale Today.

Reserved seats for the exposition will go on sale in the loop this morning, B. H. Heide, manager of the show, said.

Yesterday workmen at the exposition hall were busy installing a trainload of prize winning exhibits from the Royal Winter Agricultural fair just closed at Toronto. In addition the last of 5,000 samples of hay and grain to be shown at the International Hay and Grain show, which is held in conjunction with the live stock exposition, were assigned space. More than 1,000 of the wheat, oats, barley, and alfalfa specimens to be shown are entered by Canadian growers.

Past Winners to Compete.

Fifty-four boys are expected to compete in the stock judging contests today. Indiana, winner of the contest last year, and West Virginia, 1932 winner, have entered teams. Illinois will be represented by the 4-H club team from Mendon.

The intercollegiate judging contest will open tomorrow with twenty-three schools entered, including the Ontario Agricultural college at Guelph. A junior live stock show will also begin tomorrow, with Walter Biggar, cattle expert from Delbeattle, Scotland, selecting the junior grand champion steer. The winning junior steer will be eligible for the senior contest, which Biggar will also judge.

Horse Show Tomorrow.

Another highlight of tomorrow's program will be the first of the evening horse shows, open to exhibitors residing in Chicago and suburbs. Horses from more than forty stables are entered, including animals owned by Dr. C. H. Bramwell, N. L. Litchfield, Mrs. John R. Thompson Jr., Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, Happy Way farm, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Burke. There will be a polo game between the Shamrocks of the 124th field artillery and a team representing Fort Sheridan.

The advance guard of 4-H club boys and girls from forty-four states is expected to arrive tomorrow.

Stephen C. Simms, director of the Field museum, yesterday announced that the museum is preparing for a large influx of stock show visitors to the Herbert Haseltine exhibit of prize domestic animals of Great Britain, opened in the museum last summer.

Students May Publish Own Paper in Row Over Huey's Gag

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 29.—(AP)—"Reveille" went unanswered at Louisiana State university today and there were prospects students may publish and finance an independent newspaper to escape Senator Huey Long's dictatorship over the university press.

The editorial staf of the Reveille—seven students—had resigned rather than submit the columns of the paper to a faculty censorship invoked to prevent criticism of Long.

Huey Makes Self Scarce.

The senator himself failed to answer "Reveille." He was nowhere in the front ranks of the controversy raging among students of the school of journalism who demanded they be allowed freedom of speech and print or they would permanently desert the college publication.

Samuel A. Montague, president of the journalism students, and one of twenty-six suspended for protesting the "gag" on the paper, said he had been told by Dr. J. M. Smith, president of the university, that he would have no objection if the students published an independent newspaper.

Holidays Quiet Campus.

The Thanksgiving holidays threw a quietus over a ruffled campus situation which followed upon the closing of the paper and a strike of the more than 400 students of the journalism school.

Dr. Smith also issued an ultimatum. He publicly told the board of supervisors of the college, of which Senator Long is one, that the board either would back him up in his actions to preserve a "principle" in the suspensions, or the university could "get another president."

Long said that "maybe Dr. Smith got impatient" at the overcrowded conditions at L. S. U., but the senator so far has given no indication of what hand he will play in the campus revolt.

Woman, 80, Dies Helping Cook Thanksgiving Meal

The Men's Store
Monroe at Wabash

For your convenience, salesmen in the Men's Store are at liberty to go wherever the ideas on your men's list lead them. We believe this roaming method will save your time and your patience. A salesman who helps you in the selection of neckties can also help you in the selection of shirts, socks, and so on down the list.

The Men's Store, housing gift ideas running well into the several hundreds, shows you here a few that will go a long way to soothing if not relieving you entirely of the Christmas list jitters.

At $1
When it comes to ties we have somewhat of a reputation for developing unusual and very wearable ideas in patterns, designs, weaves and color tones. It's one of the reason's why these diagonal stripes and all-over pattern ties at $1 smack of neckwear that's associated more often than not with higher prices.

A couple of weeks ago we opened our new $2 shirt shop and it has been a success from the start. It has proved a haven for men who wanted color and pattern in their shirts as well as for those who go in for white. In the $2 shirt shop you'll find just about everything you'll think he'll like in the way of fabric, style and pattern.

50c Pair
As man to woman, we don't quite understand why hosiery doesn't get at Christmas time the consideration it deserves—if you've given hosiery before, these will interest you. If you're pioneering, you couldn't start on a better selection of patterns or nicer quality than these of silk and silk-and-lisle mixed.

$2.50
So that you won't go wrong should you decide on gloves, we picked out the two favorites—Pigskin in natural color and a soft quality grey mocha—both come in slip-on and clasp wrist styles.

At $15
This is neither the most nor the least expensive robe we have, but for getting across the impression that you went to great lengths to renew his faith in Santa Claus this robe has it on any we've seen at $15—it's lined throughout with silk and without conceding one point of comfort retains every earmark of luxury.

$3.65 Pair
If his slippers came from the Men's Store last Christmas, he won't be needing another pair yet, so you can skip it—but if they didn't and the pair he has are run down at the heels, you'd do well to take these kid leather operas seriously. They have hand turned soles—the decoration you see is morocco underlay. In black, brown, blue, red, green and wine.

THE HEAT IN JAPAN.

Gen. Araki, supreme war counselor, advised the Japanese people in a broadcast that their interests required the denouncing of international agreements and treaties, including, of course, the naval ratios and the nonaggression agreement. He says the restrictions were virtually forced upon Japan and that rejection of them is necessary to national interests and dignity.

There will be considerable realistic agreement with him in America that the reconciliation of differences by international treaty has been tried without the success anticipated. The agreements, without controling national action, have added to international complications.

The nine power treaty, which was to have protected chiefly the integrity of China, did not stand in the way of the Japanese advance in Manchuria and across the Great Wall and into the port cities. What the American government regarded as a breach of the treaty was made the occasion for some sharp notes from the then secretary of state, Mr. Stimson. His protests were ill received and made for bad feeling.

Japan withdrew from the league of nations, but makes it plain that the return of its mandated Pacific islands is the thing furthest from its thoughts.

Japanese statesmen may not believe that the 5-5-3 naval ratio was forced on Japan at the Washington conference or that Japan was tricked into accepting it, but such statements are made at home to excite resentment, and they have a bad effect, which is one good reason for not attempting a renewal of the naval limitations.

It would be impolitic to charge Japan with bad faith and it is not necessary to do so. The conclusion which can be reached without making accusations is that the well meant efforts to produce an equilibrium in the far east and to promote peace by international understanding have been unsuccessful. There is small reason to believe that where one effort has failed another will succeed. There is good reason to fear that what has provoked controversy and caused acrimony in the past will, if persisted in, do so in the future.

Japan seems to be in a state of mind. Occidentals may be perplexed to understand what causes it or what its purposes are, but they cannot fail to observe evidences of a restlessness coupled with an emotional overstrain which threatens a violent outbreak. Gen. Araki spoke of the probability of an explosion. That probability can be viewed from abroad. There are Asiatic peoples who will excite themselves until they run amuck. Japan may be worked into such a fever either by a military class seeking expansion or by a sense of injuries which no one intends to impose.

One cannot fail to observe certain similarities in the attitude of present day Japan and that of imperial Germany before the war. Americans can see no possible excuse for a conflict with Japan and no possible benefit which could come even from a victory in such a conflict. It would be a plague without a compensation. The job of American diplomacy is to prevent such a plague from entering.

A RED ROAD THROUGH POLAND.

The French request that Poland join in an understanding with Russia and France as a guarantee against German aggression is said not to conform with the Polish idea of Polish national security.

The Poles have had experience with Russia, and, although they are willing to preserve normal relations as undisturbed as possible, they do not fancy an understanding which would open a path through Poland to Russian armies coöperating with France against Germany. In the old Franco-Russian agreement Poland was involved as Russian territory. It is fortunately free from the soviet tyranny and in the early stages of its renewed national existence had to beat off a Red army invading and devastating its territory.

France aided in stemming the Red tide, but since then, probably in fear of Germany, has lost its apprehensions regarding the soviets and is now building up another agreement, raising the Red specter on Germany's eastern front as a protection for its own frontiers. If the Reds were as close to France as they are to Poland a different idea might prevail in France itself. The Poles wisely think that among their potential enemies the Russian communists are not the least and that their chances of keeping the peace are better strengthened by getting along reasonably with Germany than by giving the Red army a military corridor through their country in case of Franco-German troubles. Red has not proved to be a good color in agreements.

MUSSING THEM UP.

Police Commissioner Valentine of New York was exasperated when he saw a sleek young hoodlum brought in who had been many times arrested, many times accused of serious crimes, and never convicted. The sight of the well groomed young public enemy was too much for the commissioner and he told the detectives at the lineup at headquarters that he didn't want to see any more nonchalant sleek gangsters around the headquarters. He said he wanted the bums brought in "mussed up."

The commissioner talked like a mad policeman, but even he would realize that mussing a suspect up is not an answer and that good police work would make it immaterial to the future destiny of the criminal whether he looked as if he had just come from a barber chair or whether he seemed to have been in a bad automobile accident. Mussing the suspect up would be temporarily unpleasant for the gangster, but it wouldn't improve the record of convictions and it might not do a great deal to scare the fellow from the commission of subsequent crimes. It might make him a little bit more careful as to when and how he encountered policemen, but it isn't good police work and it isn't a substitute for good police work.

Every citizen who is taken or questioned by policemen is not a gangster, nor is every man who is guilty of some minor infraction of laws suitably punished by a terrific beating before he is brought before the magistrate. A police rule which encourages or tolerates rough work upon the man taken for one reason or another is likely to produce more outrages than it prevents. The American police have many difficult problems peculiar to American criminal conditions, problems which it is the good fortune of the police in many other countries not to encounter, but still there is no substitute for the rule of police administration, which is to find the criminal, procure the evidence against him, and present it to a judicial system in which the probability is, if not the certainty, that a conviction and a proper sentence, properly carried out, will be the result.

HITCH-HIKING.

Nearly every day there is a story of some crime or tragedy beginning with the folly of an automobile driver giving some unknown person a lift. It was a good-natured custom of older days, before tramps made it an imposition upon the drivers and criminals made it dangerous. Nowadays no motorist can safely permit a person he doesn't know to enter his car. The consequences to him and his companions, to his wife and family, or anybody with him, are all too likely to be quite terrible.

If it did not present an opportunity, as it does, for some of the worst crimes, it is developing a class of mendicants and sturdy beggars who think they have a right to stand, thumbing at the roadside, demanding that the motorist take them wherever they want to go. The custom, growing upon the good nature of people willing to give such a neighborly lift, was becoming a highway plague until motorists recognized that it was an imposition and ceased obliging at their own inconvenience and, as it proved later, at their own risk. The rule of the road should be invariably against the hitch-hiker.

A SLAP ON THE WRIST.

A young man from Wisconsin was arrested in Chicago for attempted robbery with a wooden gun. His intended victim was a woman. When placed on trial before Judge Hartigan in the Felony court a few days ago he admitted that his father had sent him on his way because he would not work. The young man was sentenced to a year in the Bridewell.

Here is a clear illustration of the failure of Chicago's law enforcing agencies to protect society. By his own admission the young man is an idler. His acts prove him to be, in addition, vicious. He will be turned loose in a year at most and in less time if he does not break prison rules. His character is formed and only an incorrigible optimist would expect it to change materially. No one should be astonished if he resumes his criminal career when released.

Robbery is not a peccadillo. It is a major crime. As such it can be discouraged by severe penalties. Long sentences will serve, in addition, to keep potential criminals off the streets. Much of the prevalence of crime in this community can be attributed to the tolerant attitude assumed by law enforcing officials toward vicious criminals such as this one has proved himself to be. Technically he may be a first offender. Actually he is a menace and ought to have been treated accordingly.

Editorial of the Day

UNCERTAINTY.

[Grand Rapids Press.]

A Grand Rapids manufacturer requires cotton goods for the raw material of his production. From the source on which he depends, one of the biggest mills in the country, he receives this notice following the quoted price:

Above price subject to change or withdrawal without notice, and also subject to the following provision: Prices on any undelivered portion of this contract are subject to increase or decrease due to governmental action under the "agricultural adjustment act," or the "national industrial recovery act," or any further federal legislation affecting the seller's costs, and deliveries may be modified to the extent necessitated by any such governmental action or legislation.

The Grand Rapids man has a number of good customers for his finished product—all buying strictly on a price basis. He can meet his competitors and get the business if he can estimate his own raw material costs properly. But his customers are in many cases catalog houses. They must know exactly the price to put on every article, and be assured of deliveries at that price. They must have the contract closed now in order to protect themselves on getting out expensive catalogs, though they may not require large deliveries for some months. Naturally the Grand Rapids man wants their business. But with the above sieve contract staring him in the face he has no means of estimating his costs a month or two ahead. He would have to read the minds of code officials, labor officials, NRA chiefs, and even congress to guess what the price of any part of his raw material actually would be. And he can't. Furthermore, if he takes a chance on a markup sufficient to give him the protection he guesses he may need, somebody else with more money to risk will underguess him, undersell him, and get the business.

President Roosevelt has given a new lease of life and hope to business with his recent announcements. But the greatest new breath which can be blown into the lungs of business will come when artificial politically created uncertainties like flexible code price fixing and hour or wage alterations by government fiat, or fears as to inflationary congressional acts, are definitly laid to rest.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Bert E. Mc Kee

AS A MATTER of cold, hard fact I may say that I did not eat turkey yesterday. There were four or five reasons, but for one I like tripe and it graced our festal board (we're through with that festal board thing now, Bob; put it back in the Cannery in Jar 245, Shelf 773) this glad Thanksgiving day. I like tripe, as I have before remarked, but the principal reason I wanted to have it instead of the customary Tom turkey is that I am so tired of hearing people say, "Oh, I want the drumstick; I can't eat anything but the drumstick!" And a Tom turkey usually having only two legs, it is embarrassing especially as I want at least one of the drumsticks myself. But tripe has no drumsticks, no white meat and dark meat and no chestnut dressing. Which is also good because then people at the table can't sound off with the remark, "Oh, chestnut dressing? I did hope you would have oyster dressing. Oh well, of course it can't be helped now." And another thing that makes tripe my favorite national dish on Thinksgiving day: A tripe hasn't got a wishbone, so there can be no squabble over that. And the guests (if any) aren't liable to eat too much tripe. In fact, they often say, "What! Tripe? Not any, thank you." So really tripe makes not only a most savory Thanksgiving day meal but is really very economical. Of course it has to be cooked a certain way, but I got the recipe for that certain way direct from a waiter at the Restaurant Chandivert in the Hotel de Than in Caen, France. The genuine recipe for Tripes à la mode de Caen. I'll admit there are over one hundred and thirty-two genuine recipes for making Tripes à la mode de Caen, but I know the one I have is the real one because I slipped the waiter fifty francs for it and I saw the chef pursuing that same waiter with a carving knife down the Rue St-Jean right afterwards. Which proved conclusively to me that the waiter had stolen the recipe from the chef and the chef had just found it out and was seeking revenge. Or else the waiter hadn't split fifty-fifty with the chef. Anyhow, I know that's the recipe because it tastes just like the heavenly dish I eat at the Restaurant Chandivert in the Hotel de Than in the Rue St-Jean in Caen every time I get the chance. And if you pass your plate for a second helping of the tripe, don't ask for the gizzard. A tripe hasn't got a gizzard.

AGAINST NOVEMBER RAIN.

I am afraid of wind and chilling rain,
That beat my roof and trickle down the eaves.
I am afraid of cold that chills the earth,
And kills the sap within the stems of leaves.
I am a child of summer and of spring.
My lover is the sun, his warmth my light!
I turn before the death of each new year,
And hide my face from darkness and from night.
My flesh recoils before this chilling rain—
For cold and darkness are the sons of death.
I want to press my face against the sun
And breathe within my heart his magic breath!

HERE'S A THOUGHT on automobile accidents. The best way to stop 'em is before they've happened. Before you get your car all banged up and your head bumped against the windshield by running through a red light—don't run through a red light. The best way to avoid running over a foolish pedestrian or a boy playing ball in the street or riding a bicycle in front of your car, slow down, slow way down, or stop. The first thing to do if you have an accident at a cross road or an intersecting street is not to have the accident. Stop at the cross road or intersecting street if only for a moment. And one of the very best emergency treatments for an elbow which has been poked out of the window and nipped off by another car which has sideswiped you is not to park your elbow outside the car. If you can't find an automobile with room enough inside for your elbow then ride on a street car or walk.

"THIS RISE IN PRICES in the very necessities of life," said the man on the bus yesterday, "is something awful. Why, just this morning the man in the likker shop wanted to charge me seven dollars and a half for a quart of bourbon. And even good imported gin of the special brand I wanted set me back four bucks. And if it's a hard winter, and all signs point that way, I don't know what a poor man like myself is going to do. Here, don't sit over so close to that bottle; you might push it over on the floor. And that's the seven dollar and a half kind."

HOW FAST WE LIVE.

How fast we live—at what frantic pace
We struggle through the day and cheat the night
In searching for some dim and vague delight.

How fast we live—at friendship's sacrifice—
For friends are too demanding in their code;
There is no time in busy lives for much
Save brushing elbows in an episode.

How fast we live—appreciating not
The things we see or hear or think or know;
Too much of living dulls the lovely sense
Which one remembers in an after-glow.

How fast we live—well knowing, as we do,
That cream of living comes to him alone
Who takes the time to hear through all he does
The beauty of slow living's undertone.

THE DEFENDERS OF VIVISECTION of dogs appearing before the city council say that only by this method can be made discoveries of how to cure the ills of humanity. I will go on record to this effect, namely (turn rule and quote), "If medical science cannot cure me of my hobnailed liver without causing exquisite agony to a poor little dog, I am perfectly willing to keep my hobnailed liver. And besides, I haven't got a hobnailed liver. So far as I know."

STIES.

A STY or hordeolum is an infection of one of the small glands on the borders of the eyelids with a common pus producing organism, the staphylococcus. A single sty never produces serious results, but may be exceedingly painful and annoying. Many persons have sties recurring over long periods of time, and in such cases the disability and loss of time may be serious.

The cause of sties is an accumulation of material obstructing the drainage of these small glands, allowing bacteria to grow within them. In persons with eye strain due to refractive errors there is more likely to be a periodic appearance of this condition, and those whose resistance to infection is lowered by any chronic disease or by malnutrition are frequent victims.

The treatment of an individual sty consists in applying hot and moist applications until the small abscess has developed or come to a head, when a small yellow point can be seen. At this time the sty should be opened under careful sterile precautions by a physician, and drainage assisted by further application of hot wet packs. The abscessed area must not be squeezed.

The development of other sties may often be prevented by the use of antiseptic ointments, such as yellow oxide of mercury, on the lid border. Cases in which the sties recur in spite of such treatment should be carefully examined for refractive errors in order to remove the cause of eye strain.

The general state of health of the individual must be considered. Iron tonics are necessary for persons suffering from anemia, and viosterol or other vitamin containing products given to those with definite malnutrition. Such treatment will usually lead to the dispelling of the infection. Even in persons who are apparently quite healthy the use of a diet high in vitamins, including plenty of fresh vegetables with the addition of a more concentrated form of vitamin A, will frequently prevent the recurrence of such infections.

In a few obstinate cases it is necessary to have a vaccine prepared from the organisms present in a sty and administered over a long period to increase the patient's resistance to the particular strain of bacteria. The use of a vaccine prepared in this way is much superior in this type of case to the use of the ordinary stock vaccine.

There is an allied condition in which sties often occur, known as blepharitis or scaly lids. This is sometimes termed granulated lids, and is due to a similar infection with staphylococcus. The treatment of this condition is the same as that just described, and includes the application of antiseptic ointments to the lids and general measures designed to improve the patient's health. In certain obstinate cases in which the eyelashes fall out, leaving an unsightly appearance of the lids, the use of carefully applied X-ray treatments may banish a trouble which has existed for years. Such treatments should be given only by one skilled in the proper dosage of X-ray and provided with special devices to protect the eyes from the powerful effect of the rays.

BOILS ON NECK.

E. M. writes: I have been troubled with boils on the neck. What is the cause and is it possible to prevent them?

REPLY.

Boils are the result of a skin infection, usually with a staphylococcus or other pus producing organism. The resistance of the skin is sometimes reduced by the presence of disease, such as diabetes. Prevention consists in keeping the skin clean and avoiding irritation from clothing. A person with a tendency to boils should bathe the skin once a day with some antiseptic soap. Soap prepared with bichloride of mercury or with mercuric iodide may be purchased. It is important that adequate rest be secured. Too rich foods, particularly nuts, should be avoided. Sometimes a tonic is indicated, or the use of vitamin concentrates such as viosterol.

MAY BE IMPROVED.

D. D. writes: Eight days after operation for chronic appendicitis phlebitis set in, first in the left leg and then the right. Is there any cure for this malady? I am 27 years old and was operated on six months ago.

REPLY.

Phlebitis is inflammation of a vein that results in blocking the vessel with clotted blood. This means that the vein is obliterated and never again functions as a part of the circulation. The work of such plugged veins is usually taken over by the deeper veins in the affected leg and through their enlargement blood from the extremities is able to return to the heart. It may be many months before sufficient enlargement of the deep vessels will occur so that swelling of the affected leg will disappear.

VARICOSE VEINS.

S. W. writes: I would like your advice on the treatment of varicose veins by injections. What would it cost?

REPLY.

The use of the injection method in treating varicose veins has met with much success. A chemical is used to obliterate the superficial veins, forcing the blood to return to the heart through deeper channels. There are no doubt expert physicians in your city who have had experience with this method, and who will advise you of the cost.

BRIDGETENDER'S JOB.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—[Friend of the People.]—Is there an examination for bridgetender contemplated in the near future? If so, please have my name entered for it. What are the requirements of applicants? J. E. B.

An examination was held some time ago for bridgetender, the results of which have not yet been posted. Another examination, therefore, will not be called for some time, but we will be very glad to place the name of your correspondent on our mailing list for notification of same when called.

This examination is open to all citizens of the United States, more than 21 years of age, who have been residents of the city of Chicago for a period of at least one year immediately preceding date of examination.

Secretary, Civil Service Commission.

EVICTION PROCEEDINGS.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you please tell me the procedure to follow for the eviction of a tenant by court order? How much time is given, etc.? C. G. H.

The first step is to serve a five day notice on a form which you can secure from a stationer. If the tenant does not move during the five days, the next step is to bring suit for possession. Presumably it will be advisable for you to employ an attorney for this purpose.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

IMPORT GOODS.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you please inform me if it is possible to import a cellulose product similar to cellophane paper from Europe? There is record of it having been imported from Germany. B. S. M.

Depends on the wording of the cellophane patent and on the character of the imported products as bearing on the question of infringement. In order to secure an opinion of any value you would have to employ a patent attorney to make a direct examination. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

INCOME FROM ESTATE.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—When my father died about fifteen years ago he left me, a minor at the time, about thirty shares of stock in a corporation of which he was the chief stockholder. About seven years ago I entered the business at a rather nominal salary, which salary I am receiving today. Of course, the business has since passed into the hands of other members of the family. My problem is this: I am about to be married and must have an increase in salary. 1. Can I demand such an increase on the grounds that I am a stockholder? 2. The other members, although they hold more stock than I do, receive salaries greatly in excess of mine. Also, as one of the stockholders and as my father's widow [3] is my mother entitled to a steady income from said business? A. H. R.

1. No.

2. If you can satisfy a court that the salaries are so grossly disproportionate to the services rendered as to constitute a dissipation of the assets you might compel a reduction of the salary.

3. No, in the sense that it is discretionary with the directors whether to declare dividends. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LEGALITY OF MARRIAGE.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is the marriage of an uncle and niece legal when the relationship is a blood tie, the uncle being brother of the mother of the aforesaid niece? J. W. S.

The general rule (as stated in 38 C. J., 1276) is that "the validity of a marriage is determined by the law of the place where it is contracted; if valid there it will be held valid everywhere, and conversely, if invalid by the lex loci contractus, it will be held invalid wherever the question may arise. An exception to the general rule, however, is ordinarily made in the case of marriage repugnant to the public policy of the domicile of the parties, in respect of polygamy, incest, miscegenation, or otherwise contrary to the positive laws," citing under the exception Stevens vs. Stevens, 304 Ill., 297, and Lincoln vs. Riley, 317 Ill., 571.

Under section 1 of the Illinois marriage act, "marriages between cousins of the first degree (and closer relatives) are declared to be incestuous." The marriage evasions law invalidates foreign marriages of Illinois residents who intend to continue to reside here and who are under liability here.

Under these authorities we advise against such marriages, or, if already celebrated, that the parties make such provision by will, etc., as they would make if the marriage were invalid.

DEPORTATION.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I entered this country illegally in 1925. If I should be deported at any time what would become of my wife and two children? The children were born in Chicago. J. E. V.

You are in a better position than we are to say what will become of them. The government will not assume any more responsibility for them than for other persons if that is what you mean to ask.

THE NEW TRAFIC LIGHTS.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—From observation of the manner in which the new Michigan avenue trafic light system operates it appears to the ordinary mind that the safety of pedestrians has been relegated to the deep background.

It is almost unbelievable that a city would install lights that require people on foot to go half way across the street, where they must stand until another signal tells them to complete the crossing. The pedestrians are thus made the victims of many uncalled for hardships, especially in inclement weather, subjected to mud spattering from inconsiderate motorists, and their welfare minimized to a degree unequaled in any other American city.

Now that this offensive and hazardous [for pedestrians] system has been installed, must it remain until many persons have been maimed or killed because of it? Was automotive speed the major consideration in the designing of these lights? Even if no one were killed as a result of this dangerous set of lights, the inconvenience to the multitude of pedestrians is more than sufficient to demand the removal of the system. If the trafic engineer who installed the lights will now condemn them it will redound to his credit, as the most able planner can commit a mistake, which it seems was the case when these signals were installed.

L. L. COWAN.

DISCRIMINATION.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—What's the grand idea of business men discriminating against stenographers, secretaries, and general office employés over 25 years of age [employment agencies can substantiate this]? It seems the older the employer the younger the girl must be. And why the qualifications such as blonde, brunette, height, weight, religion, etc.? Doesn't efficiency count for anything any more, and don't these business men realize if this discrimination continues the government will be forced to support the single women over 25, who desire employment and not doles? Which, of course, means that business will have to be taxed still more because we single women over 25 who are obliged to earn our own living must, after all, be fed, clothed, and sheltered, or are we supposed to take a jump from somewhere?

ANONYMOUS.

NO NEWS IS GOOD NEWS.

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 26.—Little news out of Washington. Another case where no news is good news. If the administration will lay off business and industry, with less confusion in experiments, regulation and agitation against the making of profits, and give the business men of the country half a chance, they will now show us a recovery that means something. Let recovery come first and reforms, if we must have them, later. The recent Insull trial would indicate the average American citizen [from which the jury was chosen] does not share the administration's idea of making big business the goat for a world-wide depression. C. L. C.

AN OLD POLICY.

Park Ridge, Ill., Nov. 25.—It is noted that THE TRIBUNE is giving a great deal of space to streamline trains and to urging faster time to the south and other sections of the country.

Forty years ago a well known general agent of the American Express company said: "There is no paper in the west that does more to stimulate fast mail service or to advocate quicker distribution of Chicago newspapers than THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE."

In the summer of 1893 THE TRIBUNE wanted to reach Marquette, up on Lake Superior, on the day of publication. The railway mail service and the express companies said it could not be done.

A few mornings after that a man out of THE TRIBUNE office went down to the Union station provided with a permit to ride on the government fast mail to Milwaukee. Among the mail on the same train was a package of TRIBUNES addressed to himself. At Milwaukee he claimed the package and transferred it to a train on the Lake Superior division of the Milwaukee road. He stuck to the package until the train reached Champion along in the afternoon, and then rode over to Marquette on the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic line, placing the papers on sale at 4:30 p. m., something that had never been done before. By a simple system of outside mail transfers the thing was continued.

A SLEEPING POLICEMAN.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—This afternoon at 4:30 o'clock I was motoring north in Cicero avenue and wished to turn west in Simpson street. The trafic, as usual, was very heavy at this point, where, within the last few months, several persons have been killed in automobile accidents, so I was unusually careful, wondering, too, when the needed stop lights will be installed at this intersection.

As I reached the corner I noticed a car labeled "Illinois State Police" parked on the southeast corner lot, and, slumped down in the front seat, sound asleep, was the policeman—state guardian of public safety! C. B. B.

HARES, NOT RABBITS.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—In the picture section of Sunday's TRIBUNE is an attractive picture of the Guildford and Shore Beagles entitled "This is how they hunt rabbits in England." Hares are so hunted, but not rabbits. A rabbit would soon find refuge in his burrow, a hare keeps to the open field.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—While the Democrats are worrying about whether or not they should nominate for the Supreme court vacancy Judge McGoorty, who is obviously the man for the place, why don't the Republican party leaders do the smart thing of announcing that if Judge McGoorty is nominated by the Democrats he will be supported by the Republican orgahization?

CHICAGO OFFERS THANKS FOR PAST; LOOKS TO FUTURE

Needy Remembered as Thousands Celebrate.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Chicago, thankful for its past blessings and hopeful for more bountiful days to come, yesterday celebrated the most humble of American holidays—Thanksgiving day.

Church services began the day for thousands. In virtually every home, family and friends sat down to the Thanksgiving feast commemorating the first one observed by the Pilgrim fathers just 313 years ago. The needy were not forgotten, nor the inmates of city and county institutions, hospitals, homes and orphan asylums.

Thankful for Bright Future.

"We have solved the problem of supplying our major wants," the bishop declared. "That is something to be thankful for. We have now to attack the problem of distribution. We are assured, too, that Chicago will some day be the largest city in the world and that is something Chicagoans can be thankful for."

In the county jail nineteen women, including two charged with murder, gathered around a festive Thanksgiving board in the women's quarters and agreed over their nut cups and place cards that they have a lot to be thankful for.

The inner chamber enclosed in iron bars became a real banquet room with gay diners.

Plates overflowed with cuts of roast chicken, potatoes, macaroni, cranberries, celery, pickles, and raisin bread, followed by generous portions of pumpkin pie, coffee, and mints.

A merry eyed woman of 26 years in Sunday black silk, lighted a cigaret, puffed thoughtfully and observed: "I'm thankful just to be alive." She was Miss Bernadine Dunning, graduate nurse who shot and killed her suitor, Detective Sergeant Louis Kolb, on Sept. 28 during a quarrel in his automobile.

Down the table sat a woman in a rose colored sweater and dark skirt. "Thankful? Ever so much," she said. "Why, I've got my health back. That's a lot." In June she, Mrs. Gertrude Driscoll, shot and killed her husband, Daniel, because he repeatedly came home late from the tavern he operated.

Cheer in Death Row.

At the foot of the table Peggy Rankin, a Negress, drawled, "I'm glad I'm well and happy," and resumed gnawing a drumstick.

In another wing of the jail two men who are scheduled to go to the electric chair on Dec. 14 ate their last Thanksgiving dinner with relish, read the newspapers, joked with their comrades, and played cards. They are Walter Dittman, 29 years old, and Herman Boulan, 28, found guilty of the murder on Sept. 1 of Policeman Earl Jenson of Oak Park.

Merriment reigned in alimony row as newcomers and veterans, including John Gerchas, 51 years old, of 1812 50th court, who has spent three Thanksgivings in jail, posed for photographers. The rest of the fifty-one members of the alimony club stood by heckling the subjects: "Hey, smile, you. Show your wives you can take it," or "Only think of home, and you'll be happy and contented in jail."

Catcalls for "Judge."

"Order in the courtroom," barked the grizzled oldest member, George F. North, 62 years old, 5740 Aberdeen street, pounding the table with his pipe in mock solemnity. He got a series of catcalls for his pains.

The pride of the alimony club is its baby member, Max Krause, 26 years old, 10028 Commercial avenue.

With studied nonchalance he declared he'd rather be in jail than out because if he were out he would have no job and he'd have to come back to jail anyway, since he owes $401 back alimony.

Other unfortunates also enjoyed the day. Among the thousand children and unemployed given a turkey and beef dinner by Policeman Edward De Vries of the custodian's office of the detective bureau at his Trinity Gospel mission, 203 South Halsted street, was a 5 year old boy. For the first time in his life he got all the mashed potatoes and gravy he wanted. Even the turkey remained untouched. De Vries for the last seven years aided by his wife and daughter, Lorraine, has fed an average of 400 needy persons daily.

Big Meal for Veterans.

Ex-service men at the Edward Hines Memorial hospital were happy last night after a mighty meal. Its ingredients included: grapefruit for cocktail, thirty dozen bunches of radishes, fifteen gallons of stuffed olives, 2,500 pounds of roast turkey with giblet gravy, 100 pounds of cranberries, 800 pounds of candied sweet potatoes, 900 pounds of buttered broccoli, 300 pumpkin pies, 200 pounds of mixed nuts, eighty pounds of mints, and 3,000 rolls. It took twenty-one cooks, 170 attendants, three bakers, three butchers, and eleven dietitians to serve the dinner in eleven dining rooms and four cafeterias. The dinner was enjoyed by 2,311 persons including employés.

Two hundred unemployed waiters, who have served bountiful dinners to others, were served one themselves yesterday. The waiters' union was host to its unemployed and their families at 180 West Randolph street.

SEIZED IN HOLDUP KILLING, 2 YOUTHS BARE 50 CRIMES

Planned to Wed and Turn Honest, Police Told.

Two young men arrested after the fatal shooting of Albert Mahler during an attempted robbery last Saturday confessed yesterday that since last August they had committed from 50 to 100 robberies in Chicago.

The prisoners are Ignatius Booss, 22 years old, and Louis Sisler, 20, both of 2296 Clybourn avenue. They admitted they were Mahler's partners in a long series of robberies in which gasoline stations and small stores on the northwest side were the main victims.

Planned to Be Wed.

Booss and Sisler told police they had planned to bring their crime careers to an end so they could be married and live as decent citizens.

Sisler was to have been married tomorrow to Booss' sister Anna, who also was in custody last night. Booss was planning to be married Jan. 1 to Miss Bernice Cullis, 2298 Clybourn avenue, he said.

"Mahler directed the robberies," Booss said. "He was dishonest even with his pals and we used to search him after every robbery to make sure he wasn't holding out on us. When he was killed we were sobered with realization of our crimes and possibility of a similar fate. We told our girls the full story of our robberies and they made us promise to quit and become honest citizens or they wouldn't marry us. But we quit too late."

Implicated in Shooting.

Mahler was fatally shot when he and the others tried to rob Odysseus Mellios, 2200 Cullom avenue, owner of the Pow Wow Gardens, a tavern in Franklin Park.

Mellios, hailed in front of his home, opened fire, wounding Mahler, who died early Wednesday. Friends of Mahler implicated Booss and Sisler.

MA FERGUSON FREES FATHER OF KILLING A SUITOR

Austin, Tex., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson granted a full pardon today to P. A. West of Brewster county. Last August he was sentenced to two years in prison in connection with the death of a man accused of improper relations with two of West's daughters.

Gov. Ferguson termed West's conviction a "miscarriage of justice" and said:

"As long as such men, beasts in the disguise of manhood, shall attempt to defame and violate the chastity of innocent girls . . . just so long will red blooded Americans do what the father of these girls did in this instance."

MINISTER'S DAUGHTER DIES.

Jennie Warren, 1 month old daughter of the Rev. Charles Warren, Negro, pastor of the New Morning Star church, 14th street and Union avenue, died of pneumonia in her home at 936 Maxwell street yesterday.

RESTAURANT SERVES CHAMPAGNE TO POOR AT HOLIDAY FEAST

Denver, Colo., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Corks popped from 1,000 bottles of free champagne today as Gov. Ed C. Johnson and Denver's poor drank a toast to "better days that positively are on the way."

Tattered clothing or soleless shoes were the only admission credentials required for the ceremony, which preceded a free Thanksgiving day feast for the poor at a Denver restaurant.

A. A. McVittie, the restaurant man, was ill in bed, but he sent his "best wishes!" The feast, an annual affair, is in rememberance of the day when McVittie once walked the streets on Thanksgiving, hungry.

The crowd cheered as the governor drew the first bottle of champagne from its ice pack and pulled the cork. Then McVittie's toast to prosperity was drunk and the "battle of the drumsticks" started.

TRIBUNE AUTO NEAR SCENES OF GRANT BATTLE

Belmont Fight Recalled During Tour.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, Ky., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—This town of 600 population, older than Chicago, is living in memories of military and commercial importance. THE TRIBUNE roadster, en route to a Florida vacation, stopped here to share those memories.

Just north of the village is a bluff 200 feet over the gray waters of the Mississippi river. Fortified in the early days of the civil war, it was known in the south as the "Gibraltar of the west." As a Thanksgiving day visitor from the north there was a moment's pause in thanksgiving for the continued unity of these states.

Recalls Battle of Belmont.

Honeysuckles and small song birds have taken over a system over old trenches and gun emplacements. It was one of the most elaborate earthworks ever built in America, manned by 20,000 confederate soldiers with 150 cannon. A six ton anchor with a chain of twenty pound links is there, recalling the unsuccessful attempt to block federal ships when the chain was stretched across the river.

From the bluff at Columbus, Ky., is a panorama of the wooded Missouri shore where in the civil war stood the thriving town of Belmont. It was there that Ulysses S. Grant experienced his battle baptism of the rebellion.

As a brigadier general of volunteers, Grant brought about 3,000 men on paddle wheel transports from his headquarters at Cairo and landed them on the Missouri side just around a bend above the fortress. According to his memoirs, his orders were to make a demonstration, not a serious attack, but his soldiers were impatient from much training and no fighting, so he let them have it.

The confederate garrison at Belmont was routed. The Union troops, hilarious with victory in their first engagement, fell to sacking the camp while the officers made "political speeches." The enemy rallied on the river front. Reinforced by two ferry loads from Columbus, they almost cut off Grant's troops from their transports. There was a running fight. Grant rode his horse up the gang plank of a steamer. On the field were left 1,060 killed and wounded, 640 in gray uniforms and 420 in blue, according to some historians.

Fort Later Is Lost.

The confederacy, in fortifying the Columbus bluff, anticipated that this then important railroad and waterway shipping center might be a point of initial attack. The south later was forced to abandon Columbus. Thereafter during the war it was occupied by Union troops.

Columbus was a prominent city long before the civil war. Francis Marion Rust, superintendent of the state park dedicated here this year, is digging up evidence to substantiate his theory that George Rogers Clark built a block house here in 1780. In 1814, after the British burned Washington, this was considered as a possible site for the national capitol. President Thomas Jefferson had negotiated the Louisiana purchase, which gave the United States that land, in 1804.

Transit Changes Hit Town.

In the latter part of the nineteenth century, when railroads supplanted the Mississippi river as an avenue of commerce, Columbus, Ky., dwindled from its maximum population of 4,000 to its present size. In the high waters of the spring of 1927, the town was flooded, and the American Red Cross moved the town from the water front to its present site on the bluffs.

Mr. Rust and others are petitioning Washington to make this palisade a national park to perpetuate its history and its natural beauty. A camp of 200 Civilian Conservation corps men are landscaping the bluff and preserving the old trenches.

The town is twenty-five miles by a new automobile road from Cairo, Ill. It is a 400 mile drive from Chicago. It is not known to many Chicago motorists because it is off the beaten tourist trail.

THE TRIBUNE roadster, continuing its historical detours, en route to Florida, is leaving here for Forts Henry and Donelson, on the Tennessee and the Cumberland rivers, where Gen. Grant won his first fame in the civil war.

AWAITING DEATH

FRANCIS GLENDAY.

Eddyville, Ky., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Gov. Ruby Laffoon today dashed Francis Glenday's last hope of escaping infliction of the death penalty for slaying a cashier during the robbery of a bank at Stamping Ground, Ky., on Nov. 28, 1932. Refusing further delay, Gov. Laffoon set the young Chicago bandit's execution for Dec. 7.

Glenday confessed his part in the robbery which, he said, was instigated to obtain funds to effect the final release of his brother, Alex, from a California prison. Glenday admitted he held the gun that killed Cashier Ben Keenon, but claimed the fatal shot was accidentally fired.

Jane Shuttler Will Be Bride of New Yorker

Engagement to G. R. Beach Is Announced.

BY JUDITH CASS.

WHEN Miss Jane Schuttler and George Raimes Beach Jr. went to the altar with the young Norris Loves a year ago last May as maid of honor and best man, they didn't know that their own engagement would be a future matter of romantic news. This morning Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schuttler are announcing the betrothal of their second daughter, Jane, to the young easterner whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. George R. Beach of Montclair, N. J.

The interesting news was first revealed yesterday afternoon at a family Thanksgiving dinner at the Schuttler home, 2355 Commonwealth avenue. Mr. Beach arrived from New York just in time for the dinner and to receive the congratulations of all of those present. Later in the afternoon a number of friends came in for cocktails and to felicitate Miss Schuttler and Mr. Beach.

Since the wedding of Mr. Love and the former Anne Schuttler, when Mr. Beach was here for a round of parties as well as the ceremony itself, he has visited in Chicago a number of times. He is a Princeton graduate and is in business in New York City, where he will take his bride to live after their marriage in the late winter.

Miss Schuttler, attractive and popular, finished at Miss Bennett's school and then went abroad to Versailles to study for a year. In 1927 she was presented to society by her parents at a tea and dinner dance.

Poole-Washburn Nuptials Today.

This afternoon, in the chapel of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest, Miss Barbara Poole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Poole, and James Murray Washburn Jr. will repeat their wedding vows after the Rev. Herbert W. Prince. Only the immediate families and a few intimate friends are to witness the service at 4:30 and go on to the Poole home in Lake Forest for a reception.

Miss Nancy Poole is home from Sarah Lawrence college to be her sister's only attendant. Herman Wilms will serve Mr. Washburn as best man. Dr. and Mrs. Washburn, former Chicagoans whose home is now in Lake Lure, N. C., are here for the ceremony and so is Miss Eleanor Evans of Essex Falls, N. J.

Two Debutantes Will Bow Today.

Two debut parties are on the calendar today, a tea dance and a dinner dance. Miss Medora Pelouze will be presented to society by her parents, Col. and Mrs. William Nelson Pelouze, at a tea with dancing this afternoon from 4 until 7 o'clock at the Woman's Athletic club, and Miss Mary Macdonald, whose grandmother, Mrs. Robert Stuart, gave a tea for her last Friday, will be presented by her parents, the George A. Macdonalds, at a dinner dance at 8 o'clock at the Indian Hill club.

Robert Macdonald is a host with his father and mother, and his brother Angus will join Robert and the debutante and their parents in the receiving line.

Assisting Miss Pelouze will be the Misses Ethel Johnston, Barbara Fortune, Barbara Lawrence, Eleanor McKenna, Nancy Parks of Denver, who attended Vassar with the debutante; Leslie Wilson, Rosanne Patton, Barbara Shaffer, Dorothy Wegg, Carolyn Crossett, who is at home for the week-end from Bennington college; Mildred Starck, Margery Garvey, Betty McKay, and Charlotte Hubbart.

Miss Pelouze and her assistants and their escorts will dine and dance at the Empire room in the Palmer house after the tea.

The Macdonald dinner dance promises to be a gay affair, for Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald have invited some of their own friends, including Mrs. Macdonald's mother, Mrs. Stuart, and her brothers, Douglas and John Stuart and their wives, the Robert Lairds and the Stanley Keiths, whose daughter, Miss Patsy Keith, is engaged to Robert Macdonald. Young Mr. Macdonald has

Front Views and Profiles

THE name of the late great Lilli Lehmann came into the luncheon conversation the other day and Sigrid Onegin, in whose honor the luncheon was given, was reminded of her first meeting with the singer. Across from Mme. Onegin sat the celebrated and beloved singer whose residence in Chicago adds luster to the city's artistic reputation, who studied under Lehmann for a time, and present also was the author in whose book, "Vestal Virgin," one of the characters is said to have been inspired by Lehmann.

Onegin—Achievement—Request.

Onegin, who when she first sang in America 13 years ago was hailed by Schumann-Heink as her natural successor, was a girl of 14 when she first heard Lehmann sing. It was at Wiesbaden, and Onegin, who, alternately was being encouraged toward a career by her teacher and discouraged by her family, felt she must have Lehmann hear her. Excited by the marvelous presence and voice, after the concert she ran after the singer's carriage in the street as she was driven to her hotel. Catching the singer's attention, she begged her, between gasps for breath, to hear her sing.

"Silly girl, go home," said Mme. Lehmann shortly. "You will only take cold."

The little Sigrid pleaded for an audition.

"Gnaedige frau," she begged, "it is of such importance to me."

"Nonsense," said Lehmann shortly. "If you have it in you to be a singer you will be one, whether I hear you or not. And if you haven't it doesn't matter. Go home."

And home she went, to spend the night in weeping.

THE host at the luncheon, Carleton Smith, was smiling over Mme. Onegin's story of the honor conferred upon her by the University of Pennsylvania. She was chosen to be honored for art, Einstein for science, and Count von Luckner for sport. After the speeches were over a student told the singer that she was swell, but that Count von Luckner had been their favorite of the three.

"Do you know he can tear two telephone books in two," he explained excitedly.

THE box office men at the Chicago Grand Opera were chuckling yesterday over a letter received from a town in another state inclosing a check for $15. The letter read:

"I want $15 worth of tickets for Saturday afternoon. I hope you will give either 'Faust' or 'Il Trovatore.' At any rate, please do not given 'Aida,' as I've heard that before."

Barbara Morse Is Wed to Edward Brewster.

In a quiet ceremony at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the living room of her mother's home Miss Nancy Traylor, daughter of Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor, became the bride of Nathan B. Swift, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alden B. Swift. The Rev. Thomas Anderson read the ceremony in the presence of relatives and a small reception followed, to which only the relatives and closest friends of the bride and bridegroom were invited. Melvin A. Traylor Jr. returned for the day from Harvard, where he is a sophomore, to give his sister away.

The bride, who is petite and blonde, never looked lovelier than she did in her bridal gown. It was a stunning dress of white satin made with a De Medica collar of sable and a long train. The waist buttoned down the front with a row of pearl buttons and there was a row of the buttons up each sleeve. A flowing tulle veil and dainty face veil were fastened to a coronet of pearls, and she carried an heirloom prayerbook from which white orchids were hung. She had no attendants.

Mrs. Traylor wore a stunning dress of black crêpe with crystal beaded sleeves, and Mrs. Alden B. Swift wore blue crêpe with a black velvet hat and gardenias.

Bruce A. Baker of Lake Forest served Mr. Swift as best man. Mr. Swift and his bride have left for Bermuda on their wedding trip. They will be at home for Christmas in the Traylor residence on Barry avenue, where they will remain until spring. Mrs. Traylor is leaving Jan. 1 for South America for several months.

For her wedding yesterday to Edward Lancaster Brewster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Miss Barbara Joan Morse, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Robert Hosmer Morse, wore a lovely tunic of white matelassé over a black skirt and a white hat to match the tunic. She carried white orchids and gardenias.

The wedding was solemnized at 12:30 o'clock by the Rev. Dudley Stark in the drawing room of the Morse residence at 1242 Lake Shore drive. Just the immediate families were present.

Mr. Brewster and his bride, who took society by surprise with their marriage, will go to Boston, where he is a student in post-graduate work at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

With Thanksgiving behind you, you can't crawfish any longer about Christmas shopping; pull yourselves together and face the truth. We know just how you feel—but the fact remains that it must be done. And the sooner the better.

Today we're going to give you a general idea of how you might proceed with beauty gifts for women; after this we'll particularize.

If you know what cosmetics your women friends have a yen for your task is easy. Almost every house is doing special Yuletide handsprings to help you out. There are all kinds of new gift packages of the basic things like creams or lotions. If you know her well enough hand her one of these. She'll love not having to spend her own good money for them, and she'll appreciate your thoughtfulness in learning her preferences.

If you feel that a little gift package of practical necessities isn't glamorous enough find out whether her pet line has a special kit. Chances are that it has. You can get traveling kits in the different lines that range all the way from $5 to $125 and more. Let your pocketbook and your affection for her be your guide.

It may even be that you can get her a perfectly enchanting evening bag fitted with her favorite cosmetics—a couple of the great houses have these, and they're among the most delectable of Christmas presents.

If perfume is what you have in mind for her this is THE Christmas. It's been quite a few years since we've seen such an avalanche of brand new and luxurious perfumes. Must be the upswing or something. All types, ranging from the fragile old lady eternally faithful to lavender to the streamlined young lady who yearns for the frankly exotic, can be adequately taken care of this season.

In short, the beauty field is all ready for you. Don't overlook its offerings!

Floral tokens from all parts of the country banked the Cudahy home and congratulations were conveyed to the couple by telegram, telephone, and messenger throughout the day.

Good Morning!

Dick Powell is just everybody's little white-haired boy, this trip!

Audiences LOVE him from his first appearance as an impudent rookie in Honolulu till his last as regimental commander at West Point. The rôle of Dick "Canary" Dorcy, is, without question, his most fitting and promising rôle up to date.

Colorful backgrounds of army post, Hawaii, West Point Military academy! Thrilling martial music! Melting Hawaiian tunes! Catchy syncopation! A bright clean yarn, put over in the spinkest and spankest of fashions by a sprightly cast, headed by the popular team of Powell and Keeler! All this has "Flirtation Walk"—a picture that will be a box office wow or I don't know why.

Kit, while not engaged to her father's aide, Lieut. Biddle, DOES have, what the general describes as "an old-fashioned understanding" with this grave, capable, adoring young man. [Splendid, reserved performance by John Eldredge.]

BUT—the moonlight is bright, and the music intoxicating, in Hawaii . . . ! and Kit and "Canary" . . . who has been appointed her chauffeur—spend some lunalight drenched hours far from the reception where Kit's supposed to be. . . .

On Kit's account no action is taken against Dick. BUT—the girl says some cruel things to him [for his sake, though he doesn't know it] and Lieut. Biddle makes the cutting remark that had Dorcy been "a gentleman and an officer" he'd have known better. . . .

To West Point, to West Point—to become "an officer and a gentleman!" And to show a pretty girl and a scornful man where they get off. . . .

Chuckling, Fate shuffles the cards so that Gen. Fitts becomes superintendent of the United States Military academy. . . . Kit, of course, goes right along with papa. . . . Lieut. B. is also there. . . .

The drills at West Point are, as ever, inspiring. And glimpses of life among the cadets are interesting, informative and amusing. The Hundredth Nite play, given toward the end, serves as basis for a gay and tender finale.

Miss Keeler is her usual natural, charming self. She and Powell invariably "click." It takes Ruby to bring out the best in the promising lad who so often plays opposite her.

Pat O'Brien does a great bit as a hard-boiled sergeant with a soft spot in his heart for "Canary." Other rôles are neatly handled and direction by Frank Borzage is artistic and sympathetic.

Stock Offers 2 New Works; Both Praised

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Two new compositions were introduced by the Chicago Symphony orchestra last night, and in one of them, Max Trapp's concerto for piano in D, the Chicago pianist, Mae Doelling Schmidt, appeared as soloist, her first engagement in that capacity with this orchestra. The other novelty was Arnold Zemachson's Concerto Grosso in E minor.

There was some thought in the beginning that Conductor Frederick Stock in placing these pieces with two dances from Gluck's opera, "Orfeo ed Eurydice," and Brahms' Second Symphony, meant to contrast them with music of an older and more easily understood period.

As it turned out, however, they fitted in without much contrast, neither being dependent upon modern acridities of harmony for their effect. This was especially true of the Zemachson work, which was as melodious and flowing in outline as though it had been done a century ago instead of last year.

It is true that Trapp at times registers his belief in the interval of the fourth as a step to musical salvation, but he does not regard it as the only one by any means. On the contrary, he has written a work that depends upon musical values of oddities for its interest.

Likewise Mrs. Schmidt caused great admiration for the thoroughly competent, vital, brilliant performance of what must have been a difficult task. She was as stimulating a soloist as has been here this season and she earned and deserved a full sized ovation.

Dinner music that deserves the title of concert music is being played at the Edgewater Beach hotel these evenings. There is an orchestra of twenty pieces under the direction of James Kozak that last night gave an all-American program, Herbert's "Pan-Americana," Grofe's "Mississippi" suite, Guion's "Turkey in the Straw," an arrangement of "Dixie" that turned out to be a combination of that melody with the Pilgrims' chorus from "Tannhaeuser," and others, with fine tone and spirit. Sara Ann McCabe, the soprano soloist, was a first class one.

The Christmas Buying Season Starts Today

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Hang on to your back hair everybody. We're off. The rush begins with twenty-one shopping days left until Christmas. You won't have any trouble—really lots of fun if you'll just begin at once. Since the wrappings of whatever you buy cause the best excitement, for once do buy gay tissues, ribbon tags, and stickers IMMEDIATELY.

Red ribbon vanishes lots faster than red tape, generous sized stickers that do a good job of keeping the tissue paper in place disappear almost while you hesitate, and many a tardy soul has been faced with the awful punishment of using odds and ends, and even purple paper, because a lot of other shoppers beat their time.

Really luxurious packages can be wrapped with gold and silver ribbons anywhere from an inch to three inches wide. Filmy gauze ribbons glittering with stars, ribbons printed with jolly old St. Nicks, the reindeer, and a well filled sleigh; green gauze with a tolling line of Christmas bells; blue ribbon with silver stars and angels are just a few of the possibilities.

Gentle joggings: This is the last week for monogramming orders for handkerchiefs, stationery, playing cards, lingerie, mufflers, pajamas, and fine linens. Don't try to send orders later on, for you'll spend the last hours before Christmas chewing fingernails, and growing gray hair waiting for these belettered gifts to appear. If you do there will be no one to blame but yourself. These admonitions apply to Christmas card and other engraving orders, too. And unless you are mighty sure of your victim, and positive of all sizes, likes and dislikes, don't send the gift monogrammed or marked; send the order and let the appreciative recipient select his or her own style and shape.

Fashion photograph. . . . A blue-pencil blue bagheera evening gown fashioned in a slim sheath and slit around the knee line. Over it is an ivory velvet evening coat collared in flattering chinchilla. The sleeves are full and puffed into cuffs and the collar can be worn hanging deep, almost to the elbows or turned up to frame the face. Found in a Chicago shop.

Two Foreign Groups Hold Art Exhibits

Swedish and Polish Shows Given Praise.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

This is foreign art week. The seventh annual exhibition by Swedish artists has been opened in the east lounge of the Edgewater Beach hotel and the seventh annual exhibition of paintings and sculpture by Polish-American artists has been opened at 1200 North Ashland avenue. Both exhibits have features of interest.

In the Polish exhibition the paintings of two important Chicago painters stand out. Walter Krawiec and Harriet Krawiec have long been rated among the best this city has produced. Mr. Krawiec's circus paintings have endeared him to a large and appreciative public. Mrs. Krawiec is noted for her still life compositions.

Harriet Krawiec is represented by five canvases, perhaps the most attractive of which are "A Little Wood Carving" and "Daisies."

Jan Fabian, a graduate of the Art institute and a winner of several large money prizes, shows an excellent nude study and a formal still life. He has been much under the influence of modernism but is gradually working into a finer and more solid art. Norbert Czarnowski is interested in landscape painting and his "Galena" is one of the high lights of the show.

In the Swedish artists exhibition we find "Composition with Figure" by Mary Peterson the most unique and beautiful painting in the gallery. Thomas Hall runs her a close second in brilliancy of execution with his water colors "Snow Clad" and "Floral Design." Signe Palmblad shows a virile, vigorous and colorful landscape, "Wintry Mood," a strong piece of painting.

Fridolf Spolander has a magnificent group of large canvases, the finest of them, "Thundering Shore." Going from the turbulent drama of the sea to a placid country idyll, we find Anne Anderson contributing several delicate and quaint little pictures, Carl E. Wallin shows an excellent portrait and G. Ahlman submits his interpretation of the dunes.

Both exhibitions close Dec. 9.

Old Dutch will make your housework light
Clean things quickly and keep them bright
It goes so far
And does not mar

Written by Mrs. Walter Mecum, 6346 Holman Ave., Hammond, Ind.

Old Dutch saves work and money for millions of women because it cleans quicker and does more cleaning per penny of cost. The reason is, it is made with surface-saving SEISMOTITE (pronounced sis'-mo-tite)—a natural cleaning and polishing material of volcanic origin that is specially processed and compounded with other fine ingredients according to the famous Old Dutch formula. Old Dutch adds years to the life of porcelain and enamel, glassware and metals, kitchen utensils and painted surfaces because it doesn't scratch.

Prove to yourself that Old Dutch lasts longer and costs less to use by dating the next package you buy. It's kind to sensitive hands, doesn't clog drains, is odorless and removes odors. There is no substitute for Old Dutch quality and economy.

$5 HERE'S HOW $5

Write a limerick about Old Dutch on the back of an Old Dutch Cleanser label (or a reasonable facsimile) and send it to us. We will pay $5.00 in cash for each limerick which we publish and publication will include the writer's name and address. All limericks become the property of The Cudahy Packing Co.

SHELVES EMPTY AFTER CHICAGO'S HOLIDAY FEAST

300,000 Turkeys Eaten for Thanksgiving.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Millions were served Thanksgiving dinner in metropolitan Chicago yesterday. And what a dinner! The feast consumed was comparable to that of any holiday in the last four or five years.

Shelves, counters, and coolers were left almost bare in many stores by shoppers during the early part of the week. Cold figures tell the story. It is roughly estimated that more than 300,000 turkeys, or nearly three and a half million pounds, in addition to other fowls, were eaten here yesterday.

More Trimmings than Usual.

More trimmings than usual went with the turkeys, according to the volume of products that moved from the central markets into retail stores. Perry Stern, auctioneer, said that early this week at Chicago's fruit auction sales of oranges, lemons, apples, grapefruit, satsumas, tangerines, pears, and grapes were the largest for Monday and Tuesday in four years. On Monday 112 carlots of fruits were sold at auction to wholesalers, and 63 more carlots went under the hammer Tuesday. More than 60 per cent of this volume of 175 carloads was bought for Thanksgiving tables, commission men estimate.

On this basis it is estimated the consumption yesterday of grapes was more than 180,000 pounds, in excess of 1,800,000 apples were eaten, and nearly 5 million oranges, from satsumas and tangerines, helped load down the tables. Even lemons used yesterday totaled more than 900,000 in Chicago and suburbs, and nearly 500,000 pears and about 600,000 grapefruits were consumed.

Food Price About Same.

Food prices for the week-end apparently will not reveal decided increases or decreases in most grocery stores and meat shops from prices that prevailed a week ago. On meat counters those that seek variety will find bargains in meats other than poultry, especially in nearly all lamb cuts, in roasts of beef, beef steaks, hams, and a wide assortment of Cheeses and smoked meats or sausage.

Navel oranges, which California pickers are beginning to harvest in large quantities, are lower in price and of better quality. They are forced to compete with large shipments of juice and other types of oranges, and the other citrus, including grapefruit, tangerines and satsumas.

For the first time in eleven years importations of Spanish Almeria grapes are being handled in Chicago. An embargo has just been lifted on these grapes, which come packed in sawdust in 45 pound kegs. Forelle pears from California, colorful pears for baskets, also have appeared in a few stores at a premium price over the Bosc and D'Anjou varieties.

FAMOUS ROAST BEEF OF ENGLAND IS NOW A MYTH

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 29.—The famous roast beef of old England is now a myth. The public taste in the last few years has, almost unsuspected, undergone a complete alteration.

The grilled steak of old England is now the vogue, backed up by a host of strange new dishes. These new dishes are displacing the old favorites in British homes and restaurants.

Here are some of the dishes British people are eating in place of the established old favorites:

Flemish steak, buttered oatcakes, stewed ormers, snails, frog's legs, bird's nest soup—and these are but a few of them. A chef at a famous London restaurant said he received more orders for dishes like frog's legs and bird's nest soup than for roast beef and mutton.

"Nobody wants the old dishes now," he said. "Listen to some of the orders I received last night: Curried prawns and jelly, quail pie, buttered snails on toast, boiled penguins' eggs.

"Even the traditional British breakfast is fast disappearing. Eggs and bacon, sausages, haddock, or kippers are hardly ever asked for. People ask for pig's feet, eels or mussels in jelly, and cockles. Toast is also becoming a thing of the past for breakfast. Everybody wants buttered oatcakes, rusks, or ryecakes.

"Nowadays for every joint of beef we sell between thirty and forty steaks. While the fashion is for all sorts of unusual dishes, steaks in varying forms are always in demand. Various kinds of shellfish popular in France and the Channel islands are now becoming popular here. One in particular, ormers. We are continually being asked for stewed ormers, and it is rapidly becoming a favorite English dish. It is getting to be quite a problem to keep pace with the demand for new dishes."

STEAL SAFE AND $200.

POST-HOLIDAY DISHES UTILIZE LEFTOVER FOWL

BY MARY MEADE.

Surprisingly enough one sees just as many people on the streets today as there were yesterday—which I take for a sign that practically everybody has recovered from Thanksgiving turkey and, to his own amazement, is beginning to get hungry all over again.

So, out with the leftovers of yesterday's bird and let's see what can be done to make the day after just as festive as the feast day itself.

One discovery that we've made has to do with the surprising goodness of turkey and olives and toast. The way you do it is this:

CREAMED TURKEY WITH OLIVES ON TOAST.

¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup flour
2 cups milk
Salt and pepper to taste
2 cups cooked turkey pieces
2 teaspoons minced parsley
½ cup sliced stuffed olives
1 egg yolk, beaten
Buttered toast

Melt the butter or margarine, add the flour, and blend. Add the milk and seasoning, cooking with constant stirring until thick and smooth. Add the turkey fragments, the parsley, olive slices, and the beaten egg. Heat for several minutes longer, then serve over buttered toast.

Or, there's a tricky mushroom sauce to be had by the mere application of a can opener—one which has a way all its own with cold diced turkey.

TURKEY WITH EGG AND MUSHROOM SAUCE.

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 medium tin cream of mushroom soup
2 cups diced cooked turkey
4 hard cooked eggs, sliced
Dash of salt and pepper
Biscuit straws [see below]

Blend the melted fat with the flour. Add the cream of mushroom soup and stir over the heat until thickened. Add the turkey and the sliced eggs. Season if desired. Heat well and serve over biscuit straws. These little affairs are simple to make and delightfully crunchy to eat. Merely prepare a part recipe of roll-biscuit dough. Pat it or roll it to 1-3 inch thickness, then cut it with a sharp knife into thin strips—about 3 inches long and 1-3 inch wide. Transfer these to a floured baking sheet and bake in a hot oven [425 degrees F.] for 6 to 8 minutes, or until delicately browned and done. Serve them hot under the piping creamed turkey. Garnish the platter with sliced sweet pickles, with little mounds of cranberry jelly, or with plump, stuffed olives.

And what for dessert? If yesterday you accepted our Sunday's advice and introduced an ice cream treat for the topping off, today's meal might nicely call in a steamed fruit pudding to prolong the holiday air. Mincemeat is the main ingredient in this one, but there's no pounding and chopping to worry us. The mincemeat arrives from the grocery in a neat dry package, ready to be bubbled up with a little water and folded into the pudding proper.

STEAMED MINCEMEAT PUDDING.

1 nine ounce package dry mincemeat
½ cup water
1 egg, slightly beaten
½ cup nut meats, chopped
½ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1½ cups dry cake crumbs

Break up the packaged mincemeat, combine it with the cold water, and heat, stirring, until all the lumps are broken. Bring to a boil and continue cooking for three minutes or until the mixture is practically dry. Cool. Then stir together the egg, nut meats, orange juice, rind, and cake crumbs. Blend these and fold in the cooled mince meat. Pour the pudding mixture into a greased mold or into eight individual molds, filling only 2-3 full. A baking powder can with a cover will do the trick just as well as an aristocratic store mold. Cover tightly whatever container you use and steam for one hour, with the boiling water halfway up the molds. If it is necessary to add more water during steaming, pour it in boiling hot from the tea kettle. Serve the pudding warm with hard sauce or whipped cream.

CHICKENS WAXED; FEATHERS STRIP OFF IN ONE PIECE

How that attractive appearance is given to roasting fowl by the modern poultry dressing establishment is explained by Prof. E. L. Dakan of the poultry department of the Ohio State university.

Recently, he explains, a new system has been installed by many of the modern plants. The chickens are no longer scalded to loosen their feathers. They are dipped in a specially prepared wax.

The chickens are suspended on a carrier and bled. The carrier dips them into warm water to loosen their feathers without injuring the flesh. Leaving the water bath, the wing, tail and other larger feathers are pulled as the birds are drawn along. They pass on through a drying tunnel into the wax bath, leaving that to pass through cool air to speed hardening of the wax. Girls standing by the carrier strip wax, feathers and all as the chickens pass before them.

It is a speedier, nicer job, and as usual with mechanical devices, labor costs are cut.

¼ cup butter
1 pimiento, chopped
3 eggs

DIRECTIONS—Cook the noodles in boiling salted water until tender; drain. Heat the milk in a double boiler, add cheese broken in pieces, and stir until cheese is melted. Add cracker crums, butter, pimiento, parsley, onion, and beaten eggs. Add noodles and mix carefully. Pour into a well buttered ring mold and bake in a moderate oven [350° F.] or steam in a steamer until firm. Unmold on a platter and garnish with parsley.

STUFFED SHOULDER OF LAMB WITH BROWNED PEARS

DIRECTIONS—Have the butcher bone the shoulder, making a pocket for stuffing. Grind enough veal to make 2 cups, and 1 cup of pork. To these add 2 cups of soft bread crums, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon honey, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, 1 small chopped onion. Mix thoroughly, fill the lamb, tie in shape, then rub the entire surface with flour mixed with 1 teaspoon each of salt and sugar. Place in a hot oven to roast—do not cover the pan. Cook 2 hours at 375° F. Twenty minutes before done drain canned pears, dip them in flour to which a little granulated sugar has been added, and place about the meat to brown. Serve as a garnish. Make gravy from the fat in the pan, using the juice of pears for liquid and adding 1 teaspoon vinegar with a little flour, salt, and pepper.

CHOPPED BEEFSTEAK

DIRECTIONS—Two pounds chopped beef, 2 eggs, 8 crackers crumbled and soaked in milk, salt and pepper, chopped onion. Mix well and shape into pattie. Fry in oil or butter until brown on both sides, add ½ pint can tomatoes, let come to a boil. Lift meat patties with wooden spoon and place on mound of cooked egg noodles and pour the hot tomato sauce over the top. Decorate with parsley.

CHINESE SAUTE FISH

6 small fish about 6 or 8 inches long
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon highly flavored sauce
1 onion, sliced
1 cup bamboo shoots
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup flour
4 tablespoons fat

DIRECTIONS—Clean and wash fish, salt and roll in flour. Then fry in hot fat on both sides until well browned. Sprinkle the sugar in the frying pan, then add sauce, sliced onion, bamboo shoots—salt ½ to taste. Cover and cook slowly for 5 minutes. Place fish on a hot platter. Arrange a fancy border of mashed potatoes around the edge of platter, forcing the potatoes through a pastry bag. Pour the gravy over the fish. Arrange lemons cut in quarters at intervals around the potatoes, placing sprigs of parsley and green stuffed olives between the lemon quarters.

MARSHMALLOW SPONGE CAKE

6 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup flour sifted with baking powder
1 teaspoon baking powder

DIRECTIONS—Separate egg yolks and whites. Beat yolks until very light and fluffy—time required about 10 minutes. Then add lemon juice to egg yolks and ¼ cup of sugar and beat until sugar is thoroughly dissolved. Beat whites until stiff then fold in the other ½ cup sugar with egg whites. Carefully fold the egg whites into the egg yolks. Then fold in flour very carefully with a large spoon. Pour into an ungreased pan, sprinkle a little sugar over the top and bake for 1 hour in a slow oven. When done remove pan from oven, insert and let stand until thoroughly cold. Then remove cake from pan and cover with marshallow frosting.

FROZEN FRUIT SALAD

1 package lemon flavored gelatin
¼ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup Maraschino cherries [diced]
1 cup each of pineapple, peaches, and pears [diced]
1 cup ginger ale
¾ cup mayonnaise
1 cup cream, whipped

DIRECTIONS—Soften gelatin in orange juice and dissolve over hot water. Cool and add fruit, lemon juice, and ginger ale. When mixture starts to congeal fold in mayonnaise and whipped cream. Place in freezing trays for 1 hour. When ready to serve cut into desired servings, place on lettuce leaves and top with mayonnaise to which a little whipped cream has been added.

PORK LOIN, BEEF POT ROASTS ARE GOOD MEAT BUYS

The committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago yesterday issued the following report for the guidance of housewives purchasing meat in Chicago retail meat stores:

"Pork loin roast and beef pot roast constitute unusually economical meat buys in Chicago meat stores over the week-end. Practically all cuts of meat are selling at slightly lower levels this week than last."

The Forgotten Honeymoon

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Rhoda Cornboise's engagement to Maj. Ralph Stornack is arranged by her ambitious mother. Rhoda is in love with Colin Briarley, who is serving sentence unjustly for the murder of a Canadian solicitor in a London night club. Chief witness against Colin was Maj. Stornack, who was the solicitor's host. Rhoda met Stornack when he called to express his regret for the testimony he had to give at her lover's trial. Jack Caermaen, an old pal of Colin's, is his warder. Caermaen takes Colin's place as prisoner, allowing Colin to use his week's vacation. Rhoda elopes with Colin on the eve of her marriage to Stornack. They spend a brief honeymoon. Then Colin returns to prison. Rhoda returns home and feigns a lapse of memory. Her mother besieges her to marry Stornack, who is still willing. He and his confederates know she has inherited the fortune of a Canadian relatives. The solicitor had come to London to tell her of it. Stornack calls on Caermaen and they quarrel. Jack suspects Stornack of the crime for which Colin was convicted. Rhoda, who is expecting a baby, leaves home and stays with friends of Caermaen, the Rawlings, in London. Her mother follows with a court order, placing Rhoda under her charge. Caermaen has his solicitor, Jarroman, start a private investigation. Mrs. Cornboise takes Rhoda to France, where her son is born. The baby is left there when they return to London. Caermaen arranges to get Colin out of prison again for a few days. Rhoda flies with Colin to see their son. Her mother is at the aerodrome when they return and sees Colin. Her fear of scandal keeps her from turning him over to the police. Colin goes back to prison. Mrs. Cornboise arranges a visit to the prison to see Colin. There she meets Caermaen and penetrates the mystery of Colin's excursions from jail. If Rhoda doesn't marry Stornack within six weeks she threatens to expose Caermaen. Rhoda meets Caermaen in London.

AGONIZING SUSPENSE.

Caermaen shook his head.

"Sorry, Rhoda. But you aren't very good at it, are you?"

"Good at what?" she asked in surprise.

She sank onto the little horsehair sofa.

"O, Jack! I'm becoming the world's greatest expert at lying. But I can't work it with you."

"Something fresh has cropped up? Colin has been mum as an oyster. You'll tell me what it is, won't you?"

"I can't, Jack. I wish I could, but I can't."

Jack Caermaen lit a cigaret. Rhoda began an enthusiastic account of their time in Paris, but he made no comment—just looked at her steadily. When she had finished he let a silence fall and then:

"Are you and Colin, by any chance, worrying about my position?"

"Well, of course, we're always very anxious! Naturally we can't help——"

"Poor Colin will want to punch my jaw if I confess to him that I've been bullying you. Are you both worrying about me?"

"Don't, Jack!" she faltered. "Let me go."

"My dear friend, you know perfectly well that you won't rush out of this room if I beg you to stay. You wrote me that you'd come to an understanding with your mother and 'fixed it.' Meaning my safety. What was the understanding?"

"You mustn't! You mustn't!" she cried, and clung to him.

"Well, you see, it was like this——"

"No, it wasn't! You really must tell me the truth, Rhoda."

She looked at him and he gazed back steadily at her. She knew then that she could not escape from his insistent demand.

"She said that she would expose you unless——" The words stuck and he prompted her.

"—— unless I had married Maj. Stornack within six weeks. That's little more than four weeks now."

"Hm! Why didn't you tell her at once that you were married?"

"It was impossible. You don't know how she has worked herself up from the very beginning. She would just strike—to hurt us all. It was on the tip of my tongue to tell her at the time. I had actually begun to do so when I saw that in her eyes. It was quite hopeless. And I know that she will keep her word—both ways. She will go to the home office if I don't marry him, and she won't if I do."

Caermaen got up and paced the room.

"Have I really got it right?" he demanded. "You are contemplating going through a bigamous marriage—and living with another man—when you love Colin and have borne his child?"

"Do you think I don't see all that?" she whispered.

"And you wrote and told Colin about it?"

"I had to. I couldn't just—run away from him."

"So that's why during the last few days he has become a candidate for the mental ward!"

"I thought of keeping it all to myself."

"Mind you, I'm not trying to lecture you——"

"O, what is there to do?" she demanded in abject misery.

"Perfectly simple!" said Caermaen. "Go home and tell your mother you're married. Tell Stornack. Tell the world. Now don't interrupt but listen to me. I know what's going on in your mind. I shall be on the carpet and shall lose my job. All right! Do you think I'm such a knock-kneed ne'er-do-well that I can't find another job? Why, good heavens, there's a—er—immense field of activity open to—er—a man of my attainments!"

She smiled through her tears at this preposterous pretense of boastfulness.

"No, there isn't, Jack! Everybody knows that ex-officers are—are only good for certain kinds of jobs."

"I'll make you a present of all those very unflattering arguments. They're all punk, but we'll pretend they're true. Suppose I am on the beach for a bit. Don't you think I'd much rather have that happen than go through this abomination. For one thing, Colin will go off his head and that ought to weigh with you if nothing else does."

"He and I won't allow anything to weigh in favor of letting you down."

"Right! We'll take that as settled. But nothing that you two forlorn children can think of or do can prevent me from blowing my own gaff. I can at least put you and Colin out of this misery whether you like it or not. I'm going to confess."

"You mustn't! You mustn't!" she cried and clung to him.

He patted her shoulder.

"My dear girl, pull yourself together! If you think of it from my point of view you'll see it's the only thing to be done. Anyhow, whether you see it or not—sorry to be a brute!—it's going to happen. . . . As a matter of fact, I've come to the conclusion that I should make a very rotten governor. I'd want to let all the convicts out. . . . I wish you'd laugh at my little jokes."

"Jack—you've made up your mind! I won't try to stop you any more. But you're going to do one thing for me." She thought of Colin's letter. "Wait."

"With what object?"

"There's still the chance that something may happen," she reasoned. "You know Jarroman came to see us in Paris?" As he nodded she continued: "He was in very good spirits then, full of hope. If you've absolutely decided to confess at least don't do it—until it's absolutely necessary. We have four weeks and three days. Hang on until the last moment."

She saw him waver and tried the added weapon of ridicule.

"Don't be a strong, masterful man and insist on having your own way all along the line. Give Colin and me a chance."

"Well—if you like. But I shall tell him at once what I've decided to do, then he won't have to worry about your doing anything utterly preposterous."

"Yes, Jack—that's fine! We've got a month. I shall go and see Mr. Jarroman and ask him how things are going."

"You may just as well keep in touch with him," said Caermaen thoughtfully. "But it's no good going today. I've seen him myself this morning. He's made a certain amount of progress. He's found out that your Uncle Peter is dead and left you a bit of money."

"O, that's good! I shall need it for Colin, Jack. But what about Colin?"

"Nothing! Nothing, so far, that would help to prove that he didn't kill Simpson—to those who are mugs enough to believe that he did. . . . Good-by, Rhoda! I think I'll slip along and catch the next train."

Warder Caermaen's next spell of duty began at 1:30 a. m. A few minutes after he had relieved his colleague he looked through the spy hole of cell 37.

Colin Briarley was pacing the floor like a caged animal. He was still dressed and obviously had not been to bed at all.

"What are you doing to your bed, No. 87?"

"Only pulling it straight, sir."

Caermaen unlocked the cell door. The second he was inside he whispered in Colin's ear:

"There's no need to worry. She isn't going to marry Stornack. I've seen her today and told her that at the end of a month I'm going to confess."

Premiere of Ballet at Opera Tonight.

A brilliant audience is expected at the Civic Opera house tonight for the American première of Ruth Page's new ballet, "Hear Ye! Hear Ye!" As a distinct compliment to Miss Page, who is Mrs. Thomas H. Fisher in private life, Paul D. Cravath, president of the Metropolitan Opera company, and his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Francis Gibbs, are arriving at 1 o'clock today from New York to see the performance. Already here is Aaron Copland, who has composed the music for the ballet. Nicolas Remisoff has designed the scenery and costumes.

Mr. Cravath and Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs will go directly to the Drake hotel this noon, where they will stay. Before the première tonight Mr. Fisher is entertaining fifteen guests at dinner at the Casino for them and Mr. Copland. After the performance all of them will go on to the supper party that Harold F. McCormick, honorary chairman of the board of the Chicago Grand Opera company, is giving at the Electric club for Mr. Cravath.

Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs will return east tomorrow, but Mr. Cravath is going to Madison, Wis., for the week-end and then coming back to Chicago on Monday. That evening Mr. and Mrs. Fisher will entertain at dinner for him again at the Racquet club. He will return east Tuesday morning.

Three Functions for Poet Hillyer.

At least three events on today's calendar are planned for that brilliant young American, Robert Hillyer, who won the 1934 Pulitzer poetry award. Mr. Hillyer arrived from the east yesterday afternoon in time for a tea the George Murrays gave for him at their Sheridan road home. Mr. Murray and Mr. Hillyer were intimate friends during their school days at Harvard.

This noon the Chicago Harvard club is entertaining the visitor at luncheon at the Mid-Day club. Later in the afternoon the Cordon club is having a tea for him at its quarters in the Fine Arts building, and this evening Mrs. Enos M. Barton, vice president of the board of directors of the Chicago Teachers' college, is giving a dinner for him at the Chicago Woman's club.

After the dinner Mr. Hillyer is to give a reading of his poems that won the Pulitzer prize for him in the Woman's club theater under the sponsorship of the Teachers' college.

Gallery Tea for Katharine Dudley.

Mrs. Graham Aldis, Mrs. Cecil Barnes, Mrs. Shreve C. Badger, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. William B. Hale, Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Walter Paepcke, Mrs. Alfred P. Shaw, and Mrs. John R. Winterbotham will pour tea this afternoon at the party Miss Alice Roullier is having from 4 to 6 in the Roullier galleries in the Fine Arts building for Miss Katharine Dudley.

Miss Dudley's pastels of Morocco and Mexico and some of her portraits of Chicago children are to be shown.

Many Chicagoans will be interested to hear that the Malcolm Moncreiffes are arriving today to spend the next week or so visiting the Samuel J. Walkers in Lake Forest and Mrs. Walker Szukalska at her apartment on Lake View avenue. The International Live Stock exposition that opens tomorrow in the stockyards arena is bringing them here from their home in Sheridan, Wyo., for they have entered a shipment of fine sheep in the show.

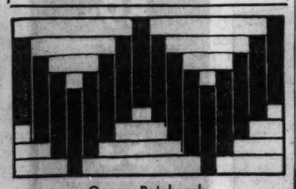
Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Leslie A. Weary left Winnetka to make their home at 570 Cadiux road in Grosse Pointe, Mich.

Early yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Andrew B. Harper Jr. arrived by motor to spend the week-end with Mrs. Harper's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings Sinclair, at their home at 2350 Lincoln Park West. After her marriage last May the former Margaret Sinclair went to Grosse Pointe, Mich., to live.

The Harpers had dinner at the Sinclairs' in the early afternoon. Late in the afternoon Mrs. Harper's brother, Wells Sinclair, gave a cocktail party for them.

The dispatch from Reno, Nev., in last Saturday's paper stated that Mrs. Louise Rehm Le Roche and Allan A. Floyd had been married since last February. This was a mistake, for they were married just recently. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd are living at 838 Marsh avenue, Reno.

Quilt Is Unique Interpretation of Another Pattern



Coarse Patchwork.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Coarse Patchwork" is a novel adaptation of the good old "Log Cabin Patch." Where it derived its name is not known, but the design is well over eighty years old. It first was brought to my attention by a friend in Spencer, Ind. It is made of light and dark patches. The blocks may be set together as an allover pieced quilt or with alternate blocks of white.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

Practical and Dainty as Gift

CHILD'S DRESS.

This little dress would make a practical Christmas gift. The pattern includes French panties, and is pretty with its brief yoke, to which the skirt fullness is smocked, and the full skirt that allows plenty of leg room for romping. It's easy to make and requires the minimum of material. Plaided ginghams, percales, cotton broadcloths, and all wool challis are suitable materials.

The pattern, No. 3055, comes in sizes 2, 4, and 6 years.

Critical Ability Can Be Tested by Handwriting

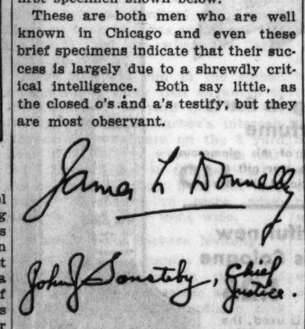
BY MURIEL STAFFORD.

[Copyright: 1934: By Muriel Stafford.]

The ability to be a good critic can be of great value, especially if you can criticize silently. Faultfinders and naggers belong to a different classification.

Small, well formed handwriting is an excellent indication of a good critic. No slant or a leftward slant shows that the writer's emotions do not influence his critical ability, though the keenest critics are very aggressive, so that the writing may slant sharply to the right, as in the first specimen shown below.

These are both men who are well known in Chicago and even these brief specimens indicate that their success is largely due to a shrewdly critical intelligence. Both say little, as the closed o's and a's testify, but they are most observant.



Both writers make sharply pointed small letters. This is especially noticeable in the letters "m" and "n." Even the letter "h" is pointed in the second specimen.

Small r's are outstanding in the critical hand. In other words the r's seem to rise well above the other letters. In these particular signatures there are no r's, but notice the "tent shaped" i-dot that Judge Sonsteby makes in the word "justice." No matter what other indications you may find in a handwriting, the tent shaped i, which is made like a tiny v upside down, reveals critical tendencies.

These men can well afford to be critical in their silent way. Nobody will ever find either of them gullible or indiscreet. They see, they make keen decisions, and they say nothing. It is only the persons who can keep nothing to themselves who cannot afford to be critical. To the others it is a great asset toward success.

When Mr. Donnelly gave me this specimen of his handwriting I said: "Your abilities should make you an excellent lawyer." A companion of his laughed. "You are talking to an important person and the vice president of a large company," he explained.

Mr. Donnelly looked at him for a minute and then said: "But I WAS a lawyer, you know."

Rainy Days Can Be Happy Ones for the Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"Another rainy day!" wail the children. "What shall we do?"

Some day I hope to be able to find time to write a booklet on "What to Do on a Rainy Day."

Though that rainy day booklet will have to wait, I do want to give you a few suggestions that I wrote to a mother who was just getting over those rainy day blues. They are:

First, the arts and crafts—drawing, painting, modeling, wood carving, soap sculpture, carpentry, and sewing.

Many boys who are interested in airplanes and ships may have airplane and ship models. Books can be bought for each—if you wish the names of books on these subjects I shall be happy to give you the information.

Making a collection of some sort is a perennial interest but may be especially pored over on rainy days. The most familiar are, of course, stamps, coins, and picture postcards of various cities.

Another interesting special interest for both clear and rainy days is an aquarium. Breeding tiny tropical fish is an interesting pastime. Reading and studying about them is diverting. All good pet stores sell these fish and all supplies.

Keeping small pets—turtles, lizards, polliwogs—is another feasible thing. Care must be taken that these animals are not neglected nor inconsiderately treated. They must be properly fed and properly "housed."

Collecting pictures on a special subject gives children great pleasure. A child who is interested in locomotives or birds, we'll say, can find many pictures in newspapers and magazines to cut out and paste in a scrapbook. I have titles of books on locomotives, birds, and other specific objects which I shall send to you on request.

Reading is always a cozy rainy day diversion. We have lists of books for all ages.

Your inventiveness must complete the rainy day occupations.

Parents Should Open House to Girl's Friends

BY DORIS BLAKE.

There are ways of handling these modern youngsters and there are ways of NOT handling them. We think the following a perfectly good example of how not to handle one of them.

"My mother is somewhat narrow minded and I have a stepfather who is extremely narrow minded. Every time I have a boy friend at the house [which is rare, indeed] my mother won't let me bring him any further than the porch. Then she stands behind the door and listens to our entire conversation. We never say anything of which we could be ashamed, but who likes to be spied on that way?"

Then Barb goes on to tell how, the other night, she went over to a friend's house, as she told her mother and stepfather she was going to do. There she met a chap she's known some time. She left this house early and the youth brought her home. She invited him into the house. Her grandmother and aunt were there. Her mother and stepfather were out. They had a pleasant time until dad and mother came in. Dad ignored the boy completely. Mother was almost as rude. Next day dad accused the girl of lieing about going to her friend's house and the mother supported the dad's charges. Then, the chap phoned later. Mother listened in on the conversation from an extension phone. The girl cut the talk short, and the chap hasn't phoned or put in an appearance since. The girl, incidentally, is 19 years old.

Parental stupidity, we call it. Complete and utter stupidity! Why isn't the front door thrown wide open to these friends the girl is perfectly willing to bring around? If the stepfather has any interest in the girl at all, why doesn't he make it his business to meet these young men on a friendly basis and give them a chance to show whether they're worth while or not?

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

REBIDDING AGGRESSIVE HANDS AFTER A RESPONSE OF TWO NO TRUMPS.

Yesterday I explained that when you have a 5-4-2-2 distribution I do not advise you to bid your second suit on the second round of bidding. If you want to make a slam try, do so because your primary values justify it in view of your partner's response; first rebid your five card suit, and then, over three no trumps, bid four in the shorter suit for distributional reasons only. If your hand as a whole does not contain primary values beyond those justifying your original bid, let the hand be played in three no trumps and do not mention your second suit at all. Why tell the enemy what not to lead and so, by generally easy inference, just what to lead in order to make it hard for the declarer? However, this consideration lapses when you have

Two Suits, Each of Five or More Cards

because now the distribution factor makes the slam prospects so rosy it becomes far more important to picture your hand to your partner than to conceal anything from the enemy. When the responder bids two no trumps on the first round, knowing nothing about your second suit, he is telling you that he has very strong support for your suit since he has it doubly stopped, in all probability. If it is only singly stopped, he must be extremely strong in the two unbid suits and then probably has a high honor in your first suit. Otherwise how could he be so confident of a game in no trumps? Now, if your suits are headed by no more than A Q 10 and A J 10, you can really depend on not more than one loser among these ten cards. To lose two tricks you must presumably lose two finesses; and it is very unlikely that there will be more than one finesse in the two suits together. True, your partner's response did not promise any high card in your first suit; but he did promise a big hand in high cards of the other suits. With

Sp.—A Q 10 x x	Di.—x x
Ht.—x	Cl.—A J 10 x x

though you have a minimum hand of only two and a half tricks, with which you opened the bidding only because of its highly aggressive type, yet when your partner bids two no trumps you can start right away to count losers. If he has both king and queen of clubs he still must have ace, jack and king, ten, or at least K Q and K J 10 in the red suits. If there are two aces against you, there is, of course, no slam; but if your partner has an ace you can immediately see that you should have a finesse, or a choice of finesses, for a small slam. If he has only one high club honor there will be a finesse to take in that suit; but in that case he must be very strong in both red suits, probably A Q and K Q 10 or A Q and A J. The slam development, though so promising, must not be rushed. No blunders over aces must be risked. No jump bids by you which would show four primary tricks and give him a wrong idea of your top cards.

Bidding the Above Hand.

Opening bid, of course, one spade. Two no trumps from your thrice blessed partner. Three clubs from you, showing either a five card second suit or possibly some extreme distribution such as 5-4-4-0. Three no trumps from your partner. Four clubs from you—a slam try, as we all know that three no trumps is a sure contract. This says, "I have, you see, a real two suiter, so that my opening bid may be shaded below three primary tricks, especially since I had a five card spade suit. Do you fill out my second suit as I hope from your earlier bid? Can you take care of the two unbid suits immediately? That is to say, do you control the time factor in them so that whichever of us becomes declarer can get in before they can take two tricks, and get rid of losers on one or both of my long suits?"

Plainly the responding hand must now sign off in a game contract in the suit he prefers if he has no ace, or if his holdings in the unbid suits are A J x and Q J x—a possibility or really almost a certainty of two immediate losers. Permit him to stop the bidding short of slam if he now signs off. He must have a good reason and you have already bid your hand fully. However, with, say,

Sp.—J x	Di.—A Q x x
Ht.—K Q 10 x	Cl.—K 10 x

he should now bid six no trumps. With

Sp.—K x	Di.—A J 9 x
Ht.—A Q x	Cl.—K 9 x x

he should, without further ado, bid seven clubs over your four clubs in a rubber game. In a tournament, seven no trumps, as this bid should be almost as safe as seven clubs with the added probability of a very helpful heart lead coming up to the ace-queen. If a diamond lead comes, he must gather in the ten tricks in your suit—at worst with a finesse, but this is unlikely—and finally take the heart finesse. A good chance to take any day of the week for so rich a reward.

Preserving Dainty Appearance Basic in Being Lovely

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Isn't this a good time to talk about daintiness of person, with loveliness trend all in the direction of romantic appeal? I'm thinking not only of the usual things of bathing and dusting powders and keeping free from perspiration odors and the like. But of crisp daintiness of underthings, as well as of collars and cuffs and outer things. It's the one charm to which everybody capitulates, men particularly.

Chiefly, however, I wanted to speak of such intimate things as nighties, corsets, slips, etcetera, and their contribution to lovely women. Women sometimes are woefully careless in these matters. Wives even allow husbands to see them in most untidy, even dirty, deshabille. Now, it isn't only for the effect on others that fastidiousness in such things is urged. It's the effect on the woman's own morale. You keep up your morale or let it down according to said fastidiousness of intimate apparel. The point is that soap is cheap. You can get most attractive underthings so reasonably today. And you can, at little expense, be always crisp and clean in these details.

The sense of knowing all's right in these respects gives you more of an air, a well bred assurance. And there's something about all this personal fastidiousness that works to the advantage of your hair, your skin, your teeth, your figure. You take better care of them.

Folies Bergeres Will Appear at the Palace in a New Routine

The "Folies Bergères" revue, which has been in performance as a cabaret entertainment at the French Casino for the last six months, will become a stage production next Friday at the Palace theater. The company of 65 European singers and dancers has been engaged for a two weeks' stay at the Palace, to give an hour's program four times a day in conjunction with motion picture bills.

The run of this highly popular show at the French Casino will end next Wednesday night. The cabaret program to follow will be another entertainment of the European music hall type, with Johann Strauss III. of Vienna, nephew of one of the famous composers of that name and grandson of the other, as orchestra director.

After the engagement at the Palace the "Folies Bergères" company will go to New York to dedicate a theater-restaurant in the Broadway playhouse that was built a few years ago by Earl Carroll.

Referees—Mike Rodden, Duke McCurry.

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The sharpshooting of Dave Schriner, rookie left winger, advanced the New York Americans another step in the National Hocky league ratings tonight as he produced a 2 to 0 victory over the Chicago Blackhawks.

Schriner was the only player who could score in a dull defensive struggle witnessed by 11,000 fans. He had to get all the breaks to do it. Both goals came in the third period, one soon after the start when Schriner eluded the defense at the corner of the cage and bounced a shot off Goalie Lorne Chabot's shoulder. The other goal came in the final minute when Schriner trapped the Hawks with five men down the ice and outraced them.

Play Defensive Game.

For the most part the defenses were in complete control of the situation. Chicago's close back checking, a holdover from last season, seldom let the Americans get a man free in the attacking zone and the New Yorkers, although depending more upon their defense players, guarded just as tightly.

The Hawks didn't open up their game until the last couple of minutes and it cost them a goal when they did. Through the greater part of the game things were so dull that even the $2.50 customers joined the gallery boys in clapping and whistling for more action.

Hawks Almost Score.

The only thing that looked like a Chicago goal in the whole contest came in the second period when Marty Burke fired a long shot that took a bad bounce off Goalie Worters' pads. The goal judge flashed the red light, but the referees ruled the net minder had grabbed the puck before it went inside.

Neither side had an advantage in the first period until Brydge charged Gottselig with half the opening session remaining. That brought a penalty and four Chicago forwards pressed the attack. The Americans closed up their defense and kept firing the puck down the rink as fast as the Hawks brought it to them.

Americans Come Close.

Schriner started the second period by stick handling his way through the Hawk defense, but he had to turn for a left hand shot and Trudell stopped him.

Kendall bounced a close shot off Worters' legs and the New Yorker nearly sent the puck into the cage trying to clear. Worters had a lot of work to do as the Hawks kept firing out of the scrimmage, but Referee Rodden finally detected some one off side and took the puck outside the blue line for a faceoff.

McVeigh tripped Kendall and went to the penalty box. A wide pass by Morenz cost the Hawks a scoring chance. The red light was flashed on the next play when a long shot by M. Burke bounded high over Worters' shoulder and dropped at the edge of the goal. Worters got it, however, before it crossed the line and the referees didn't allow the goal.

Schriner Scores Goal.

At the start of the third period Schriner took the puck down to the end boards, bounced a shot off Chabot's pads and as the goalie went down, he snared his own rebound and banged it into the cage. The time was 1:27.

Trudell replied with a shot that made Goalie Worters jump. Then Dutton got through alone to smash a short shot at Chabot. A moment later Oliver raced in to shoot when March was too busy tossing hot words at Himes to check him. The Hawks plugged away steadily, but couldn't dent the New York defense.

Oliver, slashing at his own rebound, and Gracie sent four shots in succession, but Chabot stopped them all. MacFadyen and Couture did some good work in reply.

Brydge's bad knee was wrenched in a collision with Coulter and he had to quit the game. The Hawks finally put in an extra forward for a final rush. The Americans countered by shooting the puck down the ice and kept it up until the final minute, when Schriner got a loose puck, outraced two Chicago players to slam a shot past Chabot.

90 YARD RUN BY GRIFFITH WINS FOR CARDINALS

Return of Kickoff Beats Green Bay, 6-0.

GREEN BAY [0].		CARDINALS [6].
Rose	L. E.	Creighton
Perry	L. T.	Field
Michalske	L. G.	Volok
Bultman	C	Hughes
Jones	R. G.	Mehringer
Schwammel	R. T.	Gordon
Norgard	R. E.	Duggins
Goldenberg	Q. B.	Greene
Monnett	L. H.	Cook
Grove	R. H.	Griffith
Hinkle	F. B.	Mikulak

Touchdown—Griffith.

Substitutions: Green Bay—Laws for Grove, Bruder for Goldenberg, Jorgenson for Perry, Engebretsen for Perry, Peterson for Norgard, Perry for Michalske, Norgard for Petesen, Dilweg for Rose.

Cardinals—Tipton for Mehringer, Sarboe for Greene, Cuppoletti for Field, McNally for Hughes, Russell for Griffith, Mehringer for Gordon, Isaacson for Volok, Smith for Creighton, Neuman for Duggins, Horstmann for Mikulak, Gordon for Isaacson, Handler for Cuppoletti.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Homer Griffith streaked 90 yards through mud and water with the opening kickoff at Wrigley field yesterday to give the Cardinals a 6 to 0 victory over the Green Bay Packers before the smallest crowd of the National Professional league season in Chicago. Only 3,500 saw the game, which closed the Cardinals' league schedule and gave them a two to one advantage over the Packers in the season series. It was the Cardinals' fifth victory, against six defeats.

Griffith also ran the Packers into defeat at Milwaukee eleven days ago when he picked his way 58 yards through the same sort of sloppy footing to break a scoreless tie.

End Leaves Opening.

Al Norgard, Packer right end, a former Stanford player, opened the way for Griffith's dash yesterday when he disregarded one of the cardinal principles of end play by cutting in toward midfield as he went down on Clark Hinkle's kickoff. He lost himself in a pack of Cardinals and was cut down, leaving his side of the gridiron unprotected. Griffith reversed to the left to swing down the unguarded lane, side stepped Hinkle at the 50 yard line and headed for the goal line.

Bob Monnett, fleet Packer half back, caught Griffith at the 10 yard line and threw him with a headlock, but Griffith bounded off the ground and continued to the goal. Cook's attempt for the extra point was wide.

Repulse Packer Attack.

The Cardinals turned back three Packer threats to protect this lead and three times in the second half they approached another score.

The most determined Packer thrust came in the first period when Grove led a 70 yard march with runs of 14 and 41 yards that ended on the Cardinals' 3 yard line. Hinkle lost two yards in two line smashes, then fumbled, and Monnett recovered for another three yard loss. On fourth down Duggins, Cardinal end, chased Monnett back 19 yards and threw him on the 27 yard line, where the Cardinals took the ball.

Laws' 13 yard run in the second quarter led a foray that advanced to the Cardinals' 25 yard line, but the threat ended with Sarboe's interception of Herber's pass on the 8 yard line. The Packers were on the Cardinal 32 yard line in this period following Sarboe's short kick, but they missed a chance to score when Hinkle's place kick went wide.

Fumble Nets Packers Nothing.

Rose received a fumble on the Cardinals' 23 yard line in the third period, but one line smash and three passes failed and the Cardinals took the ball.

One Cardinal drive, early in the third period, carried to the Packers' 16 yard line, but Cook's attempt for a field goal was blocked by Jorgenson, Green Bay tackle, and recovered by Rose on the 29 yard line.

Can Massare Take It? Louis to See Tonight

BY FRENCH LANE.

Tall, loose jointed, heavily muscled Joe Louis, a Negro lad from Detroit, tonight at the Coliseum will endeavor to leap from the mediocre class of heavyweight boxers into the group of challengers for the world's crown Maxie Baer wears.

A graduate of THE TRIBUNE's Golden Gloves tournaments and out of the amateur ranks only since last July, Louis takes on the clever and at times hard hitting Charley Massare of Pittsburgh in what has been scheduled as a 10 round encounter. It is the most important and surely the toughest engagement made for the young Negro during his rapid and sensational advance toward fame.

He has been trotted out against one professional trial horse after another. He has met ten of them. On eight occasions he put the trial horses down into the resin dust and they were counted out. In his two other professional scraps he won on points.

Victories Win Following.

The general run of these trial horses were either down and out bums from the heavyweight ranks or youngsters who could not cope with the skill and punching ability of Louis.

Still his long string of victories naturally has won him a great following. However, the most ardent Louis fans will not be so certain he is a great fighter until after tonight's scrap.

It may not be a compliment to Massare to say he is ranked among the ten leading heavyweights in the country. Fistic fans know only too well how bad the huskies are who are meekly seeking a battle with Baer. Still Massare is an experienced, two fisted body puncher who has fought such headliners as Steve Hamas, our own Kingfish Levinsky, Maxie Rosenbloom, Larry Johnson, and others. He whipped all of them except Levinsky.

Other Golden Glove Stars.

Laddie Tonelli vs. Billy Miller, 8 rounds.
Bill Treest vs. Johnny Long, 6 rounds.
Fred Caserio vs. Ernie Evans, 4 rounds.
Eddie Stiegal vs. Eddie Cerdes, 4 rounds.
Rudy Sterbens vs. Dan La Marre, 4 rounds.

They promise to furnish fireworks that will give the Coliseum its most lively fistic evening in a good many years.

CAN A LION BEAT A BEAR? NOT THIS TIME!

Bronko Nagurski, crashing full back who led the second half rally of the Bears, dares Detroit tacklers to come in and try to tip him over.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 29.—Chicago's Bears will not be whipped. Chicago knows this and Detroit had its lesson today.

Detroit's Lions, bitter rivals of the Bears for the western championship of the national professional league, were defeated at the University of Detroit stadium by these fighting Bears, 19 to 16. By their victory—their twelfth consecutive triumph of the present campaign in which they are defending their national title—the Bears now will face the winners of the eastern section of the league for the championship.

Twenty-six thousand, a crowd of roaring, partisan fans which jammed the stadium until hundreds crouched along the white chalk lines of the end zones, saw the Lions dash to the first touchdown of the game. Then, these Lions, a fast, shifty, inspired team, smashed through the Bears' defenses to lead at the intermission, 16 to 7.

Bears Rally Once More.

No team in three years has scored such an advantage over the Bears in 30 minutes of play. It seemed that the champions, long famous for their tremendous finishes, were destined to lose. Despite their touchdown in the first half, which, at the time had tied the score at 7-7, the Bears had not shown the driving power expected. Handicapped by the loss of the fleet Beattie Feathers, leading ground gainer of the league, and the hard charging Joe Kopcha, a valiant guard, the Bears' attack had lacked precision and their defense had yielded to Detroit's battering.

But once more the champions rallied. From the opening kickoff of the second half, they followed every play as eagerly as hounds follow a scent; seized every opportunity, and from them Jack Manders kicked two field goals. The Bears trailed, 16 to 13.

Pass to Hewitt Scores.

Once more the Bears capitalized on alertness. Joe Zeller intercepted a pass and raced to the Detroit 4 yard line. Twice Nagurski smashed into the line until the ball rested one yard short of the goal. A third time big Bronko received the pass from center but this time he stopped at the line and lobbed the ball to Bill Hewitt in the end zone for the touchdown. It didn't matter that Nagurski's try for the point was blocked, for Chicago led, 19 to 16.

Six minutes remained. As the hand of the mammoth wooden clock slowly paced the flying seconds, the Lions flashed a last, desperate bid for victory. From their own 20 yard line the Lions smashed and passed for five consecutive first downs. Nearer and nearer they plunged toward victory until again a vast wave of sound reverberated from stand to stand.

But in the last minute, the Bears summoned new strength to check the drive. They wrested the ball 14 yards short of the goal. And as Detroit's last play, a forward pass, fell incomplete in the end zone, the Lions saw their championship hopes vanish in the gray haze of the November afternoon.

Sunday the Lions meet the Bears

WILL BAER FIGHT LEVINSKY? WAIT RULING OF COURT

Champion May Go Back to California.

Whether or not negotiations for a four round bout between Champion Max Baer and King Levinsky at Chicago Stadium Dec. 28 will be completed will depend in a large way on a decision rendered by a judge in a Sacramento, Cal., court tomorrow. On that day a verdict is due on the suit brought by J. Hamilton Lorimer, former manager of Baer, for approximately $40,000 he alleges is coming to him from earnings of the champion. If the decision is against Baer he and his handlers intend to return to California [after fulfilling a two weeks' exhibition tour in Wisconsin, Iowa and Ohio] to seek an appeal in a higher court.

Those who watched Baer's workout at Trafton's gymnasium Wednesday detected traces of worry on the titleholder's face and they may have placed the reason for this on the pending verdict. The supposition would be wrong, however, for Max was worried because of a foot ailment and a wound on his left forearm which has irritated him no little since a Mexican mosquito bit him last week. After the drill he sent out an S. O. S. for a physician and a chiropodist. They immediately answered the call. As a result Baer was feeling much better yesterday after a Thanksgiving dinner. Manager Ancil Hoffman announced Max will resume workouts this afternoon.

Giants Clinch Eastern Title; Win, 27 to 0

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 29.—(AP)—The New York Giants passed their way to a 27 to 0 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers before 15,000 at Ebbets field this afternoon.

The triumph gave the New Yorkers the undisputed championship of the eastern division of the National Professional league and earned them the right to meet the Chicago Bears, leaders in the western half, in the playoff for the league title at the Polo grounds on Dec. 9.

The Giants scored two touchdowns each in the first and second quarters. The Dodgers held them scoreless in the last two periods.

Starting on their 40 yard line the Giants quickly scored a touchdown in the first period, Ed Danowski hurling a 22 yard pass to Ray Flaherty for the score.

Passes brought about another touchdown in the same period. Two heaves of 14 and 18 yards from Danowski to Morris Badgro and Dale Burnett advanced the ball to the Dodger 2 yard mark. Danowski then shot a short pass to Burnett, who stepped across the line.

Jack McBride fired two passes to Burnett for 13 and 10 yards each, which netted a touchdown, and kicked the point.

A fumble paved the way for the last score. The Giants took the ball on the Dodger 18 yard line and Willis Smith passed to Elvin Richards across the goal line. Lineup:

OLYMPICS OPEN HOCKY SEASON WITH 6-2 VICTORY

The Olympics amateur hocky team opened its season at the Stadium last night by defeating Western university of London, Can., 6 to 2, before a crowd of 8,000. A last period rally which scored three goals in three minutes sewed up the game for the Chicagoans.

Phil LaBatte, Olympic defenseman opened the scoring, beating Goalie Nielson with a long one in 14:00 of the first period. Cameron, on a pass from Guthrie evened it up in 7:03 of the second session, but an unassisted tally by Jeremiah in 15:00 gave the Olympics their edge at the end of the second period.

The Chicagoans' big splurge in the third session started with Jeremiah taking a pass from Arnold to score in 26 seconds. This pair repeated their performance in 1:48 with Arnold taking a pass from Jeremiah to beat Nielson. Still pressing hard the Olympics bagged their third counter of the period in 3:08 when Nichols took a pass from Skrinner, skated down left wing and beat Nellson on a hard angle shot.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES—THE BLOW OFF

Bears Rally to Win Over Lions, 19-16

in the final league game at Wrigley field, Chicago. But while Detroit may win, the Bears now hold a two game lead and are certain to go east for the final title game a week later.

Ace Gutowsky, Detroit's smashing full back, who outgained all the ball carriers of both teams, was the Lions' greatest player today.

The scrappy Detroit line men made their initial scoring bid early in the first period. They harried the Bear line i.. a 52 yard drive which ended when Clark missed a drop kick from the Chicago 25 yard line. Shortly after, Capt. George Christiansen and Ox Emerson ripped through to slap Brumbaugh's second down forward pass into the air on the Bears' 36 yard line. Buster Mitchell, left end, grabbed the ball and ran to the Bears' 4 yard line before he was dropped by his pursuers.

Ronzani Takes Pass.

Molesworth received Ernie Caddel's kickoff and ran it from behind the goal to the Bears' 25 yard line. Then Ronzani and Nagurski led the parade of 10 plays which ended when Molesworth passed to Ronzani in the end zone, a final scoring gain of 13 yards. Ronzani dashed past Clark to grab the ball. Manders replaced Ronzani and tied the score at 7-7 with his kick.

Detroit had just started to fight. Again the Lions marched and when the Bears finally smothered the drive, with the ball on Chicago's 35 yard line, Presnell dropped back to the 42 yard stripe, with Gutowsky holding the ball, and place kicked for a 10 to 7 lead.

Mr. Gutowsky Again!

The Bears received the kickoff but relinquished possession with a punt which rolled dead on Detroit's 35 yard line. From here Detroit took up its attack. In two first downs and eight plays the Lions reached Chicago's 12 yard line. On fourth down, Hewitt was off side, and Detroit received a first down 7 yards from the goal. Gutowsky swung into action and his third drive erased the distance, making the Detroit lead 16-7.

Manders scored his two field goals in the third quarter. To set the stage for the first, Ted Rosequist, left tackle, blocked Clark's punt on Detroit's 24 yard line. Luke Johnsos, who played one of his best games, grabbed the bounding ball and reached the Lions' 5 yard line before he was run to earth. The Lions pushed the Bears back for 8 yards' loss in three plays, but Manders, standing on Detroit's 21 yard line, kicked a field goal. Detroit now led, 16 to 10.

Manders Clicks on Long Kick.

Shortly after, a short drive sent the Bears into Detroit territory, and this time, on fourth down, Manders matched Presnell's 42 yard place kick. The ball barely cleared the bar. Thus, at the start of the fourth period, Detroit led only 16 to 13.

Joe Zeller, who shared the defensive center's duties with Ed Kawal today, grabbed Gutowsky's pass to the side and opened the way for the winning touchdown. Detroit had battered to the Bears' 41 yard line. Here, on first down, Gutowsky passed to Clark, but Zeller dashed in, took the ball, and sped down the east side line. Johnsos partly blocked Gutowsky but the Lions' full back, by a great play, stopped Zeller on the Detroit 4 yard line. You've learned how Nagurski, stopped with 3 yards gain in two plunges, passed to Hewitt for the winning points.

Lions Lead in First Downs.

Detroit outpointed the Bears in first downs, 15 to 6. Three of the Lions' first downs were by penalties, three by passing and nine by rushing. The Bears' first downs were equally divided between passing and rushing.

In 19 passes the Bears completed six for 63 yards, had 3 intercepted, and failed on 10. Detroit passed 15 times, completed 3 for 39 yards, failed on 10, and had two intercepted. The Bears did not fumble. Detroit fumbled twice and recovered both. Detroit was penalized 20 yards, the Bears 35 yards.

ST. LOUIS SOCCER STARS WIN FROM WONDERBOLTS, 5-1

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Chicago's Wieboldt Wonderbolts went down to a 5 to 1 defeat in an intercity soccer match here today with an all-star St. Louis eleven.

The St. Louisans scored twice in the first half and netted their three additional goals in the second, before the visitors tallied on a penalty kick by Bill Watson.

Bill Gonsalves, with a pair of goals, stood out for the all-stars. The other goals were scored by Willie McLean, Jimmy Roe, and Bert Patenaude.

CORNELL RALLY FAILS AND PENN TRIUMPHS, 23-13

Ithaca Eleven Trails at Half, 16 to 0.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Pennsylvania's football team closed its season triumphantly today by outscoring its old rival, Cornell, 23 to 13, in an exciting race for touchdowns on a rain-soaked gridiron.

A Thanksgiving day crowd of 45,000 saw the Quakers gallop into a sixteen point lead in the first half by cashing in on all their scoring opportunities, and then survive a smashing comeback by Cornell in the last two periods.

After yielding two touchdowns and a field goal, Cornell rallied and outplayed the Quakers in the last half. It scored touchdowns in each of the last two periods and threatened to score two more with a combined running and passing attack, only to have one of its thrusts bounce back at them in the form of a 76 yard gallop for Penn's third touchdown by Bill Shanahan, substitute back.

Shanahan's dash, the longest gain, followed his interception of a pass thrown by Cornell's captain, Walter Switzer, as the Ithacans were pounding along from Penn's 35 yard line.

COLGATE, 20; BROWN, 13.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Brown university's football team fought Colgate evenly for three periods today but wilted as the Red Raiders drove 50 yards for a fourth period touchdown and a 20 to 13 victory.

Offenhammer started the scoring on the eighth play of the game by catching Karaban's punt on Colgate's 10 yard line, cutting over to the right side line and racing down it for the remaining 90 yards.

In the second period George Lear, a guard replacement, intercepted one of Kern's passes on Colgate's 45 yard line, running it back to the 25, where Karaban completed a 23 yard pass to Mall Ball. Karaban smashed over and Leigh Lynch came in to place kick the tying point.

An exchange of kicks early in the third period put Colgate back on its 10 yard line and when Kern tried to punt out of danger, Capasso broke through and blocked the kick. The ball rolled back to the two yard line where Ball recovered it. Karaban carried it over to put the Bruins ahead.

Colgate, defeated only by Ohio State this season, then launched another 90 yard drive to pull even. It ended with Kern's pass to Steve Kuk in Brown's end zone.

Early in the fourth period, when the Colgate attack was lagging, Marty McDonough relieved Offenhammer and supplied most of the yardage in the march from midfield that ended with Irwin scoring the winning touchdown from Brown's two yard line.

FORDHAM, 39; N. Y. U., 13.

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Fordham turned back New York university at the Yankee stadium today, 39 to 13, before 25,000. There was not slightest doubt of which was the better team in action, but the game was far more interesting and closely fought than the score would indicate.

Both sides played hard football, and refused to let the slippery field hamper them. Long and short forward passes, flashing runbacks of kicks, long and short lateral passes and one sixty-seven yard dash from scrimmage to Fordham's last touchdown by Steph Sarota, were packed into the sixty minutes of play.

BUCKNELL TIES TEMPLE.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 29. — [Special.]—Temple's dream of an undefeated football season, the first in the university history, was achieved today, but with it came a 0-0 tie with Bucknell in the closing game of the year. Close to 30,000 persons saw the game.

Temple, with seven victories and two ties, rounded out its first undefeated season in ten years of college football. Temple, outgained on first downs, 15 to 6, got as far as the 9 yard line at the start of the second period.

PITT, 20; CARNEGIE, 0.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 29. — (AP) — Pittsburgh today charged to a 20 to 0 victory over Carnegie Tech.

Approximately 34,000 saw the Panthers, aided by fumbles, score touchdowns in the first, third, and final periods in the 21st clash between the home town rivals.

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Washington and Lee won the Southern football championship here today by defeating the University of South Carolina, 14 to 7. All touchdowns were made on passes. The score was 7 to 7 at the end of the first half, but late in the last quarter Mattox flipped a pass to Seaton for 33 yards and a touchdown.

Kansas State 19 to 7 Winner Over Nebraska

Carideo Out?

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 29.—(AP)—The Globe-Democrat says Frank Carideo resigned as head football coach at the University of Missouri immediately after his team's 20 to 0 defeat by the University of Kansas today. The newspaper says Carideo's resignation went to the Missouri committee on intercollegiate athletics as soon as the game ended. Lynn Waldorf, Kansas State coach, and Don Faurot, coach at Kirksville Teachers' college, which has a string of 26 straight victories, were reported candidates to succeed the former Notre Dame quarter back.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Kansas State's football team beat the Nebraska Cornhuskers with a last half rally here today, 19 to 7, and won the Big Six football championship, the first major conference gridiron title ever taken by the Wildcats.

The victory over the Huskers, who have given up their title only once before, to the Kansas 1930 team, in the seven years of the conference, climaxed an undefeated march through all Big Six competition.

Nebraska pushed the Wildcats all over the gridiron in the first half and scored a touchdown. Bob Benson carried the ball over in the second period at the end of a long drive beginning in the first quarter.

The order was reversed in the second half, with Kansas State the aggressor.

Maurice [Red] Elder, sophomore full back, came through with the first Kansas State touchdown on a nine yard plunge ending an 80 yard sustained march. Oren Stoner's kick tied the score.

Stoner crossed the goal line twice standing up in the final period on end sweeps from the 11 and 12 yard lines for the other touchdowns.

KANSAS, 20; MISSOURI, 0.

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Outweighed and outclassed by a powerful University of Kansas eleven, Coach Frank Carideo's hapless Missouri Tigers were crushed under a 20 to 0 defeat here today that placed them in the Big Six cellar for the third successive year.

The victory, fifth straight over the Tigers in their annual feud, left the Jayhawks fifth in the conference standing, and marked the eighth successive loss of the season for the Missouri team.

Picked as the acid test of the Carideo régime, the encounter made it all but a foregone conclusion that the stocky one time Notre Dame quarter back, under strong alumni fire for 22 defeats in three years, would not be retained for another year.

A 50 yard drive from midfield, led by George Hapgood, brought the first score. John Peterson's touchdown gave the Kansans a 13 to 0 lead at half time. Hapgood's 55 yard run and a pass led to the final tally.

ALABAMA WINS, 34-0

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 29.—(AP)—University of Alabama staged a touchdown parade this afternoon before 24,000 cheering spectators, to bury a weaker Vanderbilt university team under a score of 34 to 0.

Knifing through the Commodore line almost at will, tearing around its ends and snagging occasional passes fired by the great Millard [Dixie] Howell, Alabama completed its football schedule for 1934 with nine consecutive triumphs and in ringing up its seventh southeastern conference victory established a claim to at least a share of the title.

Hopes of the Crimson tide for an invitation to represent the East and South against Stanford in the Rose Bowl classic New Year's day soared as the avalanche of touchdowns proved a test of the Red Regiment's power.

ST. MARY'S BEATS OREGON, 13 TO 7, IN SECOND HALF

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 29.—(AP)—An inspired St. Mary's eleven put on a second half drive today to defeat the University of Oregon, 13 to 7.

Herb Schreiber, left half back, was the spark in the St. Mary's charge. Tossing passes for gains of 11 and 14 yards, respectively, and crashing the line, Schreiber steered his team to the 28 yard line, where penalties and a short loss saw the gains apparently go for naught. But on the 41 yard line Right Half Back Nichelini got the ball and dashed around Oregon's right end to a touchdown.

With only a few minutes to play, Jorgensen smashed through to block an attempted punt by Riordan. The ball had been passed from Oregon's twenty. The oval bounded back behind the Webfoot line, where Pendleton fell on it. Kellogg place kicked the extra point.

In the Wake of the News

PLAYED FOOTBALL BEFORE.

AN untold incident of the 1933 Maroon football season recently was revealed by one of the principals. It concerns Vin Sahlin, the peppery little back who starred on so many occasions.

When Clark Shaughnessy arrived to assume his new duties of head coach he was told of Sahlin, his ability, how his cockiness and his driving manner when calling signals sometimes irked other members of the eleven. Shaughnessy was advised that if Sahlin could be deflated a bit it probably would improve team morale.

On the first day of practice Sahlin tore off several long runs and was all over the field. At the end of the afternoon Coach Shaughnessy approached him and asked, "What's your name?" Vin, a star, looked up a bit surprised and said, "Sahlin." "Have you ever played football before?" continued the coach. "Yes; I played in high school," replied the now amazed Maroon.

On the second day of practice again Sahlin was the showy performer. After practice again Shaughnessy approached the pepperbox and said, "What did you tell me your name was yesterday?" The reply. Then, "And did you tell me you had ever played football before?" was the question. By this time a none too gracious affirmative.

Several days thereafter Sahlin had to consult Dean Henry Gale, whom he knew very well through the latter's interest in football, concerning his course of study. Dean Gale was sitting facing the light as Vin entered and the latter's face was lost in the shadow. Not recognizing the Maroon star under these conditions Dean Gale inquired, "What is your name, please?"

Regret.

We'd meant to go home together—
We'd planned it ev'ry year—
But something would always happen
When holidays drew near.
We knew that our mother wished it—
She dreamed she'd sometime see
All of us gathered together
Just as we used to be.
Of course she was disappointed
When we would write or phone
Each year that we couldn't make it—
That meant she'd dine alone.
Why of course we sent her presents
[Too good, she thought, to use]
But we couldn't spare that moment
The busy world might lose.
Today we've come home together—
Around a lonely board;
We'll gather tomorrow, thinking
Of time we couldn't afford.
For a mound is freshly covered
With flow'rs and children's tears
Who couldn't find time to visit
In all her lonely years. J. C.

We Do Our Part.

Wake: I think I have one for the "book." Being a loyal Michigan alumnus, I finally was forced into a bet with a gent on the Ohio State-Michigan game. The aforesaid gent, knowing your conservatism and being a braggart on the Bucks, as they now prefer to be called, agreed to spot me 6 points more than your forecast. To top it off, he gave me 2 to 1 odds. This great gesture was to give me a chance to even up my season's losses. When I saw your forecast of 27 to 0 for Ohio State I felt pretty good about it. The score was 34 to 0. I lose by one point. Why didn't you give Ohio State all points after touchdown for 28? F. C. Halstead.

Knox Battles On to Its 27th Defeat in Row

Monmouth, Ill., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Knox marches on! The fighting sons of Old Siwash today battled to their 27th consecutive defeat at the hands of Monmouth, thereby tying Hobart college of Buffalo, N. Y., for the all time national championship in football futility.

The score was 39 to 0, but that is important only in that it illustrates the determination with which the record seekers went about the business of proving themselves the most consistent team in the Little Nineteen and Midwest conferences.

Remember That 1931 Victory?

Not since early in the 1931 season has Knox known what it means to hear the victory bell in Old Main, which is rung immediately after the closing gun of every triumph. That 1931 achievement was attained at the expense of Beloit.

Knox's drive for recognition as the doormat of two conferences reached its peak this season, when it succeeded in refraining from crossing the goal line of any opponent.

Scots Score at Once.

Monmouth scored in the first three minutes of play when Whelan, full back, dashed 46 yards to the goal. After that it was a parade of Monmouth backs with the Knox players in the rôle of spectators. The Scots counted again in the first period and yet again as the second began. They got three touchdowns in the third quarter and then called it a day.

MUSIC APLENTY ASSURED AT PREP FOOTBALL FINAL

1,000 Bandsmen Parade at Game Tomorrow.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

There will be more than football played tomorrow afternoon at Soldiers' field when Lindblom, champion of the City league, and Leo, Catholic league titled holders, battle in the high school game of the year. Officials in charge of the game have seen to it that none of the details which go with a big time contest will be lacking, least of all music.

Barnet Hodes, secretary of Chicago's own Christmas benefit, announced yesterday that approximately 1,000 bandsmen, representing eight Chicago high schools, will appear before the game and between the halves to parade and form intricate letterings, as well as to play the school music of both Leo and Lindblom. In addition, an effort is being made to obtain the services of the Police Post band of the American Legion.

High Officials to Attend.

The Army-Navy game may have its fill of high officials from both of the services, but tomorrow's game will have a goodly share of celebrities. As representatives of the two teams, George Cardinal Mundelein, as head of the Catholic schools, and James McCahey, president of the board of education, will face each other from opposite sides of the field. Mayor Kelly, with Gov. Horner as his guest, will occupy another box.

The idea of Chicago's own Christmas benefit was conceived and carried through for the first time last year by Mayor Kelly. At that time every stage, radio, and screen star in Chicago volunteered his or her services for the "Night of Stars," a huge show held at the Chicago Stadium which netted approximately $150,000. This money was spent to provide warm clothing and shoes for 30,000 of the city's underprivileged children. The "Night of Stars" will be held again this year at the Stadium on the night of Dec. 19, but will now have the additional revenue from the football game, suggested by Mayor Kelly as a new part of the Christmas benefit, to swell the 1934 fund.

The mayor is chairman of the benefit committee, Tax Commissioner Hodes is secretary, and Col. A. A. Sprague, treasurer.

Kelly Trophy to Winner.

The game tomorrow will be the rubber contest of the interleague series, City league teams having won two of the four previously played and Catholic league teams two. The Mayor Kelly trophy will be awarded to the winning team, while the losers will receive a plaque emblematic of their own league title as well as of their participation in the charity game. The Kelly trophy is a regulation size silver football mounted on a black stand, with the silver figure of a football player atop it. In addition to the team trophies the mayor will present members of each team with a gold football watch charm.

CONTINENTAL'S 1934 PROFIT SET AT $10,000,000

40% Increase Over '33 Is Indicated.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust company, biggest bank under one roof west of the Hudson river, is expected to show net earnings of approximately $10,000,000 for the year ending Dec. 31, 1934, it was learned yesterday.

W. J. CUMMINGS. [Maurice Seymour Photo.]

This would be an increase of about 40 per cent over 1933, when net earnings of $7,130,863 were reported, and would be equal to about $10.50 a share on the 750,000 shares of outstanding common stock [par value $33.33 1-3 per share], after deducting $2,125,000 for interest on the $50,000,000 of preferred stock [par value also $33.33 1-3 per share].

The preferred stock was sold in December, 1933, when the stated value of the common stock was written down from $75,000,000 to $25,000,000. The Reconstruction Finance corporation bought $49,999,667 of the preferred, $333 going to a lone common stockholder who exercised his right to subscribe.

Equals $6.66 on Preferred.

The estimated earnings of $10,000,000 for the current year would be equal to about $6.66 per share on the 1,500,000 outstanding shares of preferred, which is far above present dividend requirements of $1.33 per share.

During the first three months of this year the dividend rate on the preferred stock was 5 per cent. As of April 1, however, the Reconstruction Finance corporation reduced the rate to 4 per cent to all banks whose preferred stock it held. This change alone saved the Continental $375,000 this year.

A further saving will be effected beginning Jan. 1 when a second reduction in the preferred dividend rate, this time to 3½ per cent, becomes effective.

The estimated $10,000,000 for this year represents net earnings from current operations. This allows for any losses or recoveries on 1934 business. It does not, however, include recoveries from or additional writeoffs of slow assets which were held prior to Jan. 1, 1934.

No Dividend on Common.

The substantial increase in earnings this year, it is understood, will not lead to resumption of dividends on the common stock in the near future. According to the bank's articles of incorporation as revised under RFC supervision, 40 per cent of net profits, after payment of preferred dividends, is to be placed in the preferred stock retirement fund, provided that the amount so paid into the fund shall not exceed 5 per cent of the par value of the outstanding preferred.

The Continental has achieved its increased earnings this year in a number of ways. The rate of return on its investments has been raised substantially. Current losses have been lower. Overhead has been cut. The amount paid out in interest has been reduced.

The amount paid out in interest on savings deposits alone, it is reported on good authority, has been reduced about $400,000 despite an increase in such deposits. A rough guess, based upon the amount of savings deposits reported quarterly by the bank, would be that the interest paid out this year was about two million dollars.

Interest Down to 2 Per Cent.

In 1933 Chicago clearing house banks paid 3 per cent on deposits. During the first half of 1934 they paid 2½ per cent and in the last half 2 per cent.

Another saving has resulted from the law which went into effect in June, 1933, prohibiting banks from paying interest on demand deposits.

One great saving effected this year consists of a reduction of about one million dollars in state personal property taxes. The bank pays about 2 per cent on every dollar [par value] of common stock outstanding. Last year the par value of the common was $75,000,000. The first of the year this was reduced to $25,000,000 when $50,000,000 of preferred was sold. Inasmuch as the RFC is an agency of the federal government and not taxable by the state no funds were set aside for the payment of state taxes on the stock held by the RFC.

The government securities in which the bank invested the $50,000,000 that it got from the RFC have not yielded as much as the amount that the bank is required to pay the RFC in dividends, but the saving of about one million in state taxes, it is understood, offsets this discrepancy.

Investment Policy Changed.

Much of the increase in earnings arises from the bank's changed investment policy. During 1933, like other banks, the Continental was striving for extreme liquidity. Consequently its investments in government bonds and other securities were largely in the very low yield, short term varieties. Gradually during 1934 it has returned to the more normal policy of investing in bonds of longer maturities yielding a better interest return.

A program of economy in operation has been followed by the Continental. There have been salary reductions, including some of the officers, and in many cases promotions have been accompanied by only modest pay increases. Some departments have been consolidated and others scaled down considerably.

Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the board of directors, declined to comment on the bank's earnings results for 1934, although he admitted that he was greatly "encouraged." Figures for the year are scheduled to be officially announced about Dec. 31.

Wheat Lower Abroad; U. S. Takes Holiday

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 29.—(AP)—The steady advance of Liverpool prices was halted today and wheat futures prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange were quick to follow the decline of the overseas market. Values closed one cent lower. Values declined sharply at the start and held around the day's bottom levels until the close, with December at 77¼ cents, May at 82⅛ to 82¼ cents, and July at 82⅞ cents.

The effect of moderate export sales of Canadian wheat, 500,000 bushels, failed to stem the decline. Most of the wheat was destined for European consumption. The setback at Liverpool halted three days of advancing prices and local values were quick to follow. Heavy selling by American interests was reported from Liverpool, prices closing 1⅛ to 1½ pence lower.

Argentine Market Lower.

Another reported cause of the Liverpool slump was the heavy liquidation at Buenos Aires, where prices declined 1⅜ cents, due to the setting of minimum price levels on wheat in Argentina at levels under current world prices. Argentine wheat was "pegged" at the same levels as last year, 5.57 centavos per quintal, equal to 52 cents a bushel in United States funds. This brought out a flood of realizing sales in the English market, it was reported.

Trading here, however, was generally quiet. Prices dropped sharply at the opening and thereafter interest in the market languished. With United States markets on holiday, intermarket operations were at a standstill.

Demand from U. S. Shrinks.

Cash wheat demand from the United States today also was not as keen as in past days. Premiums on low grade wheats, however, remained firm. Coarse grains futures prices declined in sympathy with the weakness of wheat. Closing prices follow:

WHEAT NATIONS MAKE PROGRESS TOWARD QUOTAS

BUDAPEST, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Progress toward agreement among the four great wheat producing nations of the world on the all-important question of export quotas was reported today.

After meeting privately for three hours, delegates to the world wheat conference here from the United States, Canada, Argentina, and Australia indicated that prospects for concurrence on the allotment of basic quotas for 1935-'36, and possibly 1936-'37, as well as final allocation for the current year were brighter. It was regarded unlikely, however, that any agreement could be reached before Saturday.

It is at the insistance of Argentina that the delegates have continued to try to reach an agreement on future basic quotas. Canada is regarded as probably the only country that would have more than the normal surplus next August, amounting to about 100,000,000 bushels. This was expected to make quota division less difficult.

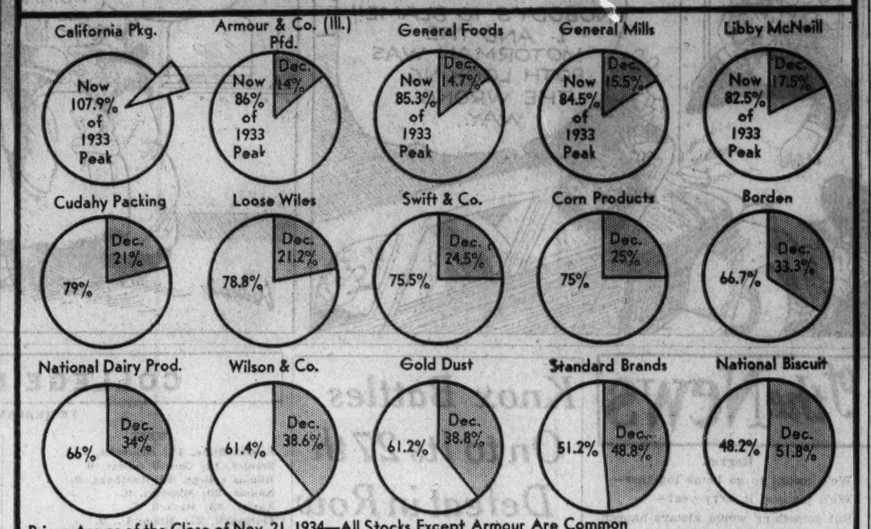
How Present Food Stock Prices Compare With the 1933 Peak



Prices Are as of the Close of Nov. 21, 1934—All Stocks Except Armour Are Common

Urges Voters Demand U. S. Square Budget

Newark, N. J., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Warning against continuance of "mad spending," Archibald B. Roosevelt, speaking today as a founder of the National Economy league, called for voters to demand balancing of the federal budget and favored "reasonable additional taxes as one means of accomplishing such a balancing.

A. B. ROOSEVELT. [Acme Photo.]

"If the President and the congress balance the national budget at the coming session of congress," Roosevelt said, "then you will see the end of the depression—good times back again—before next Thanksgiving day rolls around. Once more we are embarked on our national vice, extravagance. If we continue, we shall soon be in the position of a bankrupt. Bankrupts are not permitted any choice of action. They must do as their creditor or their receiver tells them."

Charges U. S. Drains Income.

Quoting figures, Roosevelt said that a minimum of 20 per cent of the national income goes to "support the governmental octopus we have allowed to grow up in our midst," and added that two months in every twelve must be devoted to work in support of "gigantic government machines."

"Let no demagogue fool you," he continued. "No scheme can or will be evolved which will permit the mass of the people to avoid paying to their government by foisting the burden on the few. We must stop our mad spending. Continuing, it means we will burden all poor and all rich alike with intolerable taxes. The only alternative to this is inflation which always ends in dire poverty.

Cites Fear of Inflation.

"There is hanging over the people in all walks of life the grave fear of inflation, induced by continued unbalanced budgets, which would impair or destroy their savings deposited in savings banks or trust institutions or represented by life insurance policies. They have witnessed the disastrous effect of inflation abroad upon savings, salaries and wages.

"To terminate this uncertainty and thereby protect their savings, their life insurance, their wages and their salaries, I believe that the vast majority of the people have both the intelligence and the will to bear any reasonable additional burden."

BUSINESS CHIEFS OF 30 COUNTRIES TO PLAN REVIVAL

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Business men in thirty nations affiliated with the international chamber of commerce are being asked to state their views as to practical international steps that can be taken to accelerate world recovery.

Acting on behalf of American business men, Thomas J. Watson, chairman of the American committee of the chamber, has sent out a letter announcing plans for a world conference of business men to be held next June in Paris under the international chamber's auspices. More than 1,000 leaders of trade, industry, and finance are expected to participate in the deliberations.

The tentative program lists current world trade problems, some of long standing and others arising out of the depression. Discussions will center around four major topics, as follows: Stabilization of relations between currencies; revival of international movement of goods and capital; organization of production and marketing; international transportation problems.

Consolidated Textile Bonds.

Investors' Guide: I am interested in your column and would be thankful if you would let me know something about Consolidated Textile bonds.—Mrs. K. A.

Answer: Even semi-boom time operations in the latter half of 1933 and the first half of 1934 were insufficient to place Consolidated Textile corporation's operations on a profitable basis. With the exception of $54,000 profit in 1923 and $153,000 in 1927, the company has operated at losses in each of the last 13 years.

Loss for the first half of 1934 was $193,000, against loss of $143,000 for the first half of 1933. Second half operations this year will probably reflect losses accruing from the general textile strike in September.

The company lost $229,000 in 1933, $1,234,000 in 1932, $1,248,000 in 1931 and $2,411,000 in 1930.

On Dec. 31, 1933, current assets, including $237,000 cash, totaled $2,776,000 and current liabilities, including $194,000 notes payable, were $574,000. In addition funded debt was $7,305,000 and accrued bond interest not paid was $2,214,000.

The $2,750,000 first 8s, due 1941, and the $4,555,000 7 per cent notes, extended to July 15, 1934, have been in default since 1930. Both issues are purely speculative.

Problem in Foreign Exchange.

Investors' Guide: I turned in three Bordeaux bonds, due Nov. 1. The bonds called for payment in "gold of the fineness, etc." I cannot understand why I should lose $154.41 in order to get my money out of them. Face value of bonds, $300; exchange on Paris, $658.75; check I received, $504.34. I know I am like the Winston-Salem banker — "dumb." Since the senate bank investigation one has no confidence in any one.—Miss S. O. M.

Answer: You were treated fairly. The bonds were paid in the equivalent of a dollar of gold of the standard weight and fineness existing at the time the bonds were issued.

The "exchange on Paris" of $658.75 which you mention is not the amount of the proceeds of your bond deposited in Paris—it is the value of 100 francs in terms of United States money on the day the transaction was completed. In other words, each franc was worth 6.58¾ cents.

The formerly existing par of exchange was 25.52 francs to the dollar [although the ratio has since dropped considerably]. Multiplying 25.52 [francs] times 6.58¾ will give you the amount you should have received for each dollar of indebtedness due you. Multiply that by 300 and you will find it equals the total amount due you, $504.3387—you received $504.34.

HEAD OF COTTON SHIPPERS FLAILS WALLACE'S PLAN

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 29.—(AP)—S. Y. West, Little Rock, former president of the American Cotton Shippers' association, today described Secretary Wallace's proposed steps for additional cotton acreage reduction next year as "steps backward in the solution of the cotton situation in the United States."

"If the government would turn its attention toward a program to sell the cotton raised in the United States it wouldn't have to ask for all these cuts in acreage," said West.

Debt of U. S. Rises Faster Than Abroad

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—The United States, by comparison with other countries, since 1929 has shown the greatest increase in its federal debt and has made the least progress toward recovery, according to the First National bank of Boston, in its current bank letter.

Stating that the data on debt were obtained from official sources and the indices on industrial from the league of nations' compilations, the bank gives the best percentages in industrial recovery to Sweden, Great Britain, Germany, Italy, Canada, France, Belgium, Holland, Poland, and the United States, in that order.

Debt Outruns Revival.

The percentages of debt increase have been, in order, in the United States, Germany, Sweden, Canada, Holland, Italy, Belgium, France, Poland, and Great Britain. The percentage of industrial increase for the United States is shown as about 65 per cent and the debt increase as 60 per cent.

"In this country there has been continued emphasis placed upon large public expenditures as a means of restoring purchasing power and thus ending the depression," the bank states. "Under such a policy the federal debt has continued to mount, but no steady advance has been made toward recovery. As a matter of fact, since last May the index of industrial production has been consistently under the corresponding period a year ago and the number of unemployed in September was nearly 750,000 more than in September, 1933.

Deficits Cloud Future.

"The continued piling up of huge deficits has cast a cloud of uncertainty over the future. In consequence, business has hesitated to make long term commitments, capital goods industries remained stagnant, heavy unemployment continued, and the depression did not end. With the new spirit of coöperation which is springing up all over the country, a new feeling of hope is coming into our industrial life and fear seems to be subsiding.

"In order to restore prosperity we must definitly work toward a balanced budget. In addition, artificial price fixing policies should be abandoned, as they hold back demand and increase unemployment. Costs should be lowered, especially in the building industry, which accounts for a large percentage of the unemployed."

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Holders of Union Electric Light and Power company of Illinois first mortgage 5½ per cent bonds, series A, due Jan. 1, 1954, are being notified by the Chase National bank, as successor trustee, that $125,000 principal amount of these bonds has been drawn for redemption on Jan. 1, 1935, for account of the sinking fund. Payment of the drawn bonds will be made on and after that date at the bank.

Air Concerns Hope for Fair Mail Policy

The large aviation concerns yesterday gave expression to hope for what the new year may bring in the way of air mail legislation rather than thanks for their 1934 experiences, which were fraught with disaster.

For eighty days, during which army flyers met with a series of deaths, the private companies carried no mail. Since receiving new contracts, they have operated at a loss rather than on the much disputed subsidy. Deficits have been shown despite productive campaigns which have increased both express and passenger business.

Hope for Sane U. S. Policy.

Hearings before the federal aviation commission have given the operators new hope for a "sane" air mail policy. Above all, they see hope for a return to the pound-mile basis of payment rather than the present system of plane-mile rates which work hardship on the companies carrying the heavy loads over major routes.

The program which the large companies are pushing does not ask a subsidy for themselves, even though they would not object to one for the new carriers on the lesser routes. They ask—particularly in the case of United and North American Aviation, Inc. [the latter includes TWA]—only that they be paid just the profit the post-office department makes on stamps. Testimony before the commission showed that the postoffice netted 1¾ to 1½ mills per pound mile.

Show Low Rates Paid.

Figures revealed that United Air Lines received only 0.8 of a mill for its entire business and only 0.62 of a mill on the busy Newark-Oakland route. North American's average was 1.1 mill per pound-mile, although only .86 over the TWA Newark-Los Angeles route. American Airways, with lighter routes, is more fortunate among the large operators, but obtains only slightly above 1 mill on its Chicago-Fort Worth line.

In contrast, some of the smaller concerns, the independents which sprung up after cancellation of the old contracts, have been receiving as high as 26 mills per pound mile. In nearly all instances, the rate of pay has been in excess of 3 mills. The exception among the smaller carriers is the Braniff line between Chicago and Dallas at about 1.2 mills.

GENERAL MOTORS CHIEF VISIONS WORLD RECOVERY

Mooney, Back from Europe, Cites Improvement.

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—There are ample grounds for believing that a "strong surge of recovery" is under way throughout the world, according to James D. Mooney, president of General Motors Export company, who returned from Europe today.

Mooney said that despite monetary and political crises threatening in various countries it seemed apparent that the "stage is being set for a world boom." Sales of General Motors cars and trucks in overseas markets during 1934 will total about 220,000 units, an increase of 80 per cent over the 1933 figure, he declared.

Donbts Crisis in Germany.

After visiting offices and agents of the company in many sections of Europe, Mooney said he believed that Germany, despite the country's dire need for raw materials, would be able to get through the winter without a really serious crisis in its economic affairs. This prediction, he said, was "in view of the control being exercised over the entire materials situation."

"The Saar plebiscite will look like an impending and serious crisis," he said, "until the vote is taken in January. The vote, I believe, will be in favor of return to Germany. After the vote the situation will cool off, and like many another crisis, will fade out of the public mind. There is not a real threat for war in the Saar situation."

Reports Boom in London.

Mooney reported England to be "humming along quite steadily, and London is literally booming." He said England's boom appeared to have arisen out of three causes, "a currency whose value is effectuated daily by the law of supply and demand operating in the free gold and sterling market; secondly, a balanced national budget, and third, an extensive building program based on making low cost housing available for people with modest incomes."

Colgate-Palmolive-Peet to Spend $500,000 on Plant

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—A $500,000 construction and modernization program for the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet main plant at Jersey City, N. J., was announced tonight by J. A. Coulter, vice president of the company.
